James Powles, an Englishman, sixty-seven years old, called at the house of Andrew Lewis, in Boston Township, Summit county, Ohio, on some business, a week ago. Mrs. Lewis had prepared a dinner, and called her husband, who was at work, and retired. When Mr. Powles entered the house, she, supposing it to be her husband, called to him to sit down and eat. The visitor obeyed the invitation, and died three days after—the doctors deciding that he had been poisoned.

CHICKENS HATCHED FROM EGGS 1,200 YEARS OLD.—The Paris correspondent of the "Nation" states that the guests of the Abbe Déniau, curé of the parish of St. Eloi, in the Faubourg St. Antoine, died a few days ago on fowls whose immediate ancestors figured, he says, on the table of the great Frankish King Dagobert. When the Abbe Déniau laid the first stone of the church and presbytery, he has built, by his own exertions, on the site of the old chateau and gardens of Dagobert, a hen's nest full of eggs was discovered beneath the ruins of the ancient building. These eggs, more than twelve hundred years old, should be thrown away by the laborers when the Abbe remembered that wheat had been grown from grain found in Egypt in mummies, dating back from the time of the Pharaohs, although in this case, there might still be life in these eggs. A savant of the Institute, consulted at once in reference to these precious relics of an age when there was as yet no France to detect "Perfidious Albion" or to be jealous of Prussia and needle guns, advised their being forthwith confided to a hen of approved success in the maternal capacity. This advice having been acted upon, the good cure and his friends had the delight of witnessing, twenty-one days afterwards the hatching of a fine brood of chickens, the direct progeny of the denizens of King Dagobert's barn yard.

The fowls thus obtained have been carefully kept from any resemblance with their congeners of less ancient blood, and the Abbe has now a yard so well replenished with "King Dagobert fowls" that he not only supplies his own laird with poultry of this illustrious breed, but is about to organize, at the suggestion of numerous friends, a sale of "King Dagobert's eggs" for the benefit of the poor of the parish.

THE "HIBERNIAN."—The steamship Hibernian passed Farther Point at 8:30 this morning.

WIRES DOWN.—The Newfoundland wires are down, and there is no communication with Heart's Content.

FIRE IN GALT.—A fire occurred in Galt about one o'clock this morning, and destroyed property to the amount of about $30,000. Losses were partially insured.

MOUNTED POLICE.—The Mounted Police force, which has been stationed in Madoc for some time past, was disbanded yesterday by order of the Ontario Cabinet.

Government Money to Carry Elections.—There is a mendacity about the Globe, when writing about its opponents, which is altogether inexcusable and unjustifiable.

It is now busily engaged in trying to make its readers believe that "public money" has been used to carry the late elections, and when brought to book for uttering what it knows to be untrue, replies:

"Does the Globe mean to doubt that it has been the fashion on the Coalition side for Government contractors to contribute to their earnings towards the election expenses of Ministerial candidates? Does the Globe doubt that the contractors for the Ottawa buildings contributed money in that way; or that large sums were paid to them in a most irregular way, without vouchers, at the very time they were lavishing their money at elections to make Ministers attached special importance? Does the Globe doubt that they used the proceeds of their earnings to the election funds of the Conservative party?"

Supposing that this is all true, and that contractors as well as others, gave of "their earnings" to assist in carrying on the election of their friends, personally or politically, does it prove that the ministry of the day spent government funds for a similar purpose? The supposition is an utter absurdity, and no one knows it better than the Editor of the Globe, he having been in a ministry himself. Any attempt, therefore, to make the people believe (it is not only dishonest but disreputable on the part of one who knows better.

Not satisfied, however, with this general charge, the Globe becomes personal and says:

"There is no use of denying that a Coalition corruption fund was provided by some means or other, and that Coalition candidates had the benefit of it. In some instances, the Ministerial goods were used decidedly poor in this world's goods, whose names so baker would take for even a very moderate sum—and yet large amounts of money were spent in securing seats for these very men."

Was the Globe arguing from analogy when these remarks were penned? Has he forgotten that a draft was made some time since upon a gentleman in this town for $100 as his share of carrying on an election contest in the west, on the part of the Grite, without even asking him for a subscription, but levying the tax as a matter of right. Or does he fancy that every man's position is like that occupied by the great George Brown himself a few years ago, when the sheriff was his most intimate and frequent visitor? It comes with a very ill-grace from the Globe to talk about men being decidedly poor, when it is known from one end of the Province to the other, that there is no man in Canada, who has been the recipient of more favors in the way of subscriptions than himself, and that there is no man who has displayed more ingratitude to those who assisted him. Let the Globe argue public questions fairly, and convince the people that its opponents are wrong and it right, and no one will object, but this system of venomous reviling, cannot but recoil upon its head, and lead people to the belief that personal ambition and not the public good, is the sole controlling power of George Brown.

The public are cautioned not to attend the full name "Quebec" to addresses on letters intended for places in the Province of Quebec, other than for the city of Quebec itself. The initials letters P. Q. simply, may be used, or the letter Q. only, which is still better.

BUSINESS NOTICE.—Parties going west would do well to secure tickets from Toronto west from R. H. P. Day, agent, for Great Western Railway, opposite the market, Belleville.

Insurance Asylum.

At a meeting of the Magistrates of the County of York, held in Toronto on Friday last, the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved—That it is a recommendation of the Board that Legislative authority should be obtained for the regulation of all fees for selling liquor on Sundays or days on which elections are held, arising from the interference, to the support of an Inebriate Asylum, and that the Clerk of the Peace, Capt. Armstrong, Mr. McAllen and the mover, be a Committee to prepare a petition to the Legislature, praying that a law be amended in accordance with the foregoing recommendation."

The subject received full ventilation at the hands of the Magistrates present, and the discussion mainly arose on the question as to whether or not the taverns should be exclusively taxed. It was, however, shown by figures that, were the law rigidly enforced at the times specified in the resolution, a fund capable of building and maintaining an asylum could be raised without any extraneous effort. The resolution was carried amid a unanimity of feeling that promises well for the effort.

Failure of Buchanan & Co.

Every one will regret to learn of the failure of Messrs. Buchanan, Hope & Co., of Hamilton. A correspondent of the Leader says:—

"The city has been much excited to-day (Sept. 30th) by the reported failure of the firm of Messrs. Buchanan, Hope & Co., which, I regret to say, turns out to be too true. What the liabilities amount to I am unable to say, but they are doubtless large. One report says that the cause of suspension is a partnership quarrel, but another is that an assignment has been made. At any rate, whatever may have caused the suspension, the assurance is given that the firm of L. Buchanan & Co., of Montreal, has not been affected. It is known that a Chancery case has given a good deal of trouble to the suspended firm, as it involves a large sum of money, but as it is unsettled that cannot have had any immediate effect. The deepest sympathy is manifested for Mr. Buchanan, whose liberality has long been proverbial in this community."

FROM MADOC.

From our own Correspondent.

MADOC, Sept. 28th, 1867.

Election matters having somewhat subsided here other things assume more importance, though you can still see the chuckle, almost before you could hear it, in the faces of the successful electors.

The last election is looked upon here as a more than ordinary one, for various reasons:

1st. It was a square stand up fight between two candidates who had been previously pitted against each other. 2d. While we generally hear of a good deal of work, there is also a great deal of talk, but in this case there was a good deal of work and not much talk, consequently the election passed off very quietly. 3d. The decided victory—no winning by a head or a neck, but the victor fairly distancing his opponent. Somewhat the result of this election also is accepted by the majority of the supporters of the unsuccessful candidate with more than the usual share of good nature. "I am not sorry," says some; "Just what we expected," say others; and some go so far as to say they are glad of it. There are a few who talk of "bargains," "office seekers," and of the Railroad Bill as an "election humbug," and so on; but no one denies that it is generally believed that the "bargains" for "office seekers" have been badly interfered with in the result of the election, and hence the growling. Well, this is foolish, better take a lesson from Mark Tapscott and "look jolly."

Gold mining is progressing, and all over the country shafts are being sunk with an earnestness of purpose that certainly promises to develop this part of the country much sooner than was anticipated a couple of months ago. To-day a report is current that gold is being found in the El Dorado mine in the quartz, visible to the eye and such quantities as to place it beyond doubt. Shares in this mine originally worth $10 are now said to be worth $50. It is to be hoped that this is true.

Messrs. Scott and Taylor have nearly finished their crushing mill, and it will probably be in full blast next week. I am told there are some fifteen applicants to have quartz crushed in quantities. Two new mills are being erected. Black Creek, one for the Barry mine and the other near Sugar's Mill. Mr. Wyckoff is now in New York selecting machinery for them, and also for another to be erected in this village. Assays are being made every day but nothing will satisfy fully but the result of the mill.

A very sad accident occurred yesterday near El Dorado, on the McIntosh hill. As Mr. Stewart of Clapton, formerly of Glenora, was descending the hill with a team of four, the neck-yoke gave way and the wagon ran off the embankment, and Stewart was precipitated under the feet of the horses and was so badly injured that he only survived a few minutes. A coroner's inquest was held to-day but I have not heard the verdict. Understand that Stewart leaves a large family.

It is very remarkable the number of sudden deaths in Madoc within the last two years. Scarcely a week passes without a startling death.

The weather is fine and grain is beginning to move off briskly to market.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

A Trip down the St. Lawrence.

MR. EDITOR.—Having business in Montreal, I thought I would go down the river. On the 9th of September, I embarked on board the steamer Empress for my first visit to the city. I was much pleased to find that a party of seventeen, mostly from North Fort, were going the same trip. I thought very favorably of the steamer when I saw as respectable a company come on board, and who proved to be as merry a lot as you generally find. The day was fine and the scenery down the bay and river was beautiful. The moonlight view of the Thousand Islands surpassed anything I ever saw. Returning at rather a late hour, yet ready to rise at the orb of day to enjoy the morning breeze and the scenery on either side of the river, which was new to me. Breakfast being over, the party with some lady passengers, discoursed for the night it was all merriment and gladness, wondering how they would enjoy gliding down the torrents. Some expected to be quite frightened, but they were all quite disappointed, for we passed down so nicely it was only pleasant to sail. I could hardly make myself believe that we had ran all the rapids of the great St. Lawrence, but so it was. At five o'clock on Saturday evening we found ourselves in the commercial city. The party all put up at the same hotel, and I thought I would not do better than to be found in the wing of the party. It proved to be so, for they were called and seated before the bell rang. On Sabbath we attended Christ Church at 11 a.m., the French Cathedral at 3 p.m., and the Wesleyan Methodist Church in the evening. On Monday the party visited many of the principal places of note, and in the afternoon, I went with them to the mountain, a most delightful place. While passing through the cemetery one of the ladies remarked that the grounds were so beautifully arranged and so much more expensive in remembrance of the departed, that it would almost court our stay. At three o'clock on Tuesday, all on board, we started homeward. After one of the most pleasant trips I ever enjoyed, we found our selves in your pleasant town, having spent nearly a week on the boat and in the city, on which I shall ever look as a gifted page in life's history. As for the good things of this world, I was not disappointed, and that which is good. We sat down to some meals that would have graced a nobleman's table. Everything came on in the best order. A young lady remarked it was the longest party she ever attended. The Captain and officers on the boat seemed not to mind expense or pains to make all on board happy. There were not any sentiments alone, but speak for all on board.

Belleville, Sept. 30, 1867.

—At Fishkill, 1½ bushels of the Godrich potatoes, planted last spring, have yielded 125 bushels.

—For bolts, screws, ringworms and Old Sores, Perry Davis' Pain Killer is the sovereign remedy.—See Adv.

—Mr. Violins, the greatest wine merchant of England, is dead. He was a sportsman; never had but one sort of wine in his cellar; never sold a cork; never sent a bill; never was in London, and never rode on a railway.

—Changeable weather produces Colds, which, though they do not necessarily result in consumption, do the system great harm. If you have a Cold, cure it, do not let it run till it past cure. Perry Davis' Pain Killer is the surest remedy.

—A man in Hamilton borrowed $300 from a friend, on the pretence of buying his brother decently, but which brother was met shortly afterwards in the market square by the maitred friend, when a row followed. In the meantime the brother who borrowed the money decamped.

—A grand procession of the reformers of the County of Westmoreland and the City of Hamilton is to be held shortly in the shape of a picnic. It has heretofore been supposed that picnics were for general enjoyment, but everything has now-a-days to bend to the will of political agitators, and the "leading reformers" throughout the Province of Ontario are to give vent to their disappointments in general picnic style.

Labor in New Brunswick.

The New Brunswick correspondent of the Canadian News writes to that paper as follows: "By next summer there will be employment for 10,000 laborers within this Province, in consequence of the vast length of railway to be constructed, and able bodied men coming here, and obtaining work as navies for two or three years, will have the advantage, if they are temperate in their habits, of being able to save enough out of their wages to procure themselves with farms, upon which they can spend the remainder of life in perfect independence. Such men can obtain constant work in one of the healthiest climates in the world at one dollar per day, upon this a large family can be comfortably supported and a considerable sum saved. Good land can be obtained at about half a dollar an acre, when purchased for actual settlement; and thus the man who by frugality succeeds in saving the small sum of $50, becomes the owner of 100 acres—a quantity ample sufficient to make an excellent farm. Comfortable habitations can be erected at a very small expense, the materials being found in abundance upon the land itself. There is probably no way in the world in which an industrious, sober man, possessing a little mechanical taste, can so easily and rapidly escape from the contingencies of a laborer's life. Once established in his homestead, which is a very rapid one here, he can snap his fingers at bad times, and with the certainty of becoming more and more independent every year. The men that fail in this country, are those of dissolute and idle habits, but the orderly and industrious are sure to prosper."

American Despatches.

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—The fall meeting of the Ladies Driving Association opened to-day.—The hurdle race of two miles, for a purse of $500, was won by "Jockey" Time: 4:15. 55 sec. The second race, sweepstakes for two year-olds, one mile, for $200. Twelve horses started: "Hazard" was the winner. Time: 1:40. 45 sec. The third race, sweepstakes for three year-olds, was won by "Platonicus."

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—The funeral of General Sterling Price took place to-day, and was the largest ever seen in this city.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—All the state nests heretofore furnished regarding the trial of Jeff Davis have been furnished, and the Government has not authorized them, nor has it made its intention of what it intends doing. It is supposed, however, that the Government will act further delay when the trial comes on in November next, and that the counsel for the accused will then make a motion of non prosequi.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 30.—Three fires occurred at Madison, Ind., during the last six hours, which are supposed to be the work of incendiaries.

SARASOTA, Ga., Sept. 30.—A Boston mulatto named Badger had a gathering here of about 10,000 negroes. In the course of his harangue against white men he was interrupted, and a melee occurred. A large force of police charged through the crowd. The military came to their aid, and the muskets brought by a large number of country negroes were taken by the police.

Laramie.—The city is now quiet, but disturbances are still threatened between the country and conservative, city colored people. The military will remain under arms, but their services will probably not be needed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—The Central Pacific Railroad Company are preparing for winter by roofing in the most exposed portions of the track. Large quantities of freight are now crossing the mountains. An Oregon and California Stage Mail has been organized. They will transport mails and passengers from Sacramento to Portland, a distance of 700 miles.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Our Consul at Remar, under date of August 30th, reports that yellow fever has again made its appearance there, principally among the seamen in the harbor.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—The steamer Serra Nevada brings advices from Alaska to August 30th. The Copper River country is reported by Indians and Russians to be rich in gold, copper and coal, but the savages are very hostile and warlike. The Russians, Finns and Germans are glad to be annexed to the United States. All kinds of common vegetables are raised; fish are very plenty; deer sold at 80c each.

There is great excitement at Victoria over the supposed volcanic eruption 65 miles distant, the Colombia rejoices in the prospect of a union with the Colombia (only one Colombia in the world).

NEW YORK, October 1.—The Groton National Bank was closed this morning by the Government's refusal to redeem its circulating notes in lawful money on demand. The capital was $200,000, a part of which appears to have been lost. The circulation $180,000 is of course secured. It is thought that the depositors will all be paid eventually.

ANOTHER SERIOUS RUMKAY ACCIDENT.—On Monday evening, the youngest son and daughter of Mr. Wm. Fox, senior, were returning from Wadsworth's Lake, they met with an accident when only a very short distance from home. The neck-yoke broke, letting the tongue fall to the ground, which frightened the team. As they were ascending the steep pitch in front of Mr. Charles Fox's house the wagon came in contact with a large rock. With the shock, the horses broke away, and the wagon was upset. Both of the occupants were thrown out, Miss A. Fox striking on her forehead and breaking her collar-bone. Her brother was fortunately uninjured, and immediately mounted one of the horses and proceeded to the village for surgical assistance. Dr. Jones was in attendance as quickly as possible, and we are glad to learn that although Miss Fox sustained severe concussion of the brain, besides breaking her collar-bone, the skull is not, as was at first feared, fractured, and that on Thursday night she was progressing favorably towards recovery.—Madoc Mercury.

The Salt Lake Vidette details the following bloody incident as a common-place.

"On Tuesday last a terrible shooting fray took place in Echo Canyon. 67 teamsters belonging to Kimball's train-

I have only time to mention one of these, but that one it appears to me, shows the absurdity of the position occupied by the profession upon this subject. That reason is as follows: All must know that whiskey is almost universally prescribed, in consumption by the great majority of physicians of whatever school; yet who does not know that wounds and ulcers on drunkards are far more difficult to heal than they are upon those who are temperate. Then how can it be possible that whiskey can have, or incite a healing effect in such delicate issues as those of the lungs, especially when all of this that is taken into the stomach must first go through and too the lungs before it is distributed through the system? And how whiskey or its equivalent can have a healing effect in convalescence from any disease, when its effect retards the reparative processes of Nature, promises my comprehension. When some to its true light, the whole theory of benefit from such agents is too absurd to be tolerated. And a little reflection must satisfy all intelligent people how difficult it will

to have any lasting benefit wrought by the temperance cause, until this root, among others which sustain intemperance, is reached and destroyed.

The Impending War of Europe

A great war in Europe is inevitable.— Those who place the slightest trust in the assurance of peace which the rival governments are continually making, forget the maxim of Talleyrand, that the use of speech is the concealment of force.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, OCT. 4

Town Council.—Our report of the proceedings of the Town Council is unavoidably crowded out.

Theatrical.—By reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that the Townsend family visit Belleville this Friday evening, 4th inst., when "Delicate Groom," "The Merchant of Venice," and the "Timid Lover," will be played.

Spolia Wicker.—We understand that a single wicker match will be played on the Belleville grounds to-morrow. Those who are expected to take part in it are Messrs. Starling, Smith, Benjamin, and Hourley. Game to commence at 2 o'clock, p.m.

Dedication of Ontario Hall.—This new hall, which is one of the finest in the Province, will be opened to-night by Dick Sands' celebrated combination troupe, said to be the best travelling. Dick Sands is acknowledged to be the best Old Dan on the continent, and the Company in their various parts are not excelled by any other that has visited Canada. The Fish family as Musicians stand at the head of their profession. Sands and Abernethy in their double eel exercise is alone worth the price of admission. We trust the troupe will have a full house. The Company will also perform to-morrow night.

Fire.—A fire broke out in Charters & Webster's drug store this morning, which through the prompt efforts of a few gentlemen, was extinguished, but not until considerable damage was done. It was occasioned by the bursting of a bottle of inflammable material, which spilled upon the stove and set fire to the shelving, and some stationary and other articles on the shelves. It looked ugly for a while, and it was only through the timely assistance of Mr. J. C. Holden, Mr. Jack, Mr. Davis, and some other gentlemen, that it was got under. The loss will probably amount to $500. Insured in the Western of England.

The South Hastings Exhibition.

The Skating Rink was fitted up for the exhibition of Grain, Vegetables, Dairy Produce, the Fine Arts, Ladies' Department, &c., the Rink proper being devoted to the heavier articles, and the galleries to the Fine Arts and Ladies' Departments. No better place could have been selected, and the arrangement of the articles was admirable, though it was very evident that in some departments there was a great falling off, and that there was ample room for twice the quantity of stuff.

In the Grain Department there was a great variety, and some of the samples were particularly choice.

Along a table in the centre of the Rink was placed the Butter and Cheese, and from the appearance of the table it was evident the managers anticipated a much larger show than was made. Of cheese there was a great variety, better stamp, quality, and more of it than ever exhibited at one County Fair; but of butter there was but a meagre display. But if it was limited in quantity it was choice in quality. At the end of this table there were faint crowing and gabbling, and clucking which told us here was the poultry department. The crowing and gabbling were faint because there were only two or three engaged in making this melodious music. One or two lots of ducks and geese and hens comprised the show of poultry. It is to be regretted that our principal poultry breeders did not give the Society and the public the benefit of their enterprise, in improving the breed. We have some breeders in this County who have gone to considerable expense and trouble in introducing improved breeds, and we think it would have been to their advantage to have had their poultry on exhibition.

The Vegetable Department was not so large as we have seen it, though if there were not monotony in the shape of mammoth squash and ill-shaped turnips, there were fine specimens of well-shaped carrots, turnips and beets. Parsnips were middling as to size, but excellent in quality. Cabbage was not so large, but were sold. The only specimen of Celery, shown by N. Jones, Esq., was tempting. The Onions and Tomatoes, exhibited by Alex. Waters, Esq., were the finest we have seen. There was but a meagre show of Potatoes, there being only six lots, and those only fairish.

Another table devoted to Home Made Cloths, Flannels, Carpets, &c., might have held three times the quantity it contained. The show in this department was nothing what it should have been, nor what it was as it was at former exhibitions. So far as quality were concerned, there was some very good samples of flannel, cloth and carpet, and some only so-so.

Mr. Geo. H. Haynes made a fine display of Fur, Robes, Hats, Caps, and in fact everything in his line of business. The articles were arranged in a very attractive form, and the display was very creditable.

In the galleries, the ladies made a display of their hand-work, in the form of quilts, counterpanes, rugs, worsted and hat work, and a great variety of other work both useful and ornamental. The display was not so large as in some previous exhibitions, but we don't think the quality of the work could be best even by the most skillful fingers in the Dominion. Amongst the fancy work we must not forget to notice a very neatly carved sugar bowl cut out of a cocoa nut, and a coat of arms wrought in worsted, the hand-work of R. M. Roy, Esq., long years ago when his fingers were more nimble than they are to-day. The display of fancy work, though not large, was highly creditable to the exhibitors.

In the Gallery was the fruit department, and as this will close our brief description of the fair-to-day, we may say this department was the crowning feature of the Exhibition. The show of Apples embraced nearly every variety and the quantity was treble that of any previous year, while the quality gave evidence of a steady improvement. There was also a large variety of Pears; and of Grapes, which would have been considered a creditable display at the Horticultural Exhibitions of Toronto or Hamilton. Of both, hot-house, and out door grapes there was a large variety and the specimens showed produced no little wonderment in the minds of those who were not aware of the extent to which they are grown here.

We must not forget to mention that in a portion of the gallery was a fine collection of Photographs from the galleries of Mrs. James and Forest & Loxo.

There was also a fine lot of harness, well made and beautifully finished, the manufacture of Mr. Wm. Davis, of this Town. This gentleman also exhibited some leather. Mr. Wright also exhibited a single set of harness which showed excellent workmanship.

There was a large attendance of visitors during the day to both outside and inside exhibitions, and on the whole the Fair may be said to have been successful. The receipts at the door of the Skating Rink amounted to the handsome sum of over $90.

In the afternoon the Firemen turned out with the steam engine and headed by the Band marched through the streets. About five o'clock, Tom Murphy performed several astonishing feats on a tight rope stretched across the street from the Anglo American to Forrest & Loxo's Gallery, which were witnessed by hundreds of people.

AMERICAN DESPATCHES.

New York, Oct. 4.—It is reported from Mexico that Santa Anna is very rampant in the castle of San Juan Duella. When he remained a prisoner he refused his meals, and passed his time in cursing and slandering.

New York, Oct. 4.—A serious riot occurred in Jefferson City, Mo., on the second day of the election. It arose in a dispute between a white and a black man, and was followed by a general riot, in which fire-arms were freely used. Two whites and four negroes were severely wounded. The military were called out and soon quelled the riot.

New York, Oct. 4.—Charles A. Lane proposes that the Local Leaguers raise $250,000 for Mrs. Lincoln.

BUSINESS NOTICE.

Parties going west would do well to secure tickets from Toronto west from Mr. P. D. DAVY, agent for Great Western Railway, opposite the market, Belleville, 115-116.

No statute that the rich man places, ostentatiously in his window is to be compared to the little expectant face pressed against the window pane, reaching for his father, when his day's labor is done.

The ruling passion: A young lady at Niagara was heard to exclaim, "What an elegant trimming that rainbow would make for a white lace overdress."

Telegraphic News.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

FLORENCE, Oct. 2.—The rebels sold many strong points in the province of Viterbo, and await the attack of the Pontifical corps.

LONDON, Oct. 3d, evening.—It is reported that a policeman had been shot and killed in Rochdale, by some Fenians. A policeman was attacked and nearly killed, in this city, by a gang of Irishmen, last night. These events, in connection with recent occurrences in Manchester and Ireland, have given rise to rumors of a new wide-spread Fenian conspiracy.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—The Roman Catholic Bishops of the Austrian Empire have met in Congress, and declared their opposition to any change in the concordat now established between Rome and Austria.

LONDON, Oct. 3, midnight.—The Turkish government has made an apology to the American Ambassador at Constantinople for the insult offered to one of the messengers attached to the United States Consulate.

The Emperor Alexander, of Russia, has demanded of the Sublime Porte the cessation of the taking of Candia to Greece.

ST. PETERSBURG, October 2.—Official despatches published to-day, are silent in regard to Rome, but confirm the reports that a revolt has broken out in the Papal Province of Viterbo.

PARIS, October 2.—The Naple newspaper of this city publishes letters and other documents to prove that Louis Kosmth was engaged in intrigues with agents of the Russian Government in 1849.

LONDON, October 3.—The members of the Masonic Order gave a grand dinner last night at Gravesend, to the officers of Farragut's ship, Franklin, now lying off this port.

MADRID, Oct. 3.—General Lersundi has received the commission of Captain General of Cuba, and will immediately sail for Havana.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Later advices from South America received. They give no definite intelligence as to the results of the recent bombardment of the Paraguayan fortifications, but state that the Brazilian and Argentine fleets are lying inactive off Humala, and that the land forces of the allied powers are making no preparations for further movements.

Many Fenian convicts who have hitherto been confined in English and Irish gaols, have been placed on board transports for Australia, to serve out terms of sentence.

RIOT AND DARING RESCUE ON THE 15TH
SEPT.—A POLICE SERGEANT SHOT—THE MURDERER ARRESTED—THE VENIA PRISONERS CARRIED OFF.
The London

says:—The Manchester police, about a week ago, apprehended two men, who spoke with Irish American accent, and who were loitering about the streets in a suspicious manner, at between 3 and 4 in the morning. They gave names which supposed to be false, and claimed to be American citizens, but are quite unknown. They were supposed to be plotting the robbery of a shop, and on being taken into custody offered great resistance, trying to get their hands in their pockets, which had a bad result.

brought up under the Vagrant Act and mauded. From communications with Irish police, some of whom have Manchester, it is confidently believed those men will prove to be the notori-Fenians known as Colonel Kelly and

MANCHESTER, Wednesday, 9 o'clock

ly and Capt. Desay having been remanded by the magistrates, were placed in a van with a view to removal to the city of Bellevue. About 8 o'clock the van was drawn up in front of the police court to receive all the prisoners to be taken to the city.

them the two Fenians. At this time police noticed two men hanging about whom they suspected to be Fenians, a policeman made a rush at one of the arrest him, in which he succeeded, but till the man had drawn a dagger and tempted to stab him. The blow was av-ed. The other suspected person made escape. In consequence of this Kelly Deasy were put in irons before being to the van. When the van left the ci-had to proceed over Ardwickgreen along Hyde road, a fine open street leading to the goal, and nearly a mile in length, was drawn by two horses, and was guarded behind by seven policemen. The van proceeded about half a mile up this road when, on passing under the viaduct

Railway across, with an open field on the right, a volley of shots were fired at the van. The policemen, not seeing where the shots came from, dropped off the van and scattered themselves out wide. There was the crash of 30 to 40 Irishmen upon the and upon the van. One man had a hat another a hammer, and a third a bay with which they set to work to break the van. One man took a revolver fired it into the lock. Ultimately, with large stones—one of them of 100lb. weight—broke through the top of the van and the panels of the door below and set all the prisoners, including Feniana, at liberty. The policemen collected in a body and made a rush to prevent the prisoners being liberated.

several revolvers were discharged at them, and one constable was shot over of his eyes, causing the eye to protrude and was taken to the infirmary. A young man, a bystander, was shot through head. It is expected the Fenians, of Manchester have been in a state of excitement all the evening. The shot in the head is Sergrant Brett. A ball passed through his head, and he is in his hat. William Onunra Allen, so designated, the fatal shot was charged taken. Detective Bromley received a bullet in one of his thighs. Another policeman was shot in the back, wounded but slightly. Both the horses in the van were shot. The driver was knocked off his box with a bullet. A dozen arrests have been made. The half by the Dragonous, who are identified as taking part in the rescue. The secretary of State has authorized a reward of $10,000 for Kelly and Deasey, and the Manelco corporation offer £200 for the men connected in the rescue. Allen is said to acted as captain of the robbing party, had been waiting with a number of followers for hours before the van arrived. He shot at the driver and policemen on the van and at the horses, shooting one through the neck. He also fired at Brett, who was in the van, and wounded him, when he fled.

The Dublin correspondence of the London Times contains the following

The suspicious craft which was rep[re]sented

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

THE principles on which this Company is founded contain all the elements required to develop the benefits of Life Assurance, and afford every facility to intending assur-

One of the advantages secured by those who insure their lives with this Company is that the outside expenditure for Management is absolutely restricted by the Dues of Settlement. This most important restriction shows that the interests of participating policy

holders are closely watched and carefully attended to by the Company. Attention is especially called to this point, as the proposals of premiums expended for Management

Must Largely Influence Profits

and Bonuses.

The next division of profits takes place in 1868, and all those who wish to participate in the profits should insure at once.

The Pope's Powers Defined.

The celebrated canonist, Prospero Fagnani, who is the oracle of the court of Rome, in his famous commentary on the Decretals, expresses the doctrine of the Roman Curia concerning the Pope:—

The Pope may make laws and institutions for all the world, because his power is unlimited. The Pope has power over all men, even over infants, (that is to say, Jews, Turks, and heathens.) The Pope judges all men, and can only be judged by God. He cannot be judged by councils; nay, were the whole world to pronounce in any particular against the Pope, it would be right to submit to his judgment against one to discuss the actions of a Pope. Everything that he does is done by divine authority. The Pope does not hold the God. The Pope may by his power, determine the symbols of faith, since it belongs to him only to decide in matters of faith. The decisions of fathers, even if supported by Holy Scriptures, have much less weight than the decisions of the Pope. Even if he wished, he could not submit himself to a council, because God alone could make a mortal greater than the Pope. The Pope is not subject to the decisions of his predecessors; not even to that of the Apostles; for there is no power that limits the power of the keys, not even the power of St. Peter and St. Paul, there being no superiority among equals. The Pope may dispense with the observance of the divine laws and the Gospel precepts. It would be heresy to believe that the Pope could err in his decisions as to faith or the sacrament. It would be sacrilegious to doubt whether or no he could change the last will of the dying, and he who should deny his sovereignty would not be a Christian. The Pope as a man might err in matters of faith, but as a Pope he could not do so. The Pope is the administrator, the dispenser, the true patron of all the ecclesiastical positions in the world, and therefore he may freely use them as his own. The Pope may grant every species of dispensation, with the exception of one—to marry one's father or one's mother. The Pope may depose magistrates and princes, and free their subjects from their obligations to them. Nevertheless, the king or prince thus deposed may not lawfully be driven away, or slain, except by those commissioned by the Pope. The Pope is king of kings, ruler of rulers; he is the prince of bishops, the judge of all men. The Pope, by his absolute power, he can change the nature of things, and make a thing out of nothing; he can create a law where before there was none; he is all and above all; he can make square things to be round, and make black to be white and white to be black.

Mark Twain's first effort as a "writer," according to the Memphis Bulletin, was while he was a Mississippi river boatman.

The yellow fever appears to have run its course in Galveston, Texas. The whole number of deaths in the city from the commencement of the fever to September 22 was 1,128, of which 999 were from yellow fever.

Malta was shaken up four times by earth quake on the 19th and 20th September. No damage was done, but the air was charged with the sulphurous gases to the extent of his religious volcanic shocks in that island. Cholera is diminishing.

Life insurance companies are likely to have an opportunity for industry, for some time to come. Of the 38,000,000 people in the United States on the first of January, 1897, only 244,892 had life insurance policies, or less than one in a hundred.

A good story is told of Horace Greeley, who started down town to deliver an address in the American Institute, got by mistake into the French Theatre, took a seat on the stage, to the amusement of the audience, and did not discover his mistake until the curtain rose for the play of "Queen Elizabeth," when he beat a hasty retreat.

Birds of passage have begun their annual migration southwards through Belgium a month earlier this year than usual. A really long line of birds have taken flight; bustards have been killed in the neighborhood of Paris, and wild ducks have passed in such numbers that the eye cannot follow them. All this, it is said, presages a hard winter.

A radical change is about to be effected in the mode of breeding horses in France. The old-fashioned horse is to be altogether discarded; the hoof of the horse will be allowed to grow naturally, and it will be protected against accidents, and wear and tear by being incased in a thin circle of iron, which will preserve it from danger without compressing it.

The Newfoundland, published at St. John, has a couple of admirable articles pointing out the advantages of that island, and urging strongly the entry of that colony into the confederacy. These articles are copied into the St. John's Courier. There are good reasons of the growing importance of the part of the people of Newfoundland.

The Recognition of the South.

WHO FIRST RECOGNIZED ITS STATUS AS A BELLEGGUANT POWER.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: If the question of our recognition of the Southern States as a belligerent power, it is to be hoped that the agent leader of the House of Representatives, Mr. Thaddeus Stevens, may be present to repeat the following lines in his memory recently taken down by him, and printed with his consent: "When the rebellion first commenced I was in favour of treating it as a rebellion, and the participation in it as traitors to the Government of the United States, liable to punishment for their treason. It was so understood in Congress, and I supposed it was so understood by President Lincoln and his Cabinet. After the adjournment of the first session of Congress during Mr. Lincoln's term, shortly after my return to my home, I saw, to my surprise, a proclamation declaring a blockade of all the rebel ports. This was a great blunder and absurdity. If the rebel States were still in the Union, and only in treasonable revolt against the Government, we were blockading ourselves—blockading the ports of the United States. I attributed this at once to the incomprehensible statesmanship of Mr. Seward, and went to Washington to see and talk with President Lincoln on the subject. I laid my views before him, and told him that the blockade was a justification of the former position of the Government in relation to the rebel States; that the ports, instead of being blockaded, should have been closed, and a sufficient number of armed revenue vessels sent out on the seas to prevent smuggling. I pointed out to him the fact that by the act of blockade we recognized the rebel States as an independent belligerent, and should therefor be compelled to conduct the war, not as if we were suppressing a revolt in our own States, but in accordance with the law of nations. 'Well,' said Mr. Lincoln, 'when he had heard my remarks, that's a fact. I see the point now, but I don't know anything about the law of nations, and I thought it was all right.' 'As a lawyer, Mr. Lincoln,' I remarked, 'I should have supposed you would have seen the difficulty at once.' 'Oh, well,' replied Mr. Lincoln, 'I'm a good enough lawyer in a Western law court, I suppose, but we don't practise the law of nations up there, and I supposed Seward knew all about it, and I left it to him. But it's done now and can't be helped, so we must get along as well as we can.' In this Mr. Lincoln was right. The blunder had been committed, and the rebel States were therefor an independent belligerent—not an independent nation, of course, but an independent belligerent; to be dealt with in accordance with the law of nations."

Intelligence from Hayti is to the 8th inst. The country was in an extraordinary state of agitation, and its affairs were in a lamentable condition. Gold was fabulously high, and provisions were scarce. Flour was $20 a barrel in gold, and thirty-four Haytian paper dollars were only worth one dollar of Spanish gold. The Government of men opposed to Salazar's administration, were still in arms, and had pillaged Delmarie, a town in the south.

Another woman's life has been saved by her waterbury. A lady in a western town had occasion to open a heavy window, on Tuesday night. While the sash was raised to its full length, the lady's head was partly out of the window, and near the bottom of the casing. In this position the window cord broke, and the sash fell directly upon her head; but the intervening waterbury saved her from a broken skull or dislocated neck, or both.

Official reports which have reached Florence are said to contain accounts of fearful doings in Calabria, under the eye of the cholera. It is impossible to imagine anything more frightful. Whole families have been murdered, cut in pieces, even, it is said, thrown to the swine. More than 80 persons have thus perished on the suspicion of scattering poison, to which the wretched ignorance of the lower classes in Southern Italy persist in attributing the cholera.

Mr. G. A. SALA, the eminent writer and newspaper correspondent, has been before the Bankruptcy court in London. He was described as a newspaper correspondent, and contributor to a daily newspaper, of Bloane-street, Knightsbridge. The bankrupt came up on his own petition, and ascribes his failure to having to pay heavy travelling expenses and insufficiency of income. His total indebtedness is £2350, and the principal creditors are the proprietors of the Daily Telegraph, who claim £2000; Mr. Pratt, a newspaper proprietor of Bolt Court, £200; and the Friend-Industrious Society, £200. The debts were proved, and a day named for the next meeting.

The New York Times asserts that Napoleon will withdraw his army from Mexico when assured by Mr. Seward that he will be responsible for MATAMOROS. He must now, instead of being held "responsible for the safety of the Prince, be held responsible for his execution. His efforts to influence the Mexican authorities were strangely dilatory, and besides a simple courier was entrusted with a message which could have been enforced by the weight and personage of an ambassador. Mr. RAYMOND, the chief influence of the N. Y. Times, is we presume, responsible for the statement which places Mr. Seward in so unenviable a light. Mr. RAYMOND has just returned from Europe, and his position gave him access to circles not usually frequented by the correspondents of the American press.

The following paragraph is from the Springfield Republican:—The idea of punishing crime by public dissection upon the dead body of the criminal, was that belongs to a barbarous state of society. The bodies of the conspirators against the life of President Lincoln are to be sent to the masses, to be placed at Washington and Edwin Booth has applied for a license to exhibit the body of the assassin. It will be a satisfaction to his mother, to enter the hall where she was born, and to see the body of the assassin. The danger of such a spectacle is, that it will excite the mother, that she may bury them in what she considers a proper manner. It is at Washington that the responsibility of this infamous and brutal act is discharged as a civilized and Christian nation.

Many of our readers will doubtless recognize the little insect known in common parlance as the bed-bug, as an item of some local importance. We therefore submit herewith the following receipt for the extermination which we find in one of our exchanges: "Add a quarter of a pound of Cayenne pepper to a pailful of boiling water, let it stand and settle, when it is ready to serve. For poisoning walls mix the same with flour paste, and the bugs will not nest under the paper."

NEGRO AMBITION FOR OFFICE.—The New Orleans Times, referring to the approaching elections in Louisiana, says:—It is undoubted that a strong feeling of caste—of exclusiveness—is growing up in the breasts of the colored people, and that the tendency to ignore white men as counselors and leaders—even though they be of the most Radical type politically—is constantly on the increase. Even at this early day, long before an election for new local governments can be held, there is scarcely a State or municipal office that can be named for which a negro candidate has not already been put forward, with strong and active supporters at his back. A colored man, now holding office by appointment of Gen. Sheridan, boasted on a leading thoroughfare, in tones to be heard by passers, that he would by the next election be elected, if it costs him fifty thousand dollars. He is confident of succeeding without any such liberal expenditure, and another is quite as confident of being the next Mayor. The member of Congress from the First District is decided upon, and so on to the end of the list."

Daily Intelligencer.

Sir Frederick Bruce in England.

The death of Sir Frederick Bruce has caused profound grief in England. He is eulogized not less as a man than as one of the ablest diplomatists in the Queen's service. The Times says it is no secret that it was in accordance with his repeated advice and exhortations that a wise overture toward a settlement of the Alabama claims was made by Lord Derby's Government, and he "always cherished the hope that he would be able to render his country the service of removing a fertile ground of contention from the path of the two Governments, and thus bring them into closer and more friendly relations." There is no little discussion as to who shall be appointed his successor at Washington, and there is much feeling as to the importance of obtaining a man who shall display his spirit and carry out his purposes.

In a Bad State.

The Halifax Colonist is in a bad state. It tells several lies in an article on the late elections in Canada. We are black enough in all conscience, but not quite so sooty as the pure organ of the "party of punishment" would make out. The paragraph is suggestive: "But not in this impromptu expenditure of Dominion money will our principal ground of complaint against Canadians be found. They intend to hold Nova Scotia as a congressional colony; to keep her within the Union in her own despite. So her press proclaims, and we know that the people who support that press will listen to no appeal from us for justice. We must not now appeal to Canada for a restoration of our rights. Any hope that now Canada would consent to a repeal of the Union as far as we are concerned is idle. The wolf would as soon quit his prey as Canada her hold upon our revenues."

BUSINESS NOTICE.—Parties going west do well to secure tickets from Toronto to Bellville, by Mr. R. P. DAVY, agent for Great Western Railway, opposite the market, 115-116.

Taxation in the United States.

Taxation in the United States is becoming frightfully oppressive and oppressive. Nearly everything the people do, or use, is taxed, and a man with a small income finds after paying his rental and the tax on the rent, that he has little left for the necessities of his household. So oppressive is that many of the leading men of that country are advocating what is tantamount to a repudiation of the public debt. Among these advocates is the notorious Butler, whose plan is to increase the issue of Greenbacks, and pay the interest of American bonds in the depreciated currency instead of in gold. When these bonds were issued the purchasers bought them with the understanding that the interest would be paid in gold, and the proposition to pay in Greenbacks is nothing less than repudiating the liabilities of the Government. For the credit of the country this scheme merits but little favor from the press, although it is strenuously supported by such men as Butler. It shows, however, that so burdensome is the taxation, that almost any plan by which the country can be relieved from this burden is received with favor. To give an idea of the extent of this taxation, and the weight of this burden, we have only to refer to a recent report of a public body, which has found its way into print. The Finance Committee of the Constitutional Convention of the State of New York, lately in session, has published a report by which we find that the public debt of that State amounts to $638,351,000, or over $158 per head of the entire population, or about $700 per family, while the annual taxation exceeds $45 per head, or $200 per family. The report further says: "This brief statement shows that taxation has reached a point beyond the entire net earnings of the whole people and is absorbing the capital with fearful rapidity. No argument is needed to establish the fact that such an extent of taxation cannot be permanently endured." With such an admission from such an important body, can we wonder at the idea of repudiation being entertained?

The Assizes.

The Fall Assizes for this County commenced to-day at noon. His Lordship Chief Justice RICHMOND presiding. John BELL, Esq., Q. C., conducted the business on behalf of the Crown. The docket contained twenty-six cases, most of which are light. The calendar was "black," and in accordance with long established custom the Sheriff presented his Lordship with a pair of white kids.

The following gentlemen compose the Grand Jury:

THOMAS ENO, Foreman.
Bell, John
Clapp, Portland
Carly, S. T.
Fargy, James
Farley, Thomas J.
Glas, James
Howard, Thomas D.
Holland, Robert
Ketchum, John R.
Lilly, Richard Leavens, Hector
Wilson, Chas. G.

His Lordship in charging the Grand Jury, congratulated the country as well as the County on its freedom from crime. "For so large and populous a County it spoke well for its morals, and he hoped it would long maintain its reputation." He referred briefly to the case of the Queen against Dr. Waldren, and explained the law relating to the practice of physicians and their liability. In speaking of the improvements in the Court House, he said that throughout the country, while considerable attention had been paid to the comfort and convenience of criminals, the comfort of Judges and others interested in the administration of Justice was neglected. He was happy to see that in the improvements made here, due attention had been given to this matter.

Several undefended cases were disposed of. The record was then gone through with, and it was found that in no case were the parties on both sides ready. His Lordship thereupon adjourned the Court at two o'clock, until to-morrow at half-past nine A. M.

TRENTON TOWNSHIP SHOW.—A meeting of the Directors of the Agricultural Society of Trenton was held at Marlboro on Monday, the 7th inst., when it was decided to hold the Annual Exhibition at Shannondale on Wednesday, Oct. 16th, thus ignoring the Show which was held on Saturday last.

AN INTELLECTUAL TREAT.—Prof. Vandenhoff, Jr., the eminent Author and Elitist, will deliver a choice selection of Dramatic Readings and Recitations from the great masters of British and American literature, on Friday evening, October 11th, at Nelson's Hall. Mr. Vandenhoff's programme may be seen in another column.

The Kingston Whig states that Mr. Stephen Richards, Commissioner of Crown Lands for the Province of Ontario, has no intention of resigning his Commission, but will take his seat in Parliament shortly after the Legislature assembles.

Editorial Summary.

—The closing of the Universal Exhibition remains due for the 31st of October.
—No case of cattle plague was reported from any part of Great Britain for the week ending September 14th.

—There was a marked increase in the height of French conscripts between the years 1851 and 1861.

—The Grand Lodge of the I. O. of Good Templars will hold its annual session at Naples, commencing on Tuesday, 17th, inst.

—Jefferson Davis, ex-President of the Southern Confederacy, has taken up his residence in Toronto.

—The French population in Nova Scotia has increased forty per cent. in ten years without the aid of immigration.

—A new style of bonnet has made its appearance in Paris. It is a twist string with a diamond set in the top.

—As the quickest way to make a fortune, a contemporary suggests marrying a fashionable young lady and selling her jewels.

—The Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago, have just dedicated a row hall, the cost of which was $200,000.

—A new pill has been invented in Albany. It is made of India Rubber. One box cures a cold and renders your overcoat impervious to water.

—Some one says the best way for a man to train up a child in the way it should go, is to travel that way occasionally himself.

—In Trieste if a cholera patient does not call in medical attendance he is imprisoned for six months, in case he lives so long.

—The receipts at the New York State Fair at Buffalo, were $21,500, being larger than at any other previous fair.

—A buggy containing Mrs. Wm. Baxter, Mrs. Isaac Smith, and two children, of Chatham, upset in a culvert on Saturday. The children were killed and the women severely injured.

—The widow of Mansford, whom Butler hung at New Orleans for hauling down the national flag, is going to sue the General for $200,000 damages.

—No person who has lost any of his property by gambling within four months of his application, can receive the benefits of the new American bankruptcy law.

—Rev. T. K. Beecher, of Elmira, the brother of Henry Ward, believes in a larger beer as the element that should be introduced into the temperance reform, and billiards and bowling as a means of grace.

—The fishermen plying off Nereus Island, on the coast of England, have discovered about twelve hundred casks of fire gunpowder floating about. The value is estimated at £1,000.

—Farmers provide themselves with Perry Davis' Pain Killer. Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhea may disable your hands. Have the remedy at hand.

—We find the following in the St. John's Morning Journal, and merely give it as a rumor: It is said that New Brunswick will give a Governor to Ontario, in the person of a distinguished Judge, and it is known that General Doyle will be Governor of Nova Scotia.

—At Port Mandri, Greece, a French company are at present diligently smelting down the old scum, slag, and refuse from the ancient lead mines, and extracting as much as thirty tons of metal a day.

—The Nicholson pavement now being laid down in Mercer street, New York, took fire the other day from the boiling over of a pitch kettle, but was speedily extinguished by throwing sand over it. A similar occurrence took place in laying the pavement recently in Montreal.

—A correspondent of the Chicago "Tribune" says that Mr. Morrill has and his eyes opened by his trip to Europe, and recanted all his protectionism, avowing his intention to propose a material reduction of the tariff at the opening of the session. Readers will salt the story to their tastes.

—The Antis are writing bad poetry. On the walls of the Court House at St. John, they have chalked up the following beautiful couplet:

"Confederation! cursed rot!
May destruction be thy lot!

Another little warbler, in a poem called The Triumph, says:

You will banish for ever
Your oppressors with scorn;
You will show now and over Loud and long Freedom's horn.
Long may he toot!

—Referring to the suspension of Buchanan, Hope & Co., the Hamilton Spectator says: "From what we can learn from a reliable source, we have reason to hope that some arrangement may be arrived at for the speedy resumption of business. It is generally considered that the assets are large and that the creditors will not suffer very considerably."

—The London Free Press of Monday states that a strong company has been formed to sink another salt well at Maitlandville. Operations are to be commenced immediately, and the works prosecuted with vigor. A second block of kettles has been laid down at the Godrich Salt Well, and it is expected that the company will, in a very short time, be turning out 100 barrels of splendid salt per day.

A lady in Lowell, Mass., went into her cellar a few days ago, and while reaching for something in a barrel, suddenly fell and sprained her arm. She hastened up stairs and started at the fact to her family, agony of the woman, from the peculiar sensation created by the intruder, whom she thought was not that she was not mistaken, two or three drops of oil was procured, and in a moment, to the great relief of the lady, and the astonishment of those around her, a spider, the size of a common house fly made its appearance, evidently anxious to find better quarters.

A despatch from Aden, at the mouth of the Red sea, announces that the pioneer steamer of the expedition for the relief of the British captives in Abyssinia have sailed from that place for the Abyssinian coast.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—M. Achille Fould, the eminent statesman and financier, died last night at the age of 67 years. M. Fould was formerly Minister of Finance in the cabinet of the Emperor, and at the time of his death was a member of the senate.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Late advices from China report that a heavy typhoon had visited the harbor of Hong Kong, causing great injury to the shipping in port. Several vessels were driven ashore, and became total wrecks. Others were badly damaged and disabled, and the destruction among the Chinese crafts was very extensive. The shores being strewn for miles with the fragments.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The Tribune's Florence correspondent says of Garibaldi's arrest: Some 30 Carabinieri and two Companies of the 31st Regiment of the line surrounded the house at 4 o'clock a.m., arrested the master and all the guests, and shut the horses and coachmen in the stables, then the Lieutenant went to the General and said: "A letter for you." It was the order of arrest. Garibaldi said, "I suppose I can take my bath." The officer of the 31st refused, and carried him off just as he was, without a second shirt. A special train awaited them; they carried him near Florence. The rumor that the tidings had spread, orders were sent to convey him to Alexandria, where he now is.

The Turin Gazette states that the instructions given to the King's troops in Italy ordered him, in case they should discover any body of Garibaldi's men preparing to cross the frontier, to summon them to lay down their arms and return to the frontier. Should they refuse, the troops were to surround them and bar their passage. If a detachment. In reaching the Papal territory, the soldiers were to pursue them a certain distance, and endeavor to disarm them without having recourse to force.

FIRE and LIFE.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

THE principles on which this Company is founded contain all the elements required to develop the benefits of Life Insurance, and afford every facility to insuring assurance. One of the advantages secured by those who insure their lives with this Company is that the outside expenditure for Management is absolutely restricted by the fixed of benefit to Ten per Cent of the Net Life Income. This most important restriction shows that the interests of participating policy holders are closely watched and carefully attended to by the Company. Attention is especially called to this point, as the proportion of premiums expended for Management Must Largely Influence Profits and Bonuses.

The next division of profits takes place in 1898, and all those who wish to participate in the profits should insure at once.

THE GOLD MINING ACT OF 1864.

Repeals clause in Gold Mining Act of 1864, providing that no licence fees shall be exacted for exploring for gold until the previous metal is discovered.

Enacts that Tavern Licence provision in previous Act may be applied to territory covered by Mining Patents.

And that disputes between owners and lessees of Crown Lands in Gold Mining Division may be determined by officers of division.

INFERIOR METALS AND SALE OF MINERAL LANDS.

The following are the Regulations—

DEPARTMENT OF CROWN LANDS, Ottawa, 12th July, 1896.

REGULATIONS for the sale of Mineral Lands, as provided by His Excellency the Governor General in Council.

INFERIOR METALS.

1. That each regular mining tract in unsurveyed territory shall consist of blocks of two hundred or four hundred acres.

2. That the dimensions of each regular mining tract of four hundred acres be forty chains in front by one hundred chains in depth, and smaller tracts, except on lakes and rivers, in the same proportion. The bearings of the outlines to be North and South, and East and West respectively, in the unsurveyed territories of Upper Canada and parallel to the outlines of the townships elsewhere.

3. That mining tracts bordering upon lakes and rivers shall have their frontage upon such waters and shall be subject to all cases to the point rights in navigable or floatable waters, and that mining tracts, as situated, shall have a mean depth of one hundred chains back from such river or lake (exclusive of road allowance of one chain in width, which shall be reserved along the margin of such river or lake) in conformity with the above mentioned bearings.

4. That mining tracts in unsurveyed territory shall be surveyed by a Professional Surveyor, and connected with some known point in previous surveys (so that the bearings may be laid down and the tracts required) at the cost of the applicants, who shall be required to furnish with their application the surveyor's plan, field notes and descriptions thereof in accordance with the foregoing regulations, and to the satisfaction of the Department, and pay the price of one dollar per acre, into the Department of Crown Lands at the time of making application.

5. That in surveyed townships, lands presenting indications of minerals in soil on the above conditions, shall not be taken than one dollar per acre as aforesaid, and at the same price as the other lands in the township when it is more than one dollar per acre.

6. That mining lands in surveyed townships be sold by the local agents for cash, but all lands in unsurveyed territory shall be sold by the Department.

7. The above regulations do not apply to mining gold and silver.

8. That in selling the lands that mining lands discovered by the Department to be suitable for sale, as far as practicable, the Department shall discriminate between those lands for mining of precious metals and those for sale for other purposes, and the present prices and terms (subject to an increase to $2 an acre, under the option of $10 an acre, when actually worked for gold), and to the latter for one dollar an acre, shall be applied.

9. That in all Letters Patent for lands, the clause reserving "minerals of gold and silver be omitted."

10. All various regulations inconsistent with the above are hereby repealed.

A. CAMPBELL,

Commissioner.

The "Alabama" Claims

As we have every reason to believe that the correspondence recently published under this heading is not only entirely fictitious, but calculated seriously to mislead the public on this now very important question, it is with much pleasure we place before our readers what we can guarantee to be accurate copies of all the letters that have passed, or may be expected to pass, between the two Governments in reference to the question under dispute. We need scarcely add that we have them from an unquestionable source.

LETTER I.
MR. SEWARD TO MR. ADAMS.
SIR,—I guess you'll just tickle up that tarned old hons, the British Lion, di-rocker. Slice it on thick about them ships—their fixings, and their screws, and adverse me about the beast, slick,—I am, &c.
J. SEWARD.

LETTER II.

LORD STANLEY TO MR. SEWARD.

SIR,—Mr. Adams has this day communicated to me the substance of a despatch

LETTER III.

MR. SEWARD TO MR. ADAMS.

Sir,—Tell Stanley it's to hand, but the orkscrews and such like logic slaked u n molasses. Lay it on about them Fe ians and their doings, and how the Unite States of America corked 'em up, as the was about to gallop down John Bull. t queen, and hierarchy, like so many skinned hoisters.—Yours, &c., W. SEWARD.

LETTER IV.

LORD STANLEY TO MR. SEWARD.

SIR,—In my last despatch, I purpose abstained from making any observation

LETTER V.

MR. SEWARD TO MR. ADAMS

SIR,—Keep up the tickling. As much as he'll swallow—on and off—jist to look friendly and fondlin like, while you get a good ketch of his.—I am, &c., &c., Seward

LETTER VI.
LORD STANLEY TO MR. SEWARD.
SIR,—I very much regret that the explanations Her Majesty's Government have made, &c., &c.—I am, Sir, &c., STANLEY.

LETTER VII.

MR. SEWARD TO MR. ADAMS.

SIR,—If the curses won't stump or but with a snigger, but scowling-like, we whip 'em onto it. Always lie—till I a advertises you further. Twixt I and ye we means fittin' the beast.—I am, Sir, & &c., W. SEWARD.

LETTER VIII.

LORD STANLEY TO MR. SEWARD.

SIR,—After the very liberal offers His Majesty's Government have made, they must decline, &c., &c.—I am, Sir, &c., &c.

LETTER IX.

MR. SEWARD TO MR. ADAMS.

Sir, - Skeddadle. It's war. We've be driven 'em out and now we're using whip that beat into apple shavings, and feed the rest of Europe with the same. — m, sir, &c., W. Seward. — Tommy York.

A tender-hearted father, swearing to peace against his three sons, thus concluded: "The only one of my children who shows me any real filial affection is my youngest son, Ichabod, for he never strikes."

The secretary of the Chamber of Commerce reports the amount of wheat stored at Milwaukee at 148,000 bushels against 248,000 bushels last year. The ty mills drew from the elevators during the past week, about 14,887 bushels. The shipments from Milwaukee since the opening of navigation to September 18th are as follows: To Buffalo, 1,290,740 bushels; to Oswego, 288,837; to Cleveland, 188,322.

Toledo, 9,604; to Port Colborne, 38,233; to Ogdensburg, 283, 503; to Saginaw, 8,000; to Kingston, 206,801; to Montreal, 13,700; to Cape Vincent, 5,000; to St. Catharines, 43,745 bbls. &c.

THE OIL REGION.—A recent visitor of the oil region of Pennsylvania describes the resolution which reigns in a once famous locality. Between Oil City and Meadville not one well is in operation. It is only long line of rotting derricks and rusted boilers and engines. At Franklin, where the French creek empties into the Allegheny, they show with pride the great house that they are building, the tall mathe monument to the martyrs of the war and the tumbling down farmhouse of the Evans family. Three years ago, $100,000 were offered to this family for their house and ground. The offer was refused, as to the flush of sudden wealth, scorned her passionate lover, and cancelled her engagement to the estate, house, farm and all, will bring $1,000, the daughter pines for the bliss of her childhood, and the family can only remember, in their present misery, their former hope.

QUEEN INSURANCE COMPANY

CAPITAL, . . . $10,000,000.

FIRE and LIFE

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

THE principles on which this Company is founded contain all the elements required to develop the benefits of Life Assurance, and afford every facility to intending assureds. One of the advantages secured by those who insure their lives with this Company is that the outside expenditure for Management is absolutely restricted by the Deed of Settlement to Ten per Cent of the Net Life Income. This most important restriction shows that the interests of participating policyholders are closely watched and carefully attended to by the Company. Attention is especially called to this point, as the proportion of premiums expended for Management Must Largely Influence Profits and Bonuses.

The next division of profits takes place in 1898, and all those who wish to participate in the profits should insure at once.

County Council.

THIRD DAY.
THURSDAY, Oct 10th, 1887.
Council met this morning at 10 o'clock.
Present: His Honor the Warden, Hon
Mr. Flint, Messrs. Gahourie, Appleby
Frizzell, Anderson, Armstrong, Graham
Wood, Hamilton, Conley, Walker, Norman Orr, and Tumely.

The Warden reported that he had inquired of the County Solicitor, as to the matter of the Thurlow indebtedness. That he was informed that a writ had been issued and placed in the Sheriff's hands for collection, but the authorities of Thurlow got an injunction to stay proceedings. Notice had been given to the Reeve of Thurlow to attend this day, but he did not seem willing to take steps for collection.

Mr. Wood said the first thing to be done was to put the Treasurer in funds. The matter of Thurlow must be left in the hands of the Warden and Solicitor. The manager of the Commercial Bank had always met the requirements of the Council in some way for the credit of the County. The disadvantageous rumors, respecting the dis-mercial Bank which had got into circulation, he, Mr. Wood, in common with the other commercial men, entirely disbelieved, and thought them totally groundless. Since the account was transferred from the Bank of Montreal to the Commercial Bank, the County had been much better treated than before.

Mr. Appleby agreed with Mr. Woe remarks respecting the Commercial Bank and thought it only just to the other municipalities to enforce the settlement of Th low.

Mr. Flint said it was most desirable that a settlement of the Thurlow debt should be come to, as it was very unsatisfactory to the other municipalities. He thought it was only a sort mulish obstinacy on the part of the Th low Reeves as it was a just debt, and a repudiation on technical grounds, v highly discreditable to them, and amou ed to an act of bankruptcy, and a need act. Mr. Flint alluded to the conduct of a former Reeve of Thurlow, and said cloak had fallen on his successors; he wished to have the matter brought to a conclusion. Mr. F. thought the change of County account from the Bank of Montreal to the Commercial Bank was a great benefit to the County; he believed the basis of the Commercial Bank was as sound as that of the Bank of Montreal.

Mr. Frizzell thought a By-Law should be passed to put the Treasurer in funds. Mr. Graham said that it would hardly be necessary to pass a By-Law for acco-to law the taxes of this year must be collected before the middle of December, otherwise the Treasurers would make themselves liable.

The Warden stated that the Reeves the other municipalities had agreed to settle, and he wished to know what the Council of Thurlow intended to do.

Mr. Farleysaid they did not consider Thurlow owed anything. They had put the matter into the hands of an attorney and he wished them to deal with the attorney.

Mr. Farley said speeches had been spoken and motions made which had been

Mr. Wood claimed the same liberty as others which Mr. Farley took for himself. Mr. Flint said it reflected much discredit on the Council of Thurlow. The poor townships had paid their debts, and Thurlow had refused to pay. If Elze had to pay a portion of Thurlow's debt, they wanted to know it, and they would pay it like men.

Mr. Wood stated that the other municipalities explained their position, and pressed their intention to pay their debt as quickly as they could, while Thurston refused.

Mr. Flint said for any member to rise his place and tell the Council that he had

Mr. Farley said they had not repudiate. The Treasurer of Thurlow had offered $5 to the County Treasurer, and he refused.

The Warden said that the offer of $500 was good evidence that they considered themselves indebted.

Mr. Flint said the attempt to creep out of the payment of a just debt was very discreditable to the gentlemen connected with the Township of Thurlow, and placed them in the same position as a private person who took advantage of a legal quibble.

Mr. Farley said the Township of Thurlo was assessed in the year 1865 at $400,00

Break up of Mormonism

The recent disturbance among the Salt Lake Mormons, are regarded in England, from whence many Mormons have come, as a prophetic indication of a general break in Brigham Young's "Dynasty." The San Francisco Mail and Gazette, after arguing that the Mormon system contains the seeds of its own dissolution, affirms that the "same generation which has seen the growth of the most startling religious imposture of modern days is about to witness its collapse and utter abolition." It continues:

The report which reach us of the internal discussions of the chief men in the community, and of the rebellion of sundry disquiet spirits against the authority of the prophet are not only full of details, but they are so exactly what might be looked for in the present stage of Mormonite history that we should scarcely be surprised if we were suddenly to learn that a formidable schism had actually taken place, and was ending in a civil war.

displaced body of people in the whole western world. That such a schism, ending in a total disruption of the whole Mormonite body, is sooner or later a practical certainty, is, in truth, hardly to be doubted by any reasonable person who will take the trouble to compare the phenomena and position of Mormonism with the history of two religious communities to which it bears the most striking resemblance—that is, Judaism and Mohammedanism—for the former of which indeed, it undoubtedly supplies

he occurred at Sydney Heads. The ship "Strathdon," from London, wanted a pilot and pilot Robinson went off to board her in his whaleboat, with four hands. A heavy gale was blowing from the south-east, and on getting clear of the land the boat was at once capsized by a heavy sea. Mr. Robinson, Green, brother of the champion sculler, pulled to his assistance, and got the five ten into his boat. Pilots Reeder, Shank and Jenkins put off in their boats to the rescue; but the boat of the latter was the only one that lived in the fearful sea runn- ing. Jenkins got ten into his boat, and two others held on to her sides and were towed into smooth water. Pilots Robinson and Reeder and five of their crews were drowned. Mr. Green bravely declined to derive another man of a chance of salva-

to Jenkin's boat, offering rather to stick to the wreck of his own until the life-boat arrived; but ere the latter could reach him the heroic fellow was driven towards the towering cliffs of North Head, and as the boat, bottom up, reached the breakers, he was seen standing on her keel, waving his boat flag. An instant more the man had disappeared and fragments of timber which

THE RODMAN GUN.—The capabilities of the Rodman 15-inch American gun have been tested at Shooburyness in the presence of the Ordnance Select Committee. The 6-pounder was fired with 100lbs. of American cannon powder against the 8-inch target with the Warrior backing. In two places it passed completely through at range of 70 yards; but it is considered certain that our 8-inch plates have nothing to fear from the gun at any distance at which torts and ships are likely to engage. The English 9-inch gun, fired obliquely at the same target, gave some excellent results.

COLLISION.—The steamer Rochester on her last trip from Belleville to Oswego, came in collision with a schooner (name unknown) about twenty miles this side of the "Ducks." The boom of the schooner was carried away, but it being night the extent of the damage was not ascertained. The Rochester was forced to return to Belleville, where she arrived this forenoon in a disabled condition. The vessel and some other portions of the steamer received considerable injury. She will not resume her trips until repaired.

Meeting of the Medical Convention.

The Medical Convention met at Quebec on the morning of the 9th inst., delegates from all parts of the Dominion attending. Dr. Russell, of the Quebec Medical Society was appointed chairman. A resolution for forming a Canadian Medical Association for the advancement of medical science was unanimously adopted.

The following are elected officers of the association.

PRESIDENT.—Hon. Dr. Tupper, O.E.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.—For the Province of Quebec, Dr. Pelletier, Montreal; for Ontario, Dr. Hodder, Toronto; for Nova Scotia, Dr. Black, Halifax; for New Brunswick, Baron L. Botsford, St. John.

SECRETARIES.—For the Province of Quebec, Dr. Hingston, Montreal; for Ontario, Dr. Canfield; for Nova Scotia, Dr. DeWolfe; for New Brunswick, Dr. Harding.

TREASURER.—Dr. Russell, Quebec.

GENERAL SECRETARY.—Dr. Bellevue.

The proceedings were conducted very harmoniously. Two hundred delegates were present.

The promenade concert given in honor of the delegates came off on Wednesday, and was a brilliant success.

The Medical Association resumed their deliberations on Thursday morning, at 9; President in the chair. A large number of important Committees were appointed to form a Constitution and By-Laws, and carry out the objects of the Convention; to report at the next meeting which is to take place at Montreal in September next.

In the afternoon the members of the Association were entertained at the Bedford Asylum in a most sumptuous manner. Toasts were drunk and responded to in brilliant speeches. The President, Dr. Tupper, was most happy in his remarks.

A Sell.

The literary community of Belleville was badly sold yesterday evening. For some time past flaming placards were to be seen on the walls announcing that Geo. Vandenhoff, Jr., the celebrated elocutianist, would give the people of Belleville a night, and the programmes freely distributed and advertised in the papers promised a rare and rich treat. Few stopped to enquire who this Vandenhoff was, whether he was the "great original," or his nephew upon whose shoulders the mantle of the elder had fallen. He was a Vandenhoff, and the name was sufficient to draw a house. It was a dark, dismal evening; it had been raining hard all day, and threatened to rain harder as night came on. But this was no damper to the enthusiasm of the admirers of Vandenhoff. They flocked to the hall in large numbers; they came from all parts of the Town, even from its remotest limits. They filled the hall and, waited anxiously to drink in the eloquence which was to come from the renowned and gifted George Vandenhoff, Jr. But 8 o'clock came and there was no Vandenhoff; a quarter past eight and no Vandenhoff. The ticket agent in the meantime had collected a nice pile of quarters and half dollars showed signs of great uneasiness, and became edgily and significant shivers and nods were visible in the crowd, which speedily changed to something still more significant in the shape of rough old sawn words. To the question of the whereabouts of Vandenhoff, he said he was at his hotel and he expected him every moment. It was very strange he did not appear, he was said to be at the tavern over the way, but this request the crowd, the greater part of whom began to "sneak a peek," were not disposed to grant, and he was very politely advised to return into the ticket office and disgorge. Discretion was the better part of valor, and he quietly submitted to the fate which appeared to be against him. Having settled one or two bills out of the receipts, he told the victims he would pay out all he had, and those were fortunate who were first at the wicket, for the funds soon became short, and he could not satisfy the whole. Threats of lynching, ducking, riding on a rail, &c., were freely indulged in, but still the crowd kept their good humor, and after an hour or so he was allowed to depart. A warrant was in the meantime got out for him, for obtaining money under false pretences, and he was taken before the Police Magistrate, who committed him until this forenoon for examination. When he was brought up this morning, it was discovered that there was an informality in the warrant. The information was amended, and after taking the evidence of one or two witnesses, the further investigation of the case was postponed until Monday.

North Hastings Fair and Cattle Show.

On Wednesday, the 9th inst., the annual Fair and Cattle Show for the North Riding of the county of Hastings, was held at the Town Hall, Huntingdon. The weather was propitious and the turn out fair, upon the whole, the Fair was creditable, though nothing in comparison to what it should have been, for a large and wealthy agricultural county like North Hastings. The truth is these fairs instead of representing the whole Riding are too often confined to exhibitors from the Township in which they are held, and those immediately adjoining, hence the limited number of animals on exhibition every year. The present year is not an exception, nor is North Hastings. Those in the South are, taking everything into consideration, more defective than its less pretentious neighbors.

Blood cattle with a pedigree, it will be seen by the Premium List, were not represented. The grades, comprising a cross between a Durham and Galway, with a few natives, comprised the exhibition in this department, of which there were some fine specimens; but in order to keep them up it will be necessary to introduce new blood.

The show of Horses was very good, though thought not to be so extensive as that of last year. There were, however, a number of noble animals exhibited, and some young stock which bid fair to rival any in the County. We are glad to see that our farmers are paying attention to the breed of their horses, and that the different classes are becoming more definitely defined.

In sheep, the show was not large though there were specimens, which show the interest taken in procuring the best of stock, and one or two which would have compared with those of our best breeders in the South. Too much attention cannot be paid to this branch by our agriculturists. The wool trade is assuming an importance which will justify more attention, and a greater outlay of capital in procuring the best breeds of sheep, than has hitherto been given to it.

Of Swine we can say little, the competition being so limited. There were, however, a couple of specimens of the large breed, port Yorkshire, which would have carried off prizes, had they been in Kingston at the late Provincial Fair.

The exhibition in the Domestic Manufacture Department was a credit to the County, and exceeded in number and variety, the Fair in Belleville. We shall not attempt to particularize, but can safely say, that almost every article in this Department was of a superior quality.

The Fine Arts was not well represented. Still there were a few specimens, showing that while the more substantial and useful receive the most attention, the ornamental is not forgotten.

There were some very fine varieties of Summer, Fall and Winter Apples, and Pears. A little more attention to the culture of these fruits would pay well.

The Dairy was better represented than upon former occasions. In North Hastings, and some excellent samples of Butter shown. The Cheese shown was far superior to that on show last year, showing great improvement in the manufacture of this article of food. A capital specimen from the Tweed Factory was also on exhibition. In the connection we may mention that the importance of this branch of trade has induced the people in the vicinity of the Town Hall, Huntingdon, to commence the erection of a Cheese Factory adjoining the Town Hall, three stories high, which will be ready by next spring.

The show of grain was good in every respect, as was also that of roots. The latter, considering the season, were remarkably fine, far exceeding those shown at the South Hastings Fair.

We were pleased to see that our Agriculturists are introducing more extensively labor saving machines. The show in this respect was decidedly in advance of former years. There was a new portable Cider Mill, or Wine press, imported by Mr. Thomas Graham, deserving of special mention. It is adapted to almost every purpose in extracting juice from Apples or Rhubarb. Mr. Graham has this year made, with this press, over 4000 gallons of Rhubarb wine, and can manufacture 200 gallons of cider per day with it. It is a hand power.

The handwork of the delicate fingers of the fair portion of the Riding was well represented in the Fancy work department. There were many exhibitions of skill and taste seldom surpassed.

The Judges having completed their labor the Secretary read out the names of the successful competitors as follows:

recovery possession of Lot 25 in the second concession of Thurlow. It appeared, upon evidence that Farrell had been in possession of the lot in question for a period of a half-year, and as a tenant at sufferance, the lot was awarded to him by the court. The lot having been given by Farrell's attorney in March last to the tenant dispossessed. John McCormick abandoned the place and John McCormick, the defendant, son of John McCormick, took possession, as the plaintiff alleges, with his father's consent, and under his lease. The action was brought to oust Lawrence McCormick. Evidence was produced by plaintiff to show that notice was served upon John McCormick in spring and that he was allowed to remain until the party who purchased wanted possession. On behalf of the Defendant, John McCormick was put into the witness box, and swore that when he was served with the notice, nothing was said by the parties about his remaining; that he abandoned the place, leaving two of his daughters and a son, Daniel on the premises. He did not give permission to the Defendant or any of his children to remain and hold the place. Defendant contended that for the lot mentioned in the lease, 25 in the 2nd concession, no patent had been issued, but that the only patent that had been issued was for 25 in the 3rd concession. It was contended for the Defendant that from this lot there was the depth of two concessions to the front, and that lot 25 was reckoned as the boundary for the 2nd, and on the other boundary it was reckoned in the 3rd concession.

Mr. Jellist addressed the Jury for the Defendant, and Mr. Gilbert on behalf of the Plaintiff. Verdict for Plaintiff, B. Gilbert for Plaintiff, S. Lazier and R. P. Jellist for Defendant.

MURPHY vs. GRAHAM.—An action to obtain possession of the hotel kept by Hugh Graham in Belleville, for the purpose of re-leasing it. Plaintiff had no written lease with the former tenant, Grant, who had sub-let to Graham, and the object of the suit was to fix the time of lease and the amount of rent paid, so that at a future Assize Plaintiff could sustain action.

JAMES GRANT, sworn.—I rented the premises in question from Mr. J. Murphy, about seven or eight years ago; think it was eight years. I went into possession on the 25th of February, and commenced paying rent from that date. I paid $10 a year in quarterly payments. I sub-let the premises to Donald McDonald, and to Hugh Graham, the Defendant. I rented it to Graham for one year from the 1st of February. My year expires on the 1st of February. The understanding when I rented it was that I was to have it for five or ten years. This closed the case and Plaintiff accepted a non-suit. Verdict for Plaintiff, Jellist for Defendant.

ARMSTRONG vs. FITZGERALD.—In this case, which was half tried on Thursday, it was found that some of the jurymen were on other juries, and the principal witness being in Court, His Lordship directed another jury to be called. Mr. Jellist, as counsel for the defence, objected, as the first jury were called to try a special issue, and having gone into the case they must finish it; and further, as some of the jurymen were not present, they could not be discharged. His Lordship noted the objections, but allowed a jury to be called. Plaintiff claimed possession of Lot 18 in the 4th concession of Hamilton, the deed of which was alleged to have been lost by the burning of Armstrong's house in Madoc. Evidence was produced to show that the property in question had been sold to Donald McDonald, and to Donald McDonald, and to McDonald to Armstrong. The deed was believed to have been lost at the fire, and evidence showed that previous to the fire the deed in question had been seen in the house, and that several valuable papers had been burned in the house. It was shown that plaintiff, so far back as 1848, had been in possession of the lot as his own lot. It was alleged, for the defence, that the land had been sold for taxes, that the title was not produced, and that there was not sufficient evidence of destruction of deed. Verdict for Plaintiff.

L. Wallbridge, Q.C., for plaintiff, R. P. Jellist and Geo. D. Dickson for defendant.

The Court adjourned until Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

FIFTH DAY.

SATURDAY, October 12th.

ADAM H. MEYERS vs. EDWARD R. L. WALLBRIDGE.—This was an action of ejectment, and being the first on the docket, when called on Plaintiff not being ready, he withdrew his record.

ADAM HENRY MEYERS vs. JOANNA FRANKETT, ET AL.—An action of ejectment made remanent by consent.

GEORGE O'NEIL STEWART vs. CALK P. RICK, ET AL.—An action of ejectment. The day was sworn. The Plaintiff's counsel in his opening address to the jury, opened his case on a different title from that attached to the record, upon which Defendant's counsel moved for a non-suit. Plaintiff then renewed an application made at an earlier part of the court to set up another line of title. Defendant opposed on affidavit. The Judge allowed an additional line of title, putting off cause to another court, upon payment of the costs of the day.

CRANKE vs. HUFFMAN et al.—This action was brought by the plaintiff, who is now in possession of the grist mill and premises in the village of Frankfort, against the defendant, who are in possession of the woollen factory in said village. Both the grist mill and factory are worked by the water of Cock Creek. The plaintiff claims that he is entitled to the first right of the water of said stream for the purpose of working his grist mill, and that the defendants diverted the water, and alleged that they are entitled to the first right of water for the purpose of working their woollen factory, to the extent sufficient to turn one water wheel. Both parties claim to be entitled to their alleged rights, through title derived from one Charles Marsh.

A verdict for the plaintiff of $100 by consent, subject to the opinion of the Court upon a special case.

Deas & Gilbert, Attorneys, and Mr. Bell, Q.C., counsel for plaintiffs. Diamond & Dickson for defendants.

WILLIAM MCKENZIE vs. WILLIAM BARTON.—Action of seduction. Plaintiff withdrew his record.

The business of the Court this morning came to a speedy termination in consequence of the records being withdrawn. His Lordship thanked the jury for their attention to business during the present Court, and discharged them.

Telegraphic News.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

LONDON, Oct. 11, evening.—Judges Blackburn and Malins have been appointed by the Crown to sit as a Special Commission for the trial of the persons implicated in the riot at Manchester.

GHENT, Oct. 11.—The Bien Publicque of this city says Cardinal Antonelli has addressed a circular despatch to foreign powers, in which he charges the Italian Government with actual contrivance in the revolutionary movements against Rome.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 11.—Campbell & Son, brokers, have suspended payment.

The steamships Russia and Jawa, from New York, and the St. George, from Quebec, have arrived out.

The third day of the Newmarket second Oct. meeting concluded with some very exciting events. The 500 sovereigns sweepstakes was won by Phipponier; Hermit second. Yesterday, the fourth day, was still more exciting, the famous French horse Longchamps beating Hermit.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Admiral Farragut was the guest of the Prince de Joinville at Clarendon yesterday. The United States squadron with Admiral Farragut, will visit Portsmouth this week, after which the whole fleet will proceed to sea.

ROME, Oct. 11.—The insurgent and invading parties in the province of Viterbo have concentrated at Frosino, where they have thrown up entrenchments. Many other places in the Roman territory have also been occupied by the Garibaldians. Several detachments of Pontifical troops have been sent to dislodge them, and the garrison within the walls of Rome is at present very small. A strong papal force has left Rome to prevent the junction of Menotti Garibaldi and the men under his command with the insurgents at Frosino. The plan of the Garibaldians seems to be to draw the soldiers of the Pope away from Rome, and thus give their friends in that city an opportunity to rise.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Three iron-clads have been despatched from Woolwich to the Irish coast.

Intelligence has been received from China that the rebels are meeting with success and seriously threaten the city of Peking.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—The Standard, in its issue of to-day, publishes a letter, which it declares to be genuine, addressed by the Emperor to the Marquis de La Fayette, his Minister of the Interior, and written in August, 1871. In this letter the Emperor explicitly denies that he has any desire to interfere with or profit by the reconstruction of Germany.

LONDON, Oct. 11, midnight.—Despatches have been received this evening from Paris, which state that the affairs in Italy are very grave. It is the general belief that the whole nation will follow the Emperor in his patriotic effort to retain Rome to Italy. King Victor Emmanuel will soon pass the Roman frontier and proclaim Rome as part of the Kingdom.

PARIS, Oct. 11, evening.—It is announced that the Emperor will return here on Tuesday. The Bourne is heavy, and Rentes declining.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Reports from Paris say that Napoleon complains of the delay of the Austrian Government in completing the military reorganization for the Empire.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Arrangements have at length been completed for a meeting between the Emperor Napoleon and the King of Prussia at an early day, and the city of Baden has been fixed upon as the place where the interview is to take place.

The Press says that the Pope, while confident of the ability of his forces to successfully resist the straggling parties of invaders, greatly fears that the Italian Government will yield to the popular outcry and order its troops, now concentrated upon the Papal frontiers, to march upon Rome and occupy the city.

American Despatches.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The President to-day issued an order remitting the sentence of the Court Martial in the case of the sixteen soldiers tried at Buffalo last summer for attending a Fenian picnic in Fenian uniform, and sentenced to forfeit two months' pay.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Much talk is found with the selection by the Foreign Office of Mr. Edward Thornton, now Minister at Washington, to represent the British Government at Washington. The opinion is expressed that none but a diplomat of the highest rank should be sent to the United States to fill the post occupied by the late Sir Frederick Bruce.

A despatch from Antwerp reports petroleum fired at 38 francs per barrel for standard white.

DUBLIN, Oct. 13.—The apprehension of another Fenian landing, caused by reports that suspicious vessels had been seen hovering off the shore of Kerry and other portions of the Irish coast, are subsiding. The war vessels which have been guarding the southern part of the Irish coast for some time past, will be withdrawn, with the exception of one or two iron-clads.

FLORENCE, Oct. 13.—Garibaldi has named his son, Menotti, generalissimo of the revolutionary forces engaged in the movement at Rome. The reports from the South are unfavorable to the party of action. They state that the bands of invaders have been driven over the frontier by the Papal troops, and have been compelled to give up their arms to the national forces.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The mercantile house of T. J. Roll has suspended payment.

LONDON, Oct. 13, noon.—The Times, in a leading article, denies that Earl Derby has resigned his position as the head of the Ministry, or that he contemplates doing so.

BELT, Oct. 13, noon.—The North German Gazette, a semi-official organ in this city, and which is believed to reflect in some degree the views of Bismarck, says it is firmly convinced of the sincerity of the French Emperor's desire for peace.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 13, evening.—It is stated that the liabilities of Campbell & Son will reach £250,000.

The Fenian alarm still continues. The police to-day made a descent on an establishment which was used as the headquarters of the Fenian Brotherhood in this city, and arrested six persons accused of Fenianism. A rising was feared at Limerick, but precautions were taken by the Government to prevent it.

THE RECENT GALE—VESSELS WRECKED—LOSS OF LIFE.

NEWARK, Oct. 13.—The barge "Pacific," loaded with lumber from Grand Haven to Chicago, was struck by a gale six miles out on Wednesday night, and dashed to pieces on the shore. The crew perished.

SANDUSKY, Oct. 13.—The schooner "Mary Elizabeth," loaded with lumber, from Detroit for Buffalo, is reported to have gone down last night. Six men and a boy were on board. The mate was saved.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 13.—A duel was fought near here this morning, between Col. B. F. Farrow and Major O'Connor. The affair was settled after an exchange of shots.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—Mike McCall, the pugilist, has challenged any man in America, particularly Joe Coburn, to fight for $10,000 or less.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The steamer "City of Baltimore," from Liverpool, has arrived.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The Commercial says the failure of Roll & Co., cotton brokers, London and Liverpool, with branches in New York, creates much uneasiness among foreign bankers. There is an utter want of confidence in Liverpool assets.

Arrival of the "New York."

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—By the arrival of the steamer New York, from Bremen on the 29th ult. and Southampton on the 1st instant, two days' later mail advices are received. The news has mostly been anticipated by Cable.

Intelligence from Candia announces that the French, Russian, Italian, Prussian and Austrian vessels continue to transport Cretan families to Greece. Fifty thousand persons have already left Candia. The fight between Greeks and Turks continues.

POPULAR SENTIMENT ABOUT FENIANISM.—A circumstance has just taken place in Barnaby which shows very strongly the feeling of the working classes on the subject of Fenianism. A young man, the employer of Messrs. G. J. Taylor and Son, manufacturers, declared to some of his fellow workers in the warehouse that he was a Fenian, and that his sympathies were with the cause of those who had figured conspicuously a few years ago at Manchester. This declaration had no sooner been made than a jury was empanelled, and the self-declared Fenian put upon his trial. He was found guilty, and sentenced to be hanged. A rope was placed round his neck, and he was drawn up and suspended.

The Collision.

The collision between the Rochester and the unknown schooner on Friday night, was more serious than reported on Saturday. From particulars received to-day, we obtain the following additional information. The collision took place about two o'clock on Saturday morning, when the Rochester was about twelve miles out into the Lake, off from what is known as the "Ducks." It was a bright moonlight night.

The Rochester was steaming in her usual course to Oswego, when the lock-out discovered on the starboard a black schooner bearing down at full speed, apparently going at the rate of twelve knots an hour. She was then not far off from the vessel, and directions were given to the wheelman to change the steamer's course so as to avoid the schooner. The orders were obeyed, but according to the statement of the lock-out the schooner also changed its course, and in a moment or two more struck the Rochester at the forward gangway, making a complete wreck of the forward part of the schooner, tearing away over twenty feet of the guard in length, and plunging into the middle of the deck, some part of the schooner's rigging making a deep indentation into the mast as high up as the promenade deck. The wheel house was torn to pieces and the wheelman knocked down, but he bravely stuck to his post until the danger was over. The room of the assistant engineer was torn to pieces and so was the state room of the purser on the promenade deck, both of whom were in their berths at the time, and their escape from instant death is almost a miracle. Such was the damage to the steamer that the Captain determined to put back to Belleville, at which port he arrived on Saturday forenoon. A portion of the rigging of the schooner is on board the Rochester, and from its description some have supposed the schooner to be the Bella of Hamilton. Immediately after the collision she was hailed by the steamer but made no reply, and nothing has been heard of her since.

BRIDGEWATER, Oct. 10.

The thunderstorm that passed over here this morning has done considerable damage to the telegraph. Fifteen poles were struck and completely shivered by the electric fluid. The wires were melted in five different places, and fifty or sixty feet were blown five or six rods away, and the galvanized coating could be rubbed off so much so. One hemlock tree was struck and shattered, and the earth torn for a considerable distance, and one tree close by the wires was entirely stripped of its bark, all this within a mile of here. It is expected the line will be put in working order by to-morrow night. In the office, although the operator had carefully shut off the connection with the battery, the lightning has done some mischief, which nearly resulted in a fire, the wall paper near the wires having been scorched and blackened, and one small piece torn off, and some papers which were left the night previous in a spring clip hanging on the wall, were found in the morning scattered on the floor. I am happy to say that beyond this I have heard of no other accidents, though all agree that it was a terrible storm.

In gold matters we are still progressing. A great quantity of gold-bearing quartz has been sent out to the amount of some hundreds of tons. The Lin B. Flint has commenced erecting a crushing machine near the Carleton mine. It will have six eight hundred pound stamps, and all energy in being, will get it rapidly completed, where all the quartz on land will be subjected to the crushing process. Messrs. Harrison and Breese are now working a third mine. There is a company working on "Lot No. 4," in the sixth section, they intend to run a galley for a crushing machine for themselves when they have got a good load. I told you some time ago that they were getting up a crusher at the Barry mine; this will soon be completed, and the Keller mine they have lost the lead, but have found it again, and it promises to be exceedingly rich. Mr. Walton has also commenced another mine, which he has every confidence will soon be giving a good return for the outlay. He showed quite a nice sample of gold today which he had washed out of two pans of dirt.

On Tuesday last business was suspended during most of the latter part of the day, on account of the funeral of Mr. Robert Nelson, late Foreman to the Hon. Billings Flint, and a much respected member and class-leader of the Wesleyan Methodist Church. The funeral service was preached by the Rev. Thos. Cullen, and though the body of the church was full, there was scarcely a dry eye to be seen. The gallies were draped with black, and everything done that could be done to show the esteem in which he was held. He will be greatly missed here, not only as a useful member in the church, but also as a kind and affectionate friend, who to once know was to respect always, and many besides his bereaved family will feel that one has gone from their midst whom they deeply loved.

Sir.—I notice in your report of the proceedings of the Town Council held on the 1st inst., that Mr. Holden, the member for Baldwin Ward, intimated a wish to know "by what authority I placed my vacation as an Auditor, as my name did not appear among those who had received nominations." Now, Mr. Editor, were I to allow such an unfounded statement to pass current, it would be not only a stain upon my character, but calculated to injure me materially in the estimation of the public. I would therefore state for Mr. Holden's information, and that of the Town Council, that upon an order and that of the Hon. Mr. Holden, in the last year, I shall have been five years in Belleville, "plying my vocation," as the members of the Council have been pleased to term it, during which time I have frequently paid my license as an Auditor. Why Mr. Holden did not state this in his speech, I know not, but his books, and likewise his receipts for my license, will bear me out, and I will speak for myself. Yours respectfully, A. KUTTS, Licensed Auditor.

Daily Intelligencer.

THE "MORAVIAN."—The steamer Moravian passed Father Point at 2 o'clock this morning.

CROPS IN BRITAIN.—A telegram appears in the New York papers which says the information received at the Treasury Department states that the wheat crop of Great Britain will fall short in quality and quantity this year.

LACROSSE.—The members of the Lacrosse Club, and all those wishing to become members, are requested to attend a meeting of the Club at Hamby's, on to-morrow evening, the 15th inst.

ACKNOWLEDGED.—The Madoc Mercury of the 12th inst. says, in reply to our strictures upon its former remarks: "If the Mercury is really such a 'very small' affair, why, in the name of common sense, did he take the slightest notice of it?" It is not the Mercury, it is one of the mistakes that Editors sometimes make, and we will endeavor in future not to fall into the same error.

PREPARING FOR WAR.—The Berlin correspondent of the London Times confirms the report that France is provisioning her fortresses on her German frontier, and that she is preparing for the navigation of the Rhine. France, on her part, is not idle. She is iron plating all her harbors on the Rhinish frontier, and recently ordered a number of railway carriages for the transport of the sick and wounded.

ACCIDENT TO THE MAZET.—The steamer Mazet struck a rock on Saturday, in passing through the Galopie Rapids, near Edwardsburg, about seventy miles below Kingston. A bolt was shot from the forward compartment, and she ran ashore. The cargo is not insured. The passengers were safely landed. It is expected she will be got off easily next week.

POSTAGE.—The Toronto correspondent of the Hamilton Spectator says: "It is said that the General Government have resolved to charge the various local governments with postage upon all their correspondence; and as this will be somewhat heavy drain upon their resources, it was determined to do to issue a notice, requiring all correspondence with the department to be prepared. This step will, under the circumstances, be admitted to be a highly proper one."

VANDERHOFF'S AGENT.—The agent of the so-called George Vanderhoff, Jr., Mr. John F. Webster, was brought before the Police Magistrate again this morning, and evidence was taken to show what connection he had with Vanderhoff. After hearing several witnesses, the case was further postponed until Wednesday morning, to obtain the Magistrate's decision upon some points of law.

NATIONAL LIBRARY AND MUSEUM.—Remarks having been made by strangers on the absence of a good public library in Montreal, the Telegraph has been the means of moving for the establishment of one. The chief city of the Dominion should certainly possess one, and in these days necessary, an institution. It is quite time that the foundation of a national collection of books should be laid, which, with the geological museum now advancing in value, would form a nucleus for a historical and industrial museum which would not fall in the course of a few years, to become rich in interest.

Commercial Bank.

A very foolish panic has taken possession of a number of our farmers, and a few others, in reference to the solvency of the Commercial Bank of Canada, and consequently a small run has been made upon the Bank for the past few days, causing some annoyance, if nothing more, to the Bank officers. We have been frequently asked if the billiard was good. The best answer we can give is that any number will be given to the office, at whatever premium bills will command over silver.

The Commercial Bank is the only institution in the County assisting our grain buyers and merchants to bring forward their grain, and anything done to cripple their resources will tell against the farmer more than any other class of people. The best evidence that the Bank is perfectly solvent, is that every business man in the County has full confidence in it, and continue to do their business and make their deposits there. People need have no fear; the Bank is perfectly safe.

and ferocity struggling for the mastery—a premonition of the latter—a man ready for revolutions and stratagems, with intellect enough to fill any position from President down to hangman—that is Ramon Corona, one of the three prominent generals of the war; the other two who sided with French troops of Hermosillo, put all citizens to the sword, burnt the place, and piled on the flames and ruins the dead bodies of the slain. Corona is the hero of the Havanna of the Pacific. He is without position in the new Government and chafes like a tiger in his disappointment. The Indian President (or dictator) will not make many such blunders, or his hold upon the affections of the people is uncertain for a month, and the elements that lifted him to power, treacherous, and, as unstable as sands under a drifting tide. The West has nominated Corona for President of the superior Court of Justice. The balmy evening air has drawn out the notable men; for here comes the outlaw of the Rio Grande—the robber chief and murderer; the lawless scourge of the north-eastern border; the man who can scarcely read, whose body and soul can be purchased for gold and booty. Once a filibuster, his hand against every man, now a gallant and white patriot of the victorious Liberal party. It is Corona. His companions evidently feel ill at ease in his company; for if there is one more honest than the other in that group, it is Escobedo. He is perhaps less unscrupulous than his brother officers. His step is steady, his eye, one not soon forgotten; his profile symmetrical and handsome, head fine, lips thin, carriage proud, arm straight and white, and he speaks what he thinks, and means what he says. But his education has been neglected, his life passed in camps, with the worst associations, the worst possible military teachers. This taken together with the Mexican blood in his veins, and the hot liquor in stomach, one may easily conceive that in a savage, drunken mood he counselled extermination of all foreigners, and indulged in horrible speeches over the grave of the dead Emperor. Escobedo is the third in the trio of Liberal chiefs who figured most conspicuously during the war. He, too, was left without position when Juarez named his Cabinet. It is said his eyes flashed and his lips grew livid when he heard of this reward of his services. The profane denial he is said to have given: Mejia when solicited to act as his counsel, is barely possible. Mejia once saved his life, and he consented, before the execution of the unfortunate man, to become guardian for his only child. It is evident, from recent indications, that the incoming Government will meet many obstacles in restoring order and settling itself. Money is needed to set the machinery going, but with an empty treasury and meagre revenue, what is there to appease the clamors of the discontented? Eulianism there is none anywhere—less, indeed, in the capital than elsewhere. Disrespectful language, expression in multitudes words, opinions not always flattering to Juarez are uttered without hesitation, and bold condemnation is applauded in the saloons of the capital. It must not be forgotten, however, that because madmen and irresponsible soldiery clamored for the Emperor's blood, that the act of shooting him was approved by the respectable portion of the nation. On the feast of the last letter class you see the blurb of disapproval in the columns of the city you see the drapery of mourning and hear, when the city is asleep, weeping and laments for those who have fallen—those butchered without trial and law. Editors need not be ignorant of the cause they are writing for. They are asked to ask why our "people are so angry." They know the cause. People seem sick of outrage and executions. If a vote were taken to-day in the capital, it would reveal the fact that three-fourths of the people are opposed to the Juarez Government. But the destiny of Mexico must soon be decided. The question of "to be or not to be" cannot long remain in doubt. The impression of the leading men, civil or military, is that the present state of things must develop into national permanency or non-existence.

On paper, Mexico has an army now in service of 90,000 men. In view of the grave national questions and dangers, it is considered impolitic to disband it. Some propose to organize a force to distribute the mass throughout the Republic. The rout of the Imperial armies has not disposed entirely of internal troubles. Already a division has been moved in the State of Guadalajara to suppress an insurrection there. Vega (anti-Juarez) threatens Colima with an armed force, and the State of Tamaulipas, now in part overrun by the troops of the defunct and daring Canales, is as much a separate republic as that over which Juarez presides. The army itself is split into factions and ripe for revolt. A few days since a bloody action was fought near the city, the division of Alvarez and Yimenes participating. The battle raged for hours, with heavy loss. It would be deemed a fabrication were I to name the number of Liberal officers now actually in prison for mutiny and insubordination. It is a notable fact that some of the generals, as many colonels, sentenced to shot have not been executed. The shooting was to have taken place two days from the date of sentence, but twenty days have elapsed and they yet live. An order went up to Queretaro some two weeks ago, to suspend the executions. This is a very un-Mexican proceeding. Is the best spirit appeased? The statement made I or has the storm of universal indignation and horror tapped the courage of the bloody victors? It is known, too, that American officers, who served in the Liberal army have been moving in the matter, denouncing the policy as unwarranted; protesting, and lately threatening. Of curious significance now in this intensely democratic country is the issue of "decrees" by the President, and dated at the "palace." These lingering vestiges of monarchy are not the least of the most flattering to the great commoner of the Southern Republic—[N. O. Pichayue.

The Fenian Outrage in England

The London Evening Star in its "Readings by Starlight," speaking of the Fenian out-

"Kelly, I will die for you!" Such earnest protestation, to be carried out to the letter—for in good truth, the insane young fellow will amount to a prophecy—is not often heard of in these unromantic days. These words will add something of a glory to the gloomy theatrical settings of Fenianism although uttered a murderous escapade, in which a stout, middle-aged policeman, doing his duty in that grand prosaic English way of his, and refusing to give up his keys even at the barrel of a revolver, lost his life. But we doubt whether pale before the reality of Sergeant Brett's wife and daughter weeping in the court, wailing as those who had lost their all in this world. Mr. O'Meara Allen, Irish, age 20 "impartially educated"—therein whole story is told—has presumed to set up as a judge between England and Ireland and not only to take one valuable life in cowardly way, but to shoot horses, wound bystanders, and to fire in a Bobadil, bra-

To sum up, we cannot do better than quote one of those wise occasional notes, which containing the pith of a leading article the lines distinguish the Spectator: "The Fenians will not let us off without hauling some of them. They turn up in the most improbable places, and insult society large in little groups of desperate men bent on perfectly insane and useless murder."

Exactly so; blood-shedding is a sad resort but these uneducated assassins should use the example we have set them. We spared them in Ireland, although they took more than one life: they won't spare us.

England. It will be a case for the gallows and the cord; only let the victims remember that they hang themselves. Tu veux, Georges Dandin? Unemployed and belicose tailors, with a fringe of rage and untaught loafers of American-birth and blundering impetuosity, can-be allowed to make war on society with perfect impunity.

The wild and misunderstood stories

Robert Emmet; the ever-inculcated "Du est pro patria mori," the belief—a ridiculous one—that the pre-Anglican Ireland ever was a country with a government all, or that it could have resembled anything except our heptarchy when engaged in general scrimmage—these seem to manifest reflecting people to be the disturbers of the peace. At home in England the Irish gentlemen is estimable enough; the Irish workmen are honest, industrious; but there—well, perhaps one of the best ways of curing the plague would be to educate the people, and to pay some Irish scholars of eminence and probity to write a clear, plain, and truthful history of Ireland.

as to explain what the Fitzgeralds, O'Connors, the O'Neils, O'Briens, and the D'Arcys and Eoganians were, Fagan Beagach, and hurrah for Ireland, no doubt. What objects to the cry? If our Irish friends can push the "Saxon swine" out of the mire they wallow in, and take possession of it themselves, let them. But it is useless uttering the old cries of a faction fight of the nineteenth century, and ranging the selves again into sects, while we are thus ing of a Universal Brotherhood and Fe eration of Mankind. The whole matter out of date and overdone. A witty expo tion of the folly of Fenianism, a ca indistinct manner presented in subtle and judicial manner preserved in spite of the mosquito annoyance, and a deafness to the excited shrieks of the penny-a-liner, will surely be the best way in which John B. can meet this trouble.

The Buffalo Fenians on the Rampage.

On Sunday last the village of Niagara Falls, N. Y., was made the scene of an disreputable doings by an excursion party of Fenians from Buffalo,--a like disgraceful to the participants in the day's programme and to the country where such conduct is tolerated. In the morning's programme of 2,000 loads of Fenian roughs, prostitutes, &c., arrived in the village, a sufficient number of the Fenians being uniformed and armed, including rifles, bayonets, knapsacks, &c., to form full company. The Fenian company, headed ed by a life and drum band, marching through the principal streets of the town, passing the several places of worship, much to the annoyance of the church-going people. In the meantime many of the cursionists, who were not in uniform, scattered throughout the village, and the work of the day—whiskey drinking—was inaugurated. The motley crew finally established their headquarters at the Union Hotel, where a man named Lane who dinner was procured, accompanied with copious draughts of bad whiskey and beer. After dinner a suitable spot was selected and dancing commenced, which was kept up for several hours, interspersed with a occasional row, and finally winding up a general shindy, which was only stopped by the leader of the party announcing that the train was about starting on its return to Buffalo.

A couple of vagabonds in uniform waded across the Suspension Bridge, as far as

Punch on the Eucler...

Punch has long satirized the dress.

Now reason in a measure reigns O'er female dress; some girls with feet
And ankles clothed

The wearer thus her brains doth show,
Exhibits feet and ankles too;
Without her dress held up, as though
On purpose to afford the view.

Now you can see a form of grace,
Whose outlines were before concealed;
Draped simply, and, besides the face,
With judgment other charms revealed.

Old times return, emotions old
Back with sweet recollections bring;
The dull blood feels, in winter's cold,
As though revisited by spring.

Our very youth, serene through smoke
And self-sufficient as are they,
With some sensation may be woke
By damsels clad in meat array.

Effect just one amendment more;
Discard those chignons from your polls,
And you'll be objects to adore!

A traveller was boasting of the luxury of arriving at night after a hard day's journey, to partake of the enjoyment of a well-roasted ham and the left leg of a goose. "Ah,"

Sir, what is the peculiar luxury of a leg?" "Sir, to conceive its luxury, must find that it is the only leg that left, and that you have no right to it."

THE principles on which this Company is founded contain all the elements required to develop the benefits of Life Assurance, and afford every facility to intending assureds.—One of the advantages secured by those who insure their lives with this Company is that the outside expenditure for Management is absolutely restricted by the Deed of Settlement to Ten per Cent. of the Net Life Income.

This important restriction shows that the interests of participating policy holders are closely watched and carefully attended to by the Company. Attention is especially called to the fact, as the proportion of premiums expended for Management Must Largely Influence Profits and Bonuses.

Just tired—neither angry nor ashamed :
Each wretched word has tret its feverish hour;
Let the pale bud lie withered and uncalmed—
Dead, or to gracious suns or playful flower,
Perchance some little life may linger yet
In the crush'd stem and withered leaves we see

But what avail repentance or regret ?
I am so tired—I let it be.

I did so much : I am all worn and cold ;
I strive no longer : let what must be, must :
I could not give your hand the strength to hold ;
I could not give your heart the depth to trust ;
How you will miss me ! I could weep your want
Of the close alien love that fenced you so ;
The cap I filled was neither weak nor scant,
But I am very tired—I let it go.

A Sermon Worth Remembering.

"There's nine men standin' at the door and they all said they'd take shugar in their'n."

Sich, friends and brotherin, was the talk, in a wurdly cense, wunest common in this our anabunt land ; but the dale gon by, and the ane run dry, and no man can say to his naber, hoo art thou, man, and will you take any more shugar in you

But the words of our tex has a diffren and more partickur meenin than this.
Thar they stood at the dore on a col winter's mornin', two Babtists, and tw Methodias, and five Lutherans, and to ern was a publikin. And they all wi

one vols sed they woodent dirty their feet in a dram shop, but if the publikin woo go and get the drinks they'd pay for 'em
And they all cried out, and every man se I'll take mine with shuger—for it won feel good to drink the stuff without swee etc'd. So the publikin le marched in, and the bark-eeper sed, "What want ye?" and he answered ned sed, "A drink." "How will ye have it?" "Plane and strate," say he, "for it ain't no use wastin' sugar 'circumalivate akafortis. But there is ninn more standin' at the dore, and they all se they'd take slugur in ther'n."

Friends and brethering, it ain't onnly likker of spirits that is drunk in this round about and underhand way, but it is the likker of all sorts of human wickedness in like manner. There's the likkers of malice that many of yoh drink to the droga, befo' yoh'll sweeten it with the shugar of sel-justification. Thars the likker of avar that sum keep behind the curtain for constant use, but they hev it well mixed with the sweetin' of prudence and ekonom. Thars the likker of selfu that sum who drinks by the gallon, but they always put it in lots of shugar to take keer of No.

And lastly, thars the likker of extortio which the man sweetin's accordin' circumstances. If he's in the flour li he'll say the pore'll be better off eatin' co bread; if he's in the cloth line, why it's good thing to larn 'em to make their clo at home; if he's in the leather line, wh larn em the necessity of takin' better k uv shoes, and thars nine men standin' the dore, and they all said they'd ta shugar in ther'n.

But friends and bretherin, thar's a ti comin' and a place fixin' where ther'll no "standin' at the dore" to call

"shugar in ther'n." But they'll have to right in and take the drink square up the front; and the barkeeper'll be a Satan, and nobody else, and he'll give a shugar of led, and red hot led at that, shure's as your name's Cohnshunce Dodge. And you'll be entitled to your rations this times a day, if not more frequent; and you'll have to lump it and so may the O Nick close down on all your silk palavers around the plane old people of brother luv and ginerosity, and feller toellu' s fair-play! Amen!

—The new Commander of the Force, Charles Wyndham, has already evinced an interest in Canadian institutions by entering as a cadet at the Military School.

—In September there were shipped in boxes from Richmond 1,173,688 pounds of chewing tobacco and 13,958 pounds of smoking, the total value of the cargo being $1,000,000.

A PROSPEROUS COUNTRY.—The Courier de la Meuse observes: "Holland, that wise and courageous country, is fortunate, and no wonder Prussia covets her ports and colonies. In the budget which has just been presented to the Chambers the expenses—estimated at ninety-eight million of florins—are balanced by the receipts. Out of that sum twelve are devoted to the railways, and as many more to the improvement of the national defences. Despite this extraordinary expenditure there will be no increase of taxes nor any loans. How many states in Europe can say as much?

...or those pillars which, while their neighboring supporting the superstructure, are also in themselves, in equal from the top in fluted columns, and crowned with wreaths of flowers—this is the best of all.

PARAPHRASE OF THE LORD'S PRAYER.
The following paraphrase of the Lord's Prayer has been set to music in England. It is the best we have ever seen in any language —there is nothing wanting and nothing redundant.

Our Heavenly Father, hear our prayer.
Thy name be hallowed every where.
Thy kingdom come, thy perfect will be done in earth, as in heaven, let all fulfill.
Give this day's bread to us as we live;
Forgive our sins as we forgive;
Lead us from temptation to wisdom;
From evil shield us by thy hand;
Now and for ever unto Thee,
Thy kingdom, power and glory be Amen.

Food Statistics.

The following comparison between the food statistics of New York and Paris has been made by a contemporary:—"In the Paris markets about $85,000,000 worth of fresh meats, poultry, game, vegetables, food, butter and eggs are disposed of annually.
The first cost of these articles in New York is eight and one-half per cent less than the first cost of the same articles in Paris, but what in the latter city is valued at $100 is retailed to the consumers at an advance of $94, or for $124, while in New York the same articles costing only $91.50 are retailed to the consumers for $184.80—a difference of $93.30 in favor of Paris on every $100 worth of produce consumed. Again, there were required and supplied to the city of New York in 1885 of beefs, cows, calves, sheep and swine an aggregate dressed weight of 379,124,647 pounds. There were also required and furnished 54,160, 671 pounds of dressed fresh meats. The aggregate first cost of all these was $35, 081,184.87. The value of the poultry, fish, game, fruits, vegetables and other perishable food was as much, if not more, than that of the meats amounting together to over $70,000,000, and for which the consumers in New York paid about $140, 000,000. For the same amount of food the consumers in Paris would have paid but $94,178,000, a saving to them of about $46,000,000 on the supplies of one year."
These facts are striking evidence of the existence of an artificial state of things in the United States. Assuming the population of New York to be one million, and that the same degree of extravagance obtains in other parts of the Union, we find that the United States waste in articles of food, as compared to Paris, the enormous sum of $1,380,000,000 annually, or an amount which, if economized, would wipe out the national debt in two years. Besides waste in food, there is also great extravagance in dresses and an artificial condition of affairs in the matter of house-rents. We have not at hand the means of drawing a comparison between the dress and house-rent statistics of Paris and New York; but we should think from the present prices of articles of clothing in the United States that the difference is at least eighty per cent in favor of Paris. What, it may be asked, is the cause of this great difference between the cost to consumers of the necessaries of life in France and the United States? The only cause, or the chief cause is, undoubtedly, the Protective policy of the Government.

THRILLER DIED GENTLEMAN.

A bob tale kote, a 3 cent paper koller, a white cotton weatit, yellow trousers without any cloth into the legs, shiny leather boots, a pair of yellow gloves, and inside of em all,
a thing got up in imitation of a man, but as the kounterit detectors say, poorly executed and not kalkulated to deserve. Must swear, drink slampain, and talk boss.
Eustash indispensabul, brances unnecessary;
fine speach on exhibition at the sentral park.

THRILLER DIED BENTEN MAM.

Wun that knows conf about stealin, so't

THRILLER DIED LADY.

The old faschud idee, about a woman such as God made boin lady is exploded a modern thriller bred lady is made up as follers, commented on the top.
1stly—A swab of half a stole from the corpus of a dead pawper in the old kunter.
2ndly—A hed, with as much vacant room into it in proportion to the size as a six story tenement.

3rdly—A dress waste, kivering a French kossit, into which is komprest, about equal quantities of Nature and Art—Arto okkupin the front seats.

4thly—A hoop art hung on a pair of kotten hips, and sholin when tilted "las bein kivered with an old dreslin of elk, and kept in rummish order at an expense of about five hundred dollars per month for repairs.

N.B.—It allus seemed a waste of time and vitality to raise this kins thriller breeds, cos you can get them made of wax—just as good—better looking, and at a trackless of the expence.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVEILLE, SATURDAY, OCT. 19.

FROM OTTAWA.

(By Special Telegraph to the Daily Intelligencer.)

OTTAWA, Oct. 19, 1887.

The Canada Gazette of to-day contains the appointment of Major General DIXIE to the Lieutenant Governorship of Nova Scotia, and Col. HARDING, senior officer in New Brunswick, to the Lieutenant Governorship of that Province.

POSTAGE WITH LOCAL GOVERNMENT.—We observe it stated that the Post Office Department has decided that the Local Governments occupy similar relationship to it as the municipalities, and that they must therefore pay postage on their correspondence with the public. So that a party writing to any of the Departments of the Local Government must not only pay his own postage, but enclose stamps to pay the return letter. It is desirable to save the extra cents which are charged upon unpaid letters.

NEW SCHOONER.—A few days ago a new schooner, named the Mary Everett, built this season, was launched at Shannockville. She is one of the largest boats on the bay, is rated at 343 tons, and will carry 11,000 bushels of grain or 300,000 lbs. of lumber. In length she is 113 feet over all, in beam 26 feet, and 7 feet 10 in.
in the hold. Her cost was $11,000. She is a trim, neat sailer, is fitted up with cabins and state-rooms, has wire rigging and all the modern improvements, and is in every respect a credit to her builder, Mr. Tait, and to the enterprise of her owner, Francis Wallbridge, Esq.

The Fenians Again.

The Globe's Ottawa special who has become as famous as Jenkins of the New York Herald for prying into secrets, says:

OTTAWA, Oct. 17, 1887.—I have special information confirming my statement of the shipment of Fenian arms at Potsdam, thirty-six miles from Ogdensburg. The arms are those seized by the American Government in 1865, and taken to Rocket's Harbour. They were lately returned to Fenian agents there.
The process of removal from that place to Watertown by wagons has lately been going on. From Watertown to Potsdam the express cars being attached to railway at large cost—care being taken that the train should arrive at Potsdam in the middle of the night trains, while farmers wagons were in waiting to remove them for secrecy into the country. About 4,000 stand of arms have already arrived at Potsdam. Cavalry and Foot armies have likewise arrived there. The question in which this has been done shows that cooler heads are now directing the Fenian movements than before. The elections coming off in the State of New York shortly, and it would seem as though the Fenian leaders were preparing to strike a blow at Canada at moderate times both political parties will least desire to quarrel with them. At a large Republican meeting in Ogdensburg tomorrow, a speaker stated that the Fenian movement was as active as ever, and that the next raid on Canada would be more successful than the last. The sentiments were loudly applauded. The Government have been furnished with full information on the subject, and it is to be hoped will take necessary measures of precaution."

BUSINESS NOTICE.—Parties going west would do well to secure tickets from Toronto west from Mr. R. P. DAVY, agent for Great Western Railway, opposite the market, Belleveille, 115-1m

M. P., M. P., or What?

The Toronto Leader and Ottawa Times have been editing their readers with long disquisitions upon the manner in which the members of the Commons of Canada, and the Legislative Assemblies of the Dominion should be addressed, or in other words what their titular designations should be. The Leader philosophically comes to the conclusion that the members of the Commons should be styled and addressed M. P., and the members of the Legislative Assemblies, M. P. P. These designations are not altogether acquiesced in by the Ottawa Times, who replies in a column article, coming to the conclusion that M. P. P. is indicative of a member of the Assembly is a misnomer. There being no Provincial Parliaments, consequently to address a man M. P. P., would be to give him a title which would be meaningless, therefore the letters should be M. L. A., member of the Legislative Assembly, and M. P., member of Parliament. It also says Senators should be addressed as such, and that too in full, to prevent people from being led astray as to the actual meaning. And then in the most condescending manner possible declares that having laid down what ought to be done in this particular, hopes the question will be set at rest. The Leader not liking this cool way of being snuffed out, returns to the subject, and while adhering to its former theory that M. P. P. should be the designation by which to distinguish members of the Legislative Assembly, has no objection to M. L. A., thinking that there is force in the reasoning of the Times; and not to be outdone by its Ottawa contemporary, says: "The entire question is now narrowed down to a choice between M. P. P. and M. L. A., for the members of the local assemblies." Certainly, if not now settled, it will be when the Leader and Times agree, for who shall dare dissent when these journals have issued their fiat.

Nova Scotia.

Much apprehension has been felt in political circles, and a good deal of controversy has taken place in reference to the position which Mr. Joseph Howe and his followers will take. It has been suggested by some that it was their intention not to take their seats in the Commons, but to organize the Local Parliament and govern Nova Scotia independently. Others have supposed that they would take their seats, and become factionists, obstructing the government in carrying out the policy as much as possible.
It appears, however, that neither of these courses will be taken, but a more sensible and patriotic one followed.

A caucus was held in Halifax, composed of the party elected, a short time since, to discuss the position of affairs and the best course to pursue. Nothing, however, transpired to enlighten the world what was done. The anti papers kept remarkably mum, and it is only now that we are beginning to learn what the intentions of Mr.
Howe and his followers are. The Halifax
Express throws some light upon this subject by informing its readers that the result of the deliberations was simply to insist upon a change of government in Nova Scotia, and to petition the Crown for a recall of the Union, Mr. Howe to lay it at the foot of the throne. In the meantime, the members of the Commons for that Province are to take their seats, holding themselves aloof from both government and opposition until they know the fate of their Province.

This course is, under the peculiar circumstances in which they have placed themselves, the most wise. The result can easily be foretold. Mr. Howe, if he goes home with his petition, will be courteously received, and courteously and firmly told that the Union was an accomplished fact, and would have to have a fair trial. This done, Howe will return, the local government will pursue its course, and the members of the Commons attach themselves to one or other of the parties in the Dominion.
Considering everything, Mr. Howe has adopted as mild a course for self and fellows as could be expected.

The Vandenhoff Case.

This case came up again yesterday before the Police Magistrate, and after argument was heard on behalf of the prisoner, he was discharged. The points taken by Mr. Diamond, the prisoner's counsel, were: First,
That a false pretence, within the meaning of the statute, must be regarding an existing fact; and secondly, if this was found, the Magistrate must be convinced that the false representation was made with fraudulent intent, and with the design to cheat the complainant out of his money. That in the present instance the representations of the prisoner were that one George Vandenhoff, Jr., would hold an entertainment on a certain evening at a certain hour; that if there had been no such person, the representation might be criminal, but as it appeared there was a person of that name, who was in town, and announced his intention to hold the entertainment in question, there was no misrepresentation as to an existing fact. And secondly, there was no proof of criminal intent on the part of the prisoner. On the contrary, it appeared in evidence that the reason that Vandenhoff did not appear was on account of his getting intoxicated, and it also appeared that as soon as prisoner was informed that he would not appear, he commenced refusing the money to the audience, and only stopped when the funds ran out. His Worship agreed with the objections and discharged the prisoner accordingly.

—The New York Tribune favors Chief Justice Chase for the Presidency.

—The Provincial Exhibition of New Brunswick closed on Saturday very successfully.

—Jay Cook made $12,000,000 profits out of Government securities during the war.

—Some playing individual has started the story that Mrs. Lincoln is insane.

—The taxes of the city and county of New York have increased during the past year $5, 000,000.

—The Chicago Republican cost its proprietors last year $100,000 above its receipts. That's paying rather dear for the whistle.

—The Superior Courts in Connecticut are divorcing people faster than the clergymen are marrying them.

—Greely says "the Republican party cannot afford to take any deck-load this fall." A democratic paper says Greely is load enough.

—The concluding words of a Utah obituary notice are very pathetic: "He leaves thirteen widows and fifty-four children to mourn his loss."

—Ellen Farou, of Ottawa, fell down stairs a few days since, while in a state of intoxication, and struggled to death.

—A horse thief in Illinois was recently captured, tried, convicted, and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, in one hour.

—Taxes in Dundas for the current year are two cents on the dollar, equal to 33 1/3 per cent.
on the annual income.

—A vagrant named James McNamara, 60 years of age, died in the Kingston county goal on the 17th inst.

—A fire occurred in Toronto on Friday, Oct.
18th, and destroyed a two storey house belonging to Mrs. Wootton.

—At a political demonstration on Wednesday last, held in New York, the President was denounced as "Andrew Johnson, Traitor, Kennedy, Outcast."

—Beecher says people who think it wicked to black their boots on Sunday morning, do not hesitate to black their neighbors' reputation on week days.

—It has been suggested by some of our contemporaries that too much fuss has been made over Mr. Howe and his success in Nova Scotia, and recommend that he be let alone. A good suggestion.

—The wife of the care-taker in the Montreal Post Office, has been arrested for robbing the Post Office. A large amount of money has been stolen, and purloined letters with money have been found on her person.

—A boy named Champagne, in the Township of Gloucester, while hunting partridges on Sunday last, accidentally shot himself through the head. He died almost immediately. His dog remained with the body and would allow no stranger to come near it.

—A letter from Syria gives terrible accounts of the condition of the Cretans. There is excess of a few cantons and villages, it is doubtful whether there is a village standing in the island, or at least in a condition to offer shelter to its people during the winter.

—The Ottawa papers say the Nova Scotia members have suggested a whole lot of the new wing of the Russell House. These mar-time gentlemen, it is evident, do not intend to be hampered for room. Considering there are but eighteen of them, they have plenty of room to spread themselves.

—Goodwin, a private in the Royal Artillery, blacked himself up like a negro and tried to desert. He was caught, tried before a garrison Court-martial, and while his comrades were on their way to Malta, he has found a secure retreat in the Rochefort military prison for two years, and his assistant, a negro, a three months' lodging place in the common goal, Montreal.

—Fine writing is popular at the South, but it is dangerous if carried too far. A poet of Charleston died lately, and is thus lamented by a friend: "Young in years, but old in achievement, he has left for himself a niche in the temple of fame, over which we now see hovering for an instant his spirit, a rainbow borned by the light of genius shining through the waters of truth."

A letter from Palermo says: "To the horror of cholera have been superadded in Sicily the horrors of famine. A drought which has now lasted nearly two years, has parched up vegetation and deprived the flocks and herds of the food necessary for their sustenance. The cities and towns are deserted by the wealthier habitués, the shops are closed, the markets scarcely supplied."

PARTY PROCEEDINGS.—Thirteen more Orangemen have been sent for trial from the petty sessions of Newtownards, for a party procession there, on the 13th July last. About four thousand persons assembled on that occasion, and walked in order behind flags of orange and crimson color. There were other emblems of the society. They marched to the music of drum and fife. No breach of the peace occurred.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—A dinner was given at Manchester last evening to the Ministry, at which Lord Derby, Lord Stanley, and nearly all the members of the Cabinet, were present. In reply to the usual sentiment in honor of the administration, the Premier made a speech, which he defended the action of the Government on the Reform question, and refuted some of the attacks which had been made upon the Representation of the People Bill. Lord Stanley, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, also addressed the company. He spoke of the disturbed condition of Europe, but declared that notwithstanding the threatening appearance of affairs, he still entertained hopes that peace would be preserved. While reviewing the present relations of Great Britain with foreign powers, he alluded to the controversy between his Government and that of the United States in regard to claims for indemnity. This controversy, he said, still remained open, but England had all along dealt with this grievance in a friendly spirit in the discussion, and time was already soothing the irritation which might have arisen on the other side of the Atlantic.

Admiral Farragut yesterday entertained the Lords of the Council on board the flag-ship
"Franklin" at Portsmouth.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 18.—Mr. Campbell, of the firm of Campbell & Sons, whose failure was recently announced, was arrested and held for trial on a charge of defrauding the National Bank of Liverpool of £10,000 sterling.

FLORENCE, Oct. 18.—Reinforcements of Volunteers, recruited in France and Spain, for the defense of the Pope, have arrived in Rome.

General Menotti Garibaldi, when last heard from, had succeeded in reaching the vicinity of Rome, and was still advancing with a considerable command.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—It is reported that the fleet of transports and iron-clads at Toulon has already received orders to sail for Rome, but the actual departure of the expedition has not yet been announced.

FLORENCE, Oct. 18, 9 p. m.—The troops of King Victor Emmanuel are still guarding the frontier of the States of the Church, and prevent all persons who have the appearance of belonging to the Garibaldian organization from crossing the boundary line.

It is reported that the plan for an insurrection within the walls of Rome has been exposed, and the leaders have been arrested and thrown into prison.

PARIS, October 18, midnight.—Napoleon has made an imperative demand upon the Italian government for the strict observance on the part of Italy of the convention of September. The expedition at Toulon is equipped and ready to sail to the relief of Rome, and only waits for the reply of Italy, which is hourly expected to the demand of the Emperor. It is believed the Italian government will yield.

LONDON, October 18, midnight.—The following telegram has been received from Florence, dated to-night: It is reported that General Garibaldi has again escaped from Caprera, and that he left the island on an American ship.
The Garibaldians have appeared in the waters district between Rome and the sea. They have taken possession of the railway running between the city of Rome and the sea port of Ostia, and torn up the rails, preventing all communication.
It is still believed in Florence that the governments of Italy and France have a perfect understanding with each other, and are really acting together with the treatment of the Roman question.

PARIS, October 18.—The autumn races at Chantilly commenced yesterday. The prize of the Prince Cordet was won by Lady Henrietta.
Alabama was winner of the Chantilly Ladies' prize,
and the well known horse took the premium.
These were the principal events of the day.

LONDON, October 19, noon.—Consols 98 1/2;

St. Louis, October 19.—In the match to-day between the Kentucky horse, "Rolla Gold Dust," and the Louisiana horse, "Topsy," the former won the race, distancing "Topsy" in the first heat; time 2:36.

BUFFALO, October 19.—The exelior base ball club, of Rochester, beat the Niagara, of Buffalo to-day by 36 to 18. 5,000 spectators were present.

General Barry has accepted a complimentary dinner from a number of the leading citizens of Buffalo, previous to his departure to California.
The dinner takes place on the 24th inst.

New York, Oct. 19.—The steamer "Ella," from Liverpool, has arrived. News anticipated.

Le Canadian says that the Hon. Messrs. Tupper and Doss have declined appointment to the vacant judgeship of Kamouraska. The rumored transfer of Judge Gauthier from Montserrat to Kamouraska is not yet decided.

Thad. Stevens has intimated his intention to urge upon Congress, as soon as it meets in November, to pass a general impeachment law, defining offences upon which an officer may be impeached, and declaring that no officer shall continue to exercise the function of his office during his trial; and also the passage of a law providing that no State shall have power to prohibit citizens of the United States, whatever their race, colour or religion, from voting for President and Congressmen.

Prussia is gradually increasing her navy, quietly assuming that position on the sea which her resources and power entitle her to on land. A recent expose of her naval strength shows that she now possesses 88 vessels, carrying 454 guns propelled by 7,892 horse power. The aggregate of 43,825 tons, and some of them—the "Wilhelm Ist," "Frederic Charles," and "Prince Royal"—are almost equal in power and tonnage to some of the recent additions to the British Iron-clad navy.

GENTLEMEN—

We beg to advise having admitted Mr. John C. More, of Halifax, as partner in our firm and have opened a Branch of our Business in that City, where it will be our aim to serve our friends in the obtaining the best possible rates for Consignments, the extension of the manufacturing interests to the Lower Provinces, the importing thence on Consignments their Fish, &amp;c., and the dissemination of correct and unaltered information respecting the markets.

On Consignments to Halifax, as well as to Montreal, we will as heretofore make liberal advances against shipments, and drafts may in all cases be made at the option of Consigners either on Montreal or Halifax.

The season being now at hand when the Cheese and Butter in the country must be marketed, we take this opportunity of tendering our services for its sale here, or at either of the Principal points in the Lower Provinces or Great Britain, where we have first-class reliable correspondents who will do the very best that can possibly be done with consignments, cash advances on which will be made by us here when required.

THE principles on which this Company is to develop the benefits of Life Assurance, and afford every facility to intending assurers.

One of the advantages secured by those who

insure their lives with this Company is that

the outside expenditure for Management is absolutely restricted by the Deed of Settlement

to Ten per Cent of the Net Life Income.

This most important restriction

shows that the interests of participating policy

holders are closely watched and carefully

premiums expended for Management

Must Largely Influence Profits

SYNOPSIS

GOLD MINING ACT OF 1864,

27 and 28 Vic. Chap. 9, and the

Gold Mining Amendment Act 1865,

29 Vic. Chap. 9.

THE Gold Mining Act of 1864, provides that Governor

in Council may appoint Officers for Divisions

Two Divisions erected in Lower Canada:—"Chaudiere

Gold Mining Division," Richard Pope, Esq., Gold Mining Inspector, St. Francis de la Haye, and "St. Francis

Gold Mining Division," J. H. Goss, Esq., Gold Mining Inspector, St. Francis de la Haye, 18th July, 1864, amended

29th July, 1864, and 29th Sept. 1864.

One Division erected in Upper Canada by Proclamation

21st March, 1867:—"Quinte Gold Mining Division,"

Richard Pope, Esq., Gold Mining Inspector, St. Francis

de la Haye, and "St. Francis Gold Mining Division," J. H. Goss, Esq., Gold Mining Inspector, St. Francis de la Haye, 18th July, 1864, amended

29th July, 1864, and 29th Sept. 1864.

No person to mine without a license.

Two kinds of licenses, one "Crown Lands Gold License," and the other "Private Land Gold License," $1 per month, and private lands, the miner first obtaining consent of the proprietor.

Crown Lands Gold License may stake out and work claim on Crown Lands as follows:

ALLUVIAL MINES.

One river or large creek, 30 feet front by 50 from the water's edge. On small creeks, 40 by 50 from the water's edge. In gulch, 40 feet along side, and from hill to hill, on surface or hill side, 80 feet square. In case of hill descent, the miner may stake out larger area. In bed on river or creek to determine size and position of claim.

QUARTZ MINES.

To each miner, 100 feet along bed by 100 on each side from the centre of the bed. For comparison, 25 feet additional along bed for every additional miner, but not to exceed 600 feet altogether.

Claims to be classed by the officer, and to be laid out in quadrilateral and rectangular shapes, horizontal, and bounded under the surface by lines vertical to the horizon.

Crown Lands licensees to work continuously and renew license.

No person to occupy more than one claim on Crown

Lands at one time.

Licensees entitled to free license for one year in maneuver provided by Act.

Party walls to be left between claims on Crown Lands, party removing party wall to construct a new mode of access to water.

Crown Lands licensees not to cause damage to others.

General of water reserved opposite claim on Crown

Lands.

Registration of claim on Crown Lands temporarily available, allowed for $1. Provision: claim to be marked.

Penalty provided for removal of stakes on claim.

All licensees to make returns.

Quartz crushing machines to be licensed. Fee $5 per month. Books to be kept and returns furnished.

Act extends to parties mining near Gold Mining Divisions.

Sale of liquor prohibited except under license, monthly fee, $5.

Provisions made for appointment of constables and police, and for preservation of peace.

Persons working under Gold Mining Licenses to furnish returns and pay taxes on the area of their claim, and extra, viz.: for the Seignior of Agincourt-Vaudreuil, in the Chaudiere—one of the Divisions erected, and to pay sum equivalent to fees under Gold Mining Act.

Governor in Council may make regulations.

Officers may convict on view.

THE GOLD MINING AMENDMENT ACT OF 1865.

Repulse clause in Gold Mining Act of 1864, providing that no license fees be assessed for exploring for gold until the precious metal is discovered.

Exact that Tavern License provision in previous Act

may be applied to territory covered by Mining License.

And that disputes between miners and laborers, &amp;c.,

in Gold Mining Division may be determined by officer of divisions.

Intelligencer Buildings, Front Street

Belleville.

(BENTLEY.)

We beg to advise having admitted Mr. John C. More, of Halifax, as partner in our firm, and have opened a Branch of our business in that City, where it will be our aim to serve our friends in Canada to the utmost of our power in the attainment of the best possible prices for Commodities, the extension of the manufacturing interests to the Lower Provinces, the important theme on Commission for the sale here, and the dissemination of correct and unbiased information respecting the markets.

On Consignments to Halifax, as well as to Montreal, we will as heretofore make liberal advances against shipments, and drafts may in all cases be made at the option of Consignees either on Montreal or Halifax.

The season being now at hand when the Cheese and Butter in the country must be marketed, we take this opportunity of tendering our services for its sale here, or at any of the Principal points in the Lower Provinces or Great Britain, where we have first-class reliable correspondents who will do the very best that can possibly be done with consignments, cash advances on which will be made by us here when required.

INSURANCE COMPANY

CAPITAL, - - - $10,000,000.

FIRE and LIFE.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

THE principles on which this Company is

founded contain all the elements required

to develop the benefits of Life Assurance, and

afford every facility to intending assureds.

One of the advantages secured by those who

insure their lives with this Company is that the outside expense for Management is absolutely restricted by the Deed of Settlement

to Ten per Cent of the Net Life Income.

This most important restriction

shows that the interests of participating policy

holders are closely watched and carefully

tended to by the Company. Attention is especially called to this point, as the proportion of premiums expended for Management

Must Largely Influence Profits and Bonuses.

The next division of profits takes place in 1898, and all those who wish to participate in the profits should insure at once.

Charge of the Light Brigade.

Any particulars concerning the famous charge at Balaklava, during the Crimean war, which Tennyson has so finely immortalized in verse, must be of general interest, although it is now several years since the gallant Six Hundred rode up to their death, while
We gladly give place, therefore, to the following personal and graphic account of the affair which has never before been made public. It came substantially from the lips of the Earl of Cardigan, the Commander of the Eleventh Hussars at Balaklava, in 1854, who actually led the celebrated "charge," and was related to Mr. Stephen Massie, during his recent visit to England, after he had recited Tennyson's stirring epic to Lord and Lady Cardigan, with an effect which may be easily imagined by all who have ever heard his recitations.

At about one o'clock on that memorable day, after the Heavy Brigade had been attacked by the Russian cavalry, the whole of the cavalry division was considerably advanced towards the enemy, and the Light Brigade had been ordered to dismount to relieve their brave comrades. They were again ordered to "mount," and side-decamp Capt. Nolan came forward, and told Lord Lucan, commanding the cavalry, that the Light Brigade was to attack the Russians in the valley. Lord Lucan rode up to Lord Cardigan, and said, "It is Lord Cardigan's order that the Light Brigade is to attack the Russians in the valley." Lord Cardigan replied, saluting with his sword, "Certainly, my lord, but you will allow me to inform you that there is a Russian battery in front, and one on each flank, while the ground on the flank is covered with Russian riflemen." Lord Lucan answered, "I cannot help that. It is Lord Cardigan's order that the Light Brigade is to attack them."

Lord Cardigan then formed his brigade, of five regiments, with three regiments in the front line, and two in the second, while Lord Lucan ordered Lord Cardigan's own regiment, the Eleventh Hussars, back so as to form a support on the left rear of the front line. Lord Cardigan immediately ordered the advance. After going about sixty yards Capt. Nolan rode obliquely across the front, when a Russian shell fell upon the ground near him, and not far from Lord Cardigan. Nolan's horse then wheeled about and carried him to the rear, and Lord Cardigan led the brigade down to the main battery, about one mile and a quarter distant. On arriving at about eighty yards from the battery, the fire became very severe, and the officers were considerably excited, and had to be ordered to "be accounted for specie or valuables unless Bills of Lading having the value ascertained are presented therefor."

Further information may be had at the Freight Office on the Wharf, or at the Office, 39 Commission Street, Montreal.

Lord Cardigan, at the head of his brigade, passed close by the muzzle of a gun, which was fired as he entered the battery, and rode forward through the Russian timber caissons until he came upon the line of the battery. When he got back to the battery his command had retired and diverged to the left, and he slowly retreated until he met General Scarlett, commanding the heavy brigade of cavalry. He told him that the Light Brigade was destroyed, and mentioned the order for the attack, when Gen. Scarlett said that he had just ridden over Captain Nolan's body.

Lord Cardigan then had his brigade counted by his staff officer, and found that there were only 195 present out of the 850. He then immediately rode off to Lord Raglan to report what had taken place.

The first thing that Lord Raglan said was, "What air, could you possibly mean by attacking a battery in front, contrary to all the usages of warfare, and the custom of the service?" He replied, "My Lord I hope you will not blame me, for I received a positive order from my superior officer in front of the troops to attack them, although I was quite well aware of the unusual course of the proceeding ordered."

Lord Raglan then inquired what he had done, and was told that he led the brigade into a Russian battery, that he had ridden not followed by his brigade, that he was wounded and nearly dismounted, and had some difficulty in getting away from the number of Cossacks, and that the brigade was nearly destroyed, there now being only 195 left out of 850. He then said, "The whole had occupied the brief space of 20 minutes."

A jack-knife, a paper collar, a shoe and stocking, with a foot in them, have been fished up from a cheerful well in Pembroke whence an appetizing skeleton was drawn some weeks since. A patient jury have "unpacked" themselves this—That the deceased, unknown to the Jurors, was found dead in a well belonging to Martin Conroy, and from the evidence the Jurors are unable to say whether he fell into the well in a state of intoxication, or otherwise, and cannot see from the evidence whether or not he was put into the well by party or parties unknown.

The Fenian Plan for Seizing the Queen.

AN OPINION OF A NEW YORK JOURNAL.

The New York Times, which has persistently ridiculed the Fenian question, is naturally enough, the reports of a "little or no credence" in England, but precautions are actually said to have been taken. We should say that the Fenian movement is too far north, even by third-class trains, and we doubt whether their commissariat, with its clumsy full of cold potatoes, would not break down before they had traversed the twenty miles of rough country between Balmoral and the railroad. As it has been throughout the whole affair, however, the real and only danger lies in the madness of a few desperadoes, and the folly and ignorance of those whom they influence. It is not impossible that some of the dispersed Manchester Mohawks may have re-assembled and concocted some such frantic scheme, while the inevitable traitor—they really don't deserve such a good friend—telegraphed to the authorities. They may be certain of one thing—if any of them do venture into the Highlands, they won't get such lenient treatment as they do in England or in their own country. We do not envy any Irishman up in that neighborhood if the story reaches the clansman round Aberfeldie.

A Story of a Diamond.

THE GREAT CARELESSNESS OF A WASHER.

The great Sancy diamond, which stands ninth in the glittering and very restricted aristocracy of the world's big diamonds, is to be sold, and while it is on show at one of the best jewellers, the story of its life and troubles travels round Paris. And indeed, since it was found on the battlefield in the swordhilt fallen from Charles le Temeraire's dying hand, its vicissitudes have been great, and far too numerous to recount in full. At one time Henry IV. borrowed it from De Sancy, to give it as a guarantee to the Swiss for the troops they had lent him; and the messenger to whom De Sancy consigned it disappeared before he reached the king. A long and anxious time elapsed before any one learned where it had become of the faithful servant, but it was at last discovered that he had been attacked and assassinated. The body was found, exhibited, opened, and in the stomach lay poor Sancy! The messenger had swallowed it to preserve it from the hands of the assassins. The precious stone went on leaping from impossibility to impossibility, until it reached the scene of its last troubles, which is in Lyons, about twenty years ago. Monsieur Le Comte de Dendoff and his wife were visiting Lyons with the amiable writer Jules Janin. The day was hot, and the Comtesse threw off her shawl, and taking out the pin, in which was mounted the celebrated diamond, asked Jules Janin to put the jewel in his pocket. They passed the day looking at the sights of the town, and in the evening, went to the theatre. Apropos non am, said the Comte, between the acts, did you give the pin to the Comtesse? Poor Jules Janin foundered on his seat, plunged his hands convulsively into his waistcoat pocket, and then, without uttering a word, rushed from the box. During his headlong course back to the hotel all the incidents of the day, all the horrors of the situation, pressed on his brain like a nightmare. He remembered that after their walk he had changed his dress; that he left the door of his room open, because the garcon was coming to arrange it; that the waistcoat containing the diamond had been thrown on a chair; that the bachichuse was due that day; and that the waistcoat was to be washed. A complication of horrors! His fears were groundless; he found his door open; he had procured no light in his hotel; he rushed into the darkness toward the fatal chair when he perceived that the room was full of bright rays, and flashing and glittering on the floor, lay the Sancy. The garcon had arranged the room, the bachichuse had come, the waistcoat had been taken to be washed; but the diamond had slipped out and was saved, and so was Jules Janin. But he still remembers with horror the episode of the Sancy diamond.

Poisonous Drinks How they are Made.

A short time ago, a man in a state of intoxication was arrested in Philadelphia, and taken to the station. There he was searched, and among other things found was a black book, part of the contents of which he published below. He asserted that the receipts to him were worth five hundred dollars, and that all the liquors to which they referred were actually sold in that way. A sense of duty to the public induces us to publish them, and drinkers may see what vile stuff they are drinking. The man was an ass and an attaché of a diabolical.

Brandy—Forty gallons of whiskey, one drachm of oil of cognac, one gallon of syrup, one gallon of tincture of catechu, &c.

Bourbon Whiskey—Forty gallons of whiskey, three gallons of water, two ounces of spirits of nitre, half a drachm of oil of cognac.

Old Nectar Whiskey—Forty gallons of whiskey, forty drops of Elix, three and a half pints of alcohol, one pint of alcohol.

Blackberry Brandy—Twenty gallons of whiskey, one ounce of oil of cinnamon, one ounce of oil of cloves, one ounce of oil of ginger, one ounce of oil of aniseed, one quart of alcohol, &c. Color with brandy coloring.

Best Port Wine—Four gallons of elder, five gallons of white whiskey, ten ounces of oil of cloves, one pound of catanabaw root, one gallon of syrup, quarter of an ounce of arrow root &c.

Scotch Whiskey—Sixty drops of kresote, two ounces oil of smoke, one quart of alcohol, &c.

Peach Brandy—One ounce of bitter almond, one quart of brandy, one gallon of pure whiskey, half a gallon of syrup, one pint of alcohol, in forty gallons of whiskey.

Lavender Brandy—One ounce of bitter almond, one ounce of oil of cinnamon, one ounce of oil of lavender, and forty gallons of whiskey. Color with cochineal.

Claret Wine—Forty gallons of cider, five gallons of white whiskey, two gallons of syrup, three gallons of water, one quart of cream of tartar. Color with cochineal.

Holland Gin—Forty gallons first proof, three ounces spirit of nitre, half gallon of syrup, one gallon of alcohol, oil caraway, quantum suff. &c.

Butters—Twenty gallons of whiskey, twenty pounds of sugar in twenty gallons of water. Various flavors and the "brandy coloring."

Jamaica Rum—Forty gallons of whiskey, twenty pounds of sugar, two ounces of parais and one gallon of syrup. Color with cochineal.

And this is the way all the fancy drinks that sleep in glittering bottles in a thousand shops are made. Whose stomach, whose brain could stand such concoctions?

PENNY READINGS.—Under the patronage of the Good Templars of the Town, Penny Readings will be resumed for the winter, this evening, in the Marble Hall. In addition to the Readings, a Glee Club will entertain the audience, thus affording a pleasant evening entertainment—"all for a penny."

ALBERT COLLEGE—SOCIAL AND SCIENTIFIC ENTERTAINMENT.—On Friday evening, 25th inst., a Social will be held at the College in aid of the Apparatus Fund. After tea, Prof. R. B. Carman will perform some interesting experiments in chemistry. There will be also, the usual social and musical entertainment. No doubt pleasure will be found by all attending, and the object in view is certainly a good one.

MURDER.—Anthony Ford, while travelling along in the township of Derby, in the county of Grey, saw a man muffled in oil cloth, who carried a gun and a revolver. As soon as Ford turned round the man presented the revolver at him and fired, the ball entering his back about the loins, which caused his death the same day. No clue has been obtained to the murderer, or to the reasons which led to the commission of the crime.

FENIANS AGAIN.—Every now and again we have a little sensation in reference to the Fenians. The Leader of the 24th inst., says: "We have on good authority that the Fenian leaders in the United States are distributing arms and ammunition among the farmers on the frontier in the neighborhood of Malone. They are sent forward in large numbers, and wagons are always ready at the station to take them off. We do not doubt that these facts are well known to the Government, and that all the necessary steps have been taken to prevent any sudden raid upon the Dominion. More than this, these fanatics cannot hope to accomplish. Let them go on in their madness. Canada has long since passed that stage when she could be alarmed by these renegade ruffians."

Perry Davis' Pain Killer has the largest sale of any medicine in the world.

BUSINESS NOTICE.—Parties going west would do well to secure tickets from Toronto west from Mr. R. P. Davis, agent for Great Western Railway, opposite the market, Belleville, 115 fm.

Curle has been convicted of the murder of his wife at the Hamilton Assizes, and sentenced to be hanged on the 20th December next.

H. P. Howard, who has been doing business as a broker in Montreal, decamped a few days since, cheating his partner out of $4,600.

A letter from Syria gives terrible accounts of the condition of the Orontes. With the exception of a few cantons and villages, it is doubtful whether there is a village standing in the island, or at least in a condition to offer shelter to its people during the winter.

COMMERCIAL BANK FAILURE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23, 1867.

The news of the suspension of the Commercial Bank came like a thunder clap upon the business men of Montreal, this morning. The meeting of the Presidents of the other Banks, and what transpired at the various sittings yesterday, were known to but few parties outside those immediately concerned, and from the reports which had gained currency there was every prospect that some arrangement would be made by which the Bank would be enabled to tide over its present embarrassments, and thus avert one of the most widespread commercial disasters which ever swept over Canada. The possibility that the Bank would not be able to resist the extraordinary pressure which met it on every side, was very remote; the probability that it would keep its head above water and prevent the impending disaster was very strong—so strong indeed, as to produce very little concern in commercial circles. It may well be imagined therefore, that the announcement of the suspension in the morning papers created the wildest excitement. Merchants read the brief notice and went to their Counting Houses, not to do business. Correspondence was merely glanced at and turned over to subordinates. Anything like attending to regular business was abandoned. Trade seemed paralyzed. Men went on change, but not to sell nor buy. They gathered in knots of two and threes and sixes, and talked only of the failure. And if Mr. King could have heard how they talked and what they said, one would imagine he would have been glad to exchange his position as head of the great Bank monopoly for that of the commonest hod carrier. The language was neither choice nor select; the epithets were not of the softest nature; nor were their opinions of his dogmatic conduct in the slightest manner concealed. Very few amongst them justified him in his action, and only now and again could be heard one bold enough to take up the gauntlet in his favor. The remarks of the Montreal Gazette, severe as they were, were not deemed too severe by a large majority of the principal merchants. They were justified openly and heartily, while the wispy-washy excuse of the evening Witness was as openly and heartily condemned. It was felt that the calamity, the extent of which no one could tell, might have been spared the country, if the Montreal Bank had given its guarantee in conjunction with the other Banks that it would stand by the Commercial in the extent of a serious run. It was felt that this might have been done without any detriment to itself, and because it was not done, the mercantile community charge the Montreal Bank as being the immediate cause of this disaster, which, as the Gazette truly expresses, is the greatest ever witnessed in Canada.

Who can tell what will be the result of this Bank monopoly? The Commercial has gone to the wall. Which of the other Upper Canadian Banks will be the next to suffer? Who can tell? The subject is sufficiently pregnant to cause the most serious apprehension. "Submit to our terms," says the Bank of Montreal, "and we will do the business of the country." What those terms are, business men who have been unfortunately obliged to accept them tell us, are such as to give the largest profit to the Bank, while they stand a chance of getting next to nothing. In many instances the Bank realizes a profit of ten, twelve and fifteen per cent, while the trader barely makes both ends meet. It is looked upon as a "huge shaving shop," to use the words of a prominent Montreal merchant, and if to-morrow it was found in as tight a place as the Commercial, it would not receive much sympathy.

The immediate effect of the suspension of the Commercial Bank has been to produce an utter stagnation. The Montreal Bank put on the screws to-day, and the other Banks followed suit. "We are not discounting," was the invariable answer which met their customers at every Bank counter, "and we don't know when we will." Some holders of Commercial Bank paper, who were obliged to realize, sold to brokers to-day at 90, 90 and as low as 75 cents. A prominent produce dealer informed me that he had received a telegram from Western Canada, asking him if he would take $2,000 in Commercial Bills at 70 cents, as he had purchased that sum at that figure to-day. There are a good many rumors afloat as to what will be done. Some think the Bank will resume specie payments and go on at once, and others think that the storm which has been brought about Mr. King's ears will change the policy of that gentleman towards the Commercial, and that he and the other Banks will come to its assistance. This rumor gathers strength from the fact that Mr. King went to Kingston to-day. But whatever is done, the feeling is universal that prompt action is required on the part of Banks and moneyed men to lessen the effects of the disaster caused by the suspension of the Commercial Bank. What that action may be it is difficult to foretell, but that something will take shape before many hours out of the many schemes proposed for relief, is very probable.

SWINDLING OPERATION.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23, 1867.

A nice little confidence game has just been nipped in the bud, not through the stupidity or carelessness of the chief operator. About half past twelve to-day, while the occupants of the offices and shops along St. Francois Xavier St. were preparing to leave for luncheon, it was reported that a C. Fairdeau, a French broker doing business on that street had been knocked down in his office and robbed of $35,000 in Greenbacks. A crowd soon gathered about the place, and on the floor behind the counter was found lying Fairdeau, in an apparently insensible condition. He was speedily roused, however, and briefly told his story, which was to the effect that while handing the parcel of greenbacks containing $35,000 to a party with whom he had previously negotiated, he was struck on the forehead by some blunt instrument, and at the same time stabbed in the arm, and that the party had decamped with the money without leaving its equivalent in gold. It was found that Fairdeau had received a slight blow on the head, but not sufficient, in the estimation of many, to produce insensibility, and the story that he had been robbed looked very false. It turned out that this broker had gone to several other similar establishments during the forenoon, representing that he had secured a purchaser for $35,000 in greenbacks, at a good paying rate, and as he had not that amount of his own, he was asked for a loan, giving his cheque therefor, which would be paid during the afternoon, as the purchaser was to come at noon to obtain his Greenbacks. As he had been doing business for some time, and had hitherto sustained a fair reputation, he had no difficulty in getting what he wanted. From one broker he got $200, from another $500, another $1,000, and from others sum varying from $2,000 to $4,000. These brokers became very much excited when they heard the unwelcome news, and steps were immediately taken to ferret out the robbers. Detectives were employed, telegrams were sent to every part of the city, to all the railways and shipping agents near Montreal, and constables were sent to search the vessels and every other avenue by which it was possible for the robber to escape. In these endeavors none took a greater interest than Fairdeau and his two brothers. But no clue could be obtained, and those who had loaned the money upon the security of cheques which were not worth the paper they were written upon, began to think there was no hope of ever getting their money back. A good many, however, looked upon the story of Fairdeau as very improbable, and it was considered best by one or two to examine more closely the premises.

Accordingly an entrance was effected, and upon entering the place was found out the bundle of Greenbacks, and in one of the drawers was found packages of silver to the amount of over $1,000. This was soon taken possession of and given into the custody of the officials, and upon enquiry being made after Fairdeau, it was ascertained that he was not at his residence, nor could he be found. It was after dark this evening when the money was fortunately discovered, and while the parties were making the search, one of the brothers of Fairdeau unexpectedly came upon the scene, and was apparently, unexpectedly to himself placed in the custody of the police. It is surmised that this brother was an accomplice, and that as soon as the robbery excitement was going on, he and while the police were busy searching for the supposed robber, it was his intention to clear off with the money. But like many other operations in "California games," he was not sharp enough, and he fell into the trap of his own creating. The matter will likely be investigated to-morrow before the Police Magistrate.

Town Council.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 23, 1867.

PRESENT—His Honor the Mayor, and Messrs. Brown, Diamond, Kennedy, Sutherland, Tanahill, Holden, Foster, Jones, and Waters.

PETITIONS.—were presented from George Meredith and others, praying for a sidewalk, and the draining of certain stagnant water.

From Mrs. Halferty, asking for a remission of taxes.

From the Rev. Mr. McLaren, complaining of a fence that he erected at the head of George street, in Baldwin Ward, and asking to have it removed.

From Dennis Kenney, complaining of having been asked to pay Common School taxes, he being a supporter of Separate Schools.

From Mrs. Molins, praying for a remission of taxes.

From R. Gratrix, setting forth that since which have been imposed upon persons for allowing their hogs to run at large having been remitted, he prays that the due which he paid might be remitted to him.

From Lewis J. Holden, asking for a remission of taxes.

From M. W. Vebey and others, praying for the passage of a By-Law enabling the Council to take out licenses to sell meat in other parts of the town than the market.

From Messrs. Havel and others, setting forth that they had made a new map of the town, and asking for a grant to enable them to publish and circulate the same.

A letter from Mr. R. L. Luss, in reference to the sinking of a well in the engine house.

From Messrs. Plim & Robertson, calling the attention of the Council to the fact that they have no power to remit a moiety of the tax imposed upon P. Tansey, as said moiety belonged to the complainant.

BY-LAWS.

The Council went into Committee on By-Laws. Mr. Brown in the chair.

Mr. Sutherland moved, seconded by Mr. Diamond, That the By-Law to amend the By-Law limiting the number of tavern licenses, by extending the number, be read a second time.

Mr. Holden opposed the passage of the By-Law, on the ground that there are a sufficient number of taverns already, and that the proper time to move in this matter was at the commencement of the year. He believed that the license should be made as high as possible, and that he would say no more, so long as the number allowed by law is not exceeded.

Mr. Diamond supported the By-Law, on the ground that it would be the means of closing houses in which an illicit traffic is carried on, and to avoid any what he considered an anomaly in receiving "dead" money, which the Treasurer had used, and then prevent them from selling liquor. He believed that it would be better to act under the provisions of the statutes, and grant such number as are allowed by law.

Mr. Holden replied that if he understood the law, there was not an issue legally issued this year, because no certificate has been issued unless a certificate be first given by the Mayor that all the requirements of the law had been complied with, and that in no case had there been a certificate given.

The Mayor confirmed this statement.

Mr. Sutherland argued in favor of granting further licenses, and he did so in conformity with the wishes of a large majority of the ratepayers. He stated that Mr. Papineau and Mr. Naven had given a good deal of expense, and were entitled to receive license, there being but nineteen and a half licenses issued, the full license issued being the one issued to the Ferry House.

The Mayor argued against the passage of the By-Law, on the ground that they should not be over-riding their own By-Laws.

Mr. Waters took the same view as the Mayor.

Mr. Diamond pointed out a provision of the law, which provided that a certificate should be signed by the Mayor and the Clerk, setting forth the number of licenses allowed to be issued in the Municipality, and sent to the Island Revenue Inspector, which had not been done.

The Mayor replied, stating that when this should have been done he was sick in bed, and he could not be expected to run round looking for certificates.

The motion was carried by the vote, 10 yeas—Messrs. Diamond, Kennedy, and Sutherland—3.

NAYS—Messrs. Corby, Waters, Holden and Tanahill.

Mr. Foster asked to be excused from voting, which was allowed on motion of Mr. Diamond.

Mr. Waters objecting, stating that every man should be compelled to vote on the By-Law.

Mr. Holden moved, seconded by Mr. Waters, that the Committee rise without reporting.

Mr. Diamond moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Sutherland, that the By-Law for amending the license By-Law be read a second time, which was carried; after which the Committee rose and reported, and the By-Law relative to nuisances and profligate language was passed.

The Mayor appointed Monday evening, next for a special meeting of the Council to investigate the Street Surveyor's pay lists, and the Council adjourned.

Telegraphic News.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

FLORENCE, Oct. 23, midnight.—The reports of Garibaldi's escape from Caprea are confirmed. He is now in Italy, and all the efforts of the police to discover his whereabouts have proved futile.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—The Emperor of Austria has arrived in France on a visit to the Emperor Napoleon. He passed through Baden and had an interview with the King of Prussia, who was visiting the Grand Duke of Baden. The conversation between them was of the most friendly character.

SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 23.—The steamship Germania sailed yesterday at noon for New York.

FLORENCE, Oct. 23.—This morning the official Gazette announces that the reconstruction of the Ministry has been completed, declares that all apprehensions of French intervention may be dissipated, and exhorts the Italians to sustain the King. It is rumored that General Cialdini is playing a grand game for the attainment of the Roman question.

LONDON, Oct. 23, eve.—Reports from across the channel say that tumults have occurred among the laborers in Brittany, owing to the want of employment and scarcity of food.

Crowds gathered in the towns and clamored for bread, and in some places attempts were made to pludge the bishops.

FLORENCE, Oct. 23, eve.—A new Ministry has been at last organized by Cialdini, as follows: President of the Council and Minister of Foreign Affairs—Gen. Enrico Cialdini; Minister of Interior—Gen. Giovanni D'Amico; Minister of Finance—General Auguste de Pelloux; Minister of Public Works—Signor Cocconi.

A deputation of Romans had an audience to-day with King Victor Emmanuel, and implored His Majesty to interpose for the liberation of Rome.

Messrs. Garibaldi has left the Papal territory, and is reported to be lying sick in the province of Umbria.

Intelligencer Building, Front Street, Belleville.

QUESTIONS.

We beg to advise having admitted Mr. John C. Moir, of Halifax, as partner in our firm and have opened a branch of our business in that city, and in all the other towns in Canada to the westward of the Province, the most of our power in the attaining the best possible rates for Commissions, the extension of the number of our agents to the Lower Province, the improving them on Commission their Fish, Oil, &c., and the dissemination of correct and unbiased information respecting the market.

On Commissions to Halifax, as well as to Montreal, we will as heretofore make liberal advances against shipments, and drafts may in all cases be made at the option of Consigners either on Montreal or Halifax.

The season being now at hand when the Cheese and Butter in the country must be marketed, we take this opportunity of tendering our services for its sale here, or at either of the Principal points in the Lower Province or Great Britain, where we have first-class reliable correspondents who will do the very best that can possibly be done with consignments, cash advances on which will be made by us here when required.

INSURANCE COMPANY

CAPITAL $10,000,000.

FIRE AND LIFE.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

THE principles on which this Company is founded contain all the elements required to develop the benefits of Life Assurance, and afford every facility to intending assureds.

One of the advantages secured by those who insure their lives with this Company is that the outside expenditure for Management is absolutely restricted by the deed of Settlement to Ten per Cent of the Net Life Income. This most important restriction shows that the interests of participating policy holders are closely watched and carefully attended to by the Company. Attention is especially called to this point, as the proportion of premiums expended for Management

Must Largely Influence Profits and Bonuses.

The next division of profits takes place in 1898, and all those who wish to participate in the profits should insure at once.

Never Despair!

This motto I give to the young and the old. More precious by far than a treasure of gold: 'Twill prove to its owner a talisman rare. More potent than magic—'tis the Never Despair!

Oh! what if the sailor's vessel be thy lot, 'Mid the gloom, and despite the dark burden of care, If thou canst not be cheerful, yet Never Despair!

Oh! what if the sailor's vessel be thy lot, 'Mid the gloom, and despite the dark burden of care, If thou canst not be cheerful, yet Never Despair!

Oh! what if the sailor's vessel be thy lot, 'Mid the gloom, and despite the dark burden of care, If thou canst not be cheerful, yet Never Despair!

the United States. The French population, too—Canadians and Acadians—amounting nearly one million, have preserved until now, and insist on preserving, the language, the religion, the traditions, the manners of its Norman fathers. All these have been guaranteed by the British government, and it is only fair to Great Britain to point out the present condition of the French Canadians as an instance of her liberality. Certainly the French colonies of Louisiana, Alabama, Missouri, Michigan and Minnesota have not fared so well; nor the Spanish inhabitants of New Mexico and California. These have lost their language, their customs, their traditions, their institutions, and their religion has not had that popular respect and fair play which it enjoys in Canada. If the Rouges of Lower Canada hanker after annexation, they cannot be sincere in doing so through love for their French nationality, language, and religion. For if they know anything, they ought to know that within twenty-five years after their admission into the Union, the French Canadians as a distinctive people would cease to exist.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, OCT. 25.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN BANK.—Shortly after the opening of the doors of the Royal Canadian Bank on Thursday morning, Oct. 25th, says the Toronto Telegraph, a run upon it commenced, and was continued with more or less activity throughout the day. The demand for gold was shy met, and the institution proved its soundness fully and satisfactorily. During the morning, the crowd on Toronto street was pretty large, most of those present being speculators. A couple of policemen were on hand and they kept the crowd moving.

APPOINTMENTS.—We understand that Dr. Jemph has been appointed Collector of Customs for the port of Prescott, and Mr. Elwood Collector for Montserrat. Tories are proverbial for providing for their own, and these appointments are instances of the fact. Reformers may wear the life out of their bodies in support of their leaders, but when they secure places for themselves, those who have aided in the advancement of "the big guns," are left neglected and unrequited for.—Belleville Recorder.

POOR UNFORTUNATE READER, will not some Minister of State require the services of that body whose life has been worn out in support of its leader. It has been a whim with us, that Reform leaders were the most assiduous in looking after their followers; but it appears we have been wrong, for the Reader has been left out in the cold. Poor body, we hope he will still survive.

"There is a branch of the Bank of Montreal in Belleville, at which the greater portion of the business of the town has hitherto been transacted. The citizens, however, are so strongly incensed against it, on account of recent events, that they wish to have nothing more to do with it. On Tuesday evening a meeting of the merchants of the town was held, at which the Mayor presided."—Toronto Telegraph, Oct. 24.

WRONG. The greater portion of the business of this town was done at the Commercial Bank, and not at the Bank of Montreal, hence the stagnation created in business when the Commercial Bank closed. The branch Bank of Montreal in Belleville has been doing no business here, except collecting, thereby doing more harm than good.

BUSINESS NOTICE.—Parties going west would do well to secure tickets from Toronto west from Mr. H. P. DAVY, agent for Great Western Railway, opposite the market, Belleville, 115 1/2m.

—One Patrick Sullivan, died on the street last night from hemorrhage caused by excessive drinking.

—The Indian Bureau's advice from the west show that the peace business is progressing slowly, and it is doubtful if anything permanent is settled before winter commences.

—The Indians who murdered the Adhem and Allen party in Idaho, were recently surrendered to the whites by their tribe and two of them were executed. The remainder were placed under guard.

—It is reported that Judge Johnson is to be brought to Montreal, Mr. M. A. Beaudry to be made Judge at Bedford, Messrs. A. Robitaille and O'Neil Stuart to be created Judges of the Superior Court, and W. H. Webb, M. P., to replace Mr. Stuart.

The Fenian Prisoners.

Speaking of the appeal for the pardon of Father McMalion the British Wiley says: "A great many Fenians were set at liberty without trial; a great many equally guilty Fenians were acquitted, and among others, the English clergyman; and since this Irish Priest has been released and the subject of the law, it is not likely to die again."

Well, Mr. Wiley, does not the argument apply with as much force to every Fenian prisoner as to the Priest? Should he who had the power and influence to guide these men be the only one selected for pardon, Bosh! This sickly sentimentality is disgusting.

Bank Failures.

Bank failures in Canada have fortunately for the prosperity of the country, been of such rare occurrence, as to justify the unbounded confidence which people not only in Canada, but in the commercial metropolis of the neighboring republic, have had in the paper of the country.

This security will not we fear be re-established for some time, when two of the oldest and supposed most solvent of our Banks have gone to the wall, and closed their doors within twelve months, people will begin to think there is something wrong either in the management of these monied institutions, or the law which governs them. The vast majority of the people do not investigate closely the causes which lead to Bank failures, and hence come to the conclusion that all are unsafe. By the last statement made to the Government, and published in the official Gazette, it was shown that the Commercial was as solvent as any other banking institution in the Province, and yet, ere half a month passes over, its doors are closed, and a general panic created. Our readers are already aware how this was brought about. The publication of the report made by Messrs. Holton, Allan and Morris as to the affairs of the Bank, and the recommendation to reduce the value of the stock 40 per cent, left the impression upon the people that this depreciation in the value of stock was equally a reduction on the value of the bank notes in circulation. With this impression weighing upon the minds of the people, it is no wonder that many became alarmed, and withdrew their deposits, and bill holders clamored for gold for their bills, thus driving the Bank to seek assistance, not clandestine aid, but a loan from other Banks, such as every day extended to business men. When this assistance was asked from other Banks, the applicant received the same reception that many a solvent merchant has received when in straightened circumstances; namely, the cold shoulder. And as there is a leading spirit in all walks of life, whether private or public, so there is in the Banking institutions of this Province, which spirit always tries to bring others under subjection, if not by fair, then by intrigue and unfair means. The marplot in Canada, so far as relates to monetary affairs, is Mr. King, of the Montreal Bank. He aspires to more than his name indicates—King. This is not sufficient, he desires to rule absolute in directing and controlling every Bank in Canada. Failing in this, the advantage which his position gives him is used when ever opportunity occurs, to their ruin and destruction. To rule or destroy seems to be his motto, and finding the Commercial Bank in his power, he did not hesitate to use the advantage thus obtained to its downfall. Other Banks were prepared to extend aid, but he who was most able to receive it, and Shylock-like demanded the pound of flesh; but unlike Shylock, he received it, our laws not interfering to prevent it. That the Bank of Montreal could have prevented the calamity which has befallen the Commercial Bank, is acknowledged by the Montreal Press, as well as that of Ontario. The Gazette says all the representatives of the Banking houses then in Montreal, expressed a willingness to come to the assistance of the Commercial Bank. Mr. King, was willing, provided

"the other Banks would guarantee" the amount advanced by him; or in other words, he desired to obtain the endorsement of all the Banks in the Province to a transaction which he should have been as anxious to see carried out as any one of them; and when he could not obtain this advantage he left in a huff. The other Banks "stood quietly to do their share, but would not consent to any special conditions of favor to the Bank of Montreal; and so," after holding during the day four protracted and anxious meetings, the entire matter had to come to a failure in consequence of the Bank of Montreal, and Mr. King, its Manager. The conduct of this Manager was most dogmatic, and had it not been that the meeting was so strongly impressed with the immense importance of the occasion, and the necessity for patient discussion and calm and right action, Mr.

Why was this course pursued? Was it to bring every Bank in Canada a suppliant at his feet? Or was it a deep laid scheme to drive from circulation all paper money except that issued by the Bank of Montreal? We are not prepared to say that a national uniform paper currency would not be advisable, but if this is the mode of forcing it upon the country the sooner it were known the better, so that other monied institutions may set their houses in order, for if, as it is forcibly put by the Toronto Telegraph:

"Our banks do not stand by each other they will assuredly follow the Commercial Bank into liquidation, for the Bank of Montreal has got the whip hand of them all, and will not hesitate, when occasion offers, to push them to the wall. The Commercial Bank had a large discount account, showing that it offered accommodation to our business community, while its funds were not locked up in unseizable real estate. No bank in Canada could sustain the pressure that was brought to bear upon the institution, and it is to the discredit of the other banks that they did not give it a helping hand as it was sinking. We think that the Banks are fast laying up trouble for themselves, and if they will not act unitedly against a huge monopoly, they certainly cannot expect to hold out by isolated efforts."

Taking the last official returns published in the Gazette as our guide, to what conclusion must it lead us? We find that the Commercial Bank had, on the 30th September in its vaults, which could be made immediately available: Coin, bullion and Provincial notes, $708,141; Government securities, $400,000; balance due from other Banks, $174,231; promissory notes, or bills of other Banks, $106,284; amounting in all to $1,388,656, with which to meet a run of $1,248,970 of bills in circulation; $400,391 due other Banks; and $3,007,678 of deposits; in all $4,657,048. By this it will be seen that, without temporary aid from some quarter, the closing of its doors was inevitable, though the same official return shows that the Bank has assets to the amount of $9,140,988, with which to pay liabilities amounting to $1,657,048.

Let us now look at the position of the Montreal Bank, and see how much better position it holds, and how much better it stand a run. At the same date this Bank had in coin, bullion and Provincial notes, $1,098,149; Government securities, $3,327,405; notes and bills of other Banks, $379,438; balances due from other Banks, $1,830,538; or $7,335,510 to meet a demand of: Notes in circulation, $657,802; balances due to other Banks, $560,269; deposits, $11,041,014, in all $12,259,145; or in other words a little over seven millions and a quarter to meet a demand of twelve and a quarter millions.—The reader will at once see, that were the latter Bank to lose the confidence of the people and a simultaneous run made upon it, unaided by loans or otherwise, it would have to close its doors; yet its total assets are $19,957,940 to meet liabilities of $12,259,146. Every other Bank in the Province is in a similar position. We have pointed out these facts to show how absurd it was, under the circumstances, to make a run upon the Commercial Bank; and how ruinous it proved on the part of those who could have sustained the Commercial in its difficulties, not to do it, for no Bank knows the moment it may be placed in a similar position to that of the Commercial.

It will be seen that a much larger quantity of rain fell in the five months commencing last May in 1866, than during the corresponding period of 1867.

Ginseng.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

SIR,—There appeared a paragraph in a late number of your paper, as well as in the Toronto Leader, in which enquiries are made respecting Ginseng. "How it came that the export of this article, which had been one of value in trade with China in the earlier years of Canada, 'so suddenly fell off.'" A certain writer, I think Charlevoix, states that the Canadians, unacquainted with the nature of the plant, and anxious to gather large quantities of the root for exportation, collected the plant at the wrong season of the year, whereby the plant was entirely destroyed, and thus a valuable article was entirely cut off from the country. But I have seen a letter, written before the close of last century by Asa Washburn, of Hallowell, to Col. Bell, of Norwich, in which the latter is requested to search for, and collect the plant for Mr. Washburn, reference being made to its great value.

I am, respectfully yours, W. C. Belleville, Oct. 24, 1867.

Breach Loaders.

We have the satisfaction of announcing that the whole Volunteer force has now been armed with the best muzzle-loading weapon which is as yet in existence. Thirty thousand Snider-Enfield rifles have been distributed among the different Volunteer battalions of Ontario and Quebec. These have, in several rifle matches within the last few weeks, been highly tested, and the result has invariably been such as to give the greatest satisfaction and confidence in the weapon to all who are armed therewith. In accuracy of fire, it is far superior to the muzzle-loading Enfield, while in respect to rapidity the breach-loader can fire, at the very least, three shots for every single shot fired by the muzzle-loader.

It is obvious that every improvement in simplicity of loading and rapidity of fire, must tend to raise the value of Volunteers or Militia as compared with that of regular troops in action, and the general result of the acquisition of these improved arms by the Volunteers is to inspire them with confidence in themselves and in their weapon, the importance of which cannot be overrated.

The Fenian leaders have been advertised by the manifesto of the Troy servant girls, that they will soon be reduced to their last cent if they do not devise some means of raising the wind once more, and attracting fresh subscriptions; and in this purpose they are now depending on the most ostentatious manner deposits of worthless old arms, and cases having the outer appearance of warlike stores, at different points along the Canadian frontier. But we shall be much surprised if the limit of gullibility of their, heretofore, dupes has not already been reached; and if these shallow devices succeed in filling the deplorable vacuum now existing in the Fenian treasury, "Surrender in vain the net is spread in the 'sight of any bird.'"—Montreal Gazette.

By this means he thinks millions of dollars worth of property and thousands of lives saved annually, as vessels could remain in port when notified of the approach of a storm, and by the use of signals could be warned of the coming danger. But the question is, how could a vessel be permanently and safely anchored at the distance proposed from shore? That is the difficulty which the Herald's correspondent has never yet been able to get over.

Telegraphic News.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

LONDON, Oct. 23 (midnight).—The following significant despatches have been received: "FLORENCE, ITALY, Oct. 23 (9 p.m.).—The news to-night is glorious for the cause of Italy. The government has decided it best to suppress the debate for the present."

PARIS, October 24, morning.—At the latest accounts received from Italy last night, the formation of the Italian minister was incomplete in consequence of the hesitation of him Durand to accept the post-foi tendered to him by Cridell. Kolazzi was acting as Prime Minister. Francis Joseph, the Emperor of Austria arrived at Paris yesterday evening and was received at the Railway station by the Emperor Napoleon. After exchanging congratulations, the Emperor entered a state carriage and were driven to his quarters. The Emperor says this visit of the Emperor Francis Joseph adds a new pledge of anxiety to the cordial relations established between Austria and France.

BERLIN, October 24.—The German States which are not members of the Confederation, have signified their intention of adding their signatures to the new peace treaty concluded between the Confederates of the North and the United States of America.

NEWARK, October 24, eve.—The course to-day was crowded with spectators. Additional interest was created by the announcement that "Lozenge" and "Wolsley" would run again for the Cambridge share stakes, the contest for which on the second day resulted in a dead heat for these two horses. The race took place much excitement, and resulted in the success of "Lozenge." The Free Handicap which followed was won by "Palmer." The Sweepstakes was won by "Rosecrance," one of the winners on the first day of this meeting.

LONDON, October 24.—It is reported Napoleon requested the Emperor Francis Joseph in a general conference, for the settlement of the Roman question, and to prevent the recurrence of the recent events in Italy.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Sir James South, an eminent astronomer one of the founders and several times president of the Royal Astronomical Society, died to-day at the advanced age of 90 years.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—In consequence of a secret movement in the city of Cork the authorities are keeping a sharp watch upon the Fenians there, and the police patrols have been doubled.

The government has refused the application of council for a postponement of the trial of the parties implicated in the outrage at Manchester.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The morning despatches from Florence, say that it was known that city early last night that Gen. Garibaldi had returned Italy, and succeeded in reaching Palermo in the province of Uabria, and that his arrival there was discovered, and he was forbidden by the Italian authorities from proceeding any further; since then nothing has been made public as to his movements or whereabouts.

The London Times of to-day has a strong editorial on the French intervention. It stigmatizes the compulsory course of France as a threat to Italy as perilous to Europe, and declares that its effect will be transient, for the Garibaldians must rise again, and a new enter prise against Rome is inevitable.

PARIS, Oct. 24 (a.m.).—The troops which were sent to embark on the naval expedition for the relief of Rome are now encamped around Toulon.

PARIS, October 24, eve.—The official statement of the Bank of France reports an increase of 4,000,000 francs in bullion during the past week.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The official returns of the Bank of England show that the amount of bullion in the vaults has decreased 2475,000, sterling during the week ending to-day.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 24.—The Board of Directors of the Royal Bank of Liverpool, yesterday, made an assessment of 25 per share upon the stockholders. An examination of the condition of the bank shows that its liabilities do not exceed 21,500,000 sterling. The directors say that the institution will soon resume business.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—A delay in the trial of the Manchester rioters is asked by the counsel for the defence, on the ground that the present excited state of public feeling against the Fenians, and the prejudice which exists against the prisoners in Manchester, will interfere with the impartial administration of justice.

LONDON, Oct. 25, noon.—Despatches from Rome state that the party of action, who have hitherto been very quiet, attempted an insurrection on Tuesday. A mine was placed under the barracks of the Papal soldiers, which was fired was a failure. Many persons were injured and the building was badly shattered. The general outbreak, which the firing of the mine was to signalize, was quickly suppressed, and the city soon became quiet.

LONDON, October 25, noon.—Consols 94 1/2. Erie 45 1/2. Bonds 69 1/2. 1 C 7 1/2.

LONDON, October 25, 2 p.m.—Consols 94 1/2. 1 C 7 1/2.

LIVERPOOL, October 25, noon.—Cotton firm; stock in port 678,000 bales, of which 165,000 are American.

LIVERPOOL, October 25, 2 p.m.—Manchester advices favorable. Breadstuffs active and dearer. Corn 32s 3d; Californian 34s 3d; Red 34s 3d; Peas 25s; Tallow 44s 9d.

GLASGOW, Oct. 25, 3 p.m.—The steamship Albatross has arrived.

A young man named Ogilvie was run over by the Grand Trunk Railway car, in Toronto, on the 24th Oct., and nearly severed the leg from the body.

To the Millers, Manufacturers, Produce Dealers, and Traders of Canada.

GENTLEMEN,
We beg to advise having admitted Mr. John C. Nore, of Halifax, as partner in our firm and have opened a Branch of our Business in that City, where it will be our aim to serve our friends in Canada to the utmost of our power in the attaining the best possible rates for consignments, the extension of the manufacturing interests to the Lower Provinces, the importing thence on Commission their Fish, Oils, &c., and the dissemination of correct and unbiased information respecting the markets.

On consignments to Halifax, as well as to Montreal, we will as heretofore make liberal advances against shipments, and drafts may in all cases be made at the option of Consigners either on Montreal or Halifax.

The season being now at hand when the Cheese and Butter in the country must be marketed, we take this opportunity of tendering our services for its sale here, or at either of the Principal points in the Lower Province or Great Britain, where we have first-class reliable correspondents who will do the very best that can possibly be done with consignments, cash advances on which will be made by us here when required.

FIRE and LIFE.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

THE principles on which this Company is founded contain all the elements required to develop the benefits of Life Assurance, and afford every facility to intending assureds. One of the advantages secured by those who insure their lives with this Company is that the outside expenditure for Management is absolutely restricted by the Deed of Settlement to Ten per Cent. of the Net Life Income. This most important restriction shows that the interests of participating policy holders are closely watched and carefully attended to by the Company. Attention is especially called to this point, as the proportion of premiums expended for Management Must Largely Influence Profits and Bonuses.

The next division of profits takes place in 1898, and all those who wish to participate in the profits should insure at once.

Garibaldi.

HIS LATEST MANIFESTO AGAINST THE PAPE.

Garibaldi, before his arrest on board the Leghorn steamer, drew up the following fresh proclamation, which has found its way into the Italian papers:

Italians!—To-morrow we shall have crowned our glorious revolution by dealing a final blow at the tabernacle of idolatry, imposture and shame in Italy. That pedestal of all tyranny, the Papacy, has incurred the anathema of the whole world, and the nations have now their eyes fixed on Italy as on a redeemer. And should the arrest of a single man cause her to stop terrified in her glorious mission? According to the desire of some friends, I have returned home, free and without conditions, with the promise that a steamer should be sent for me to take me to the continent. At present the man whose name is a shame to Italy has recourse to the precautions of hired assassins to prevent my return. In that situation I only ask my fellow-citizens to continue in the sacred path which they have traced out with the calm and majesty of a nation which has the consciousness of its power. To the army and the people I spoke of discipline when they, indulgent at the cowardly servility of one who governs us, demanded to be led to Rome. I told the soldiers that they should reserve their bayonets for a more glorious mission, and that for the mercenaries of the Pope the stocks of their land there is no fact evident to all; that is, the imposing fraternity of all the robust elements of the nation, the army people and volunteers. For him who should cast discord among those brothers! And when Italy shall see all her children united for her redemption those few cowards who pause from a miserable fear of a foreign intervention will disappear.

I therefore repeat, you must pursue the redemption of Rome at all hazards, and if you think any aid is necessary you must take steps to release me. GARIBOLDI.

A Clever Operator.

Some weeks ago, General Doyle, Commander of the Forces and Lieut. Governor of New Brunswick, was in the streets of Fredericton by a tall, gentlemanly soldier-like individual. The General intimated that the stranger had the advantage of him, his features had either never been seen before or had passed from his Excellency's recollection. The stranger was not slow to make himself known. He was Colonel Graham recently Military Secretary to the Emperor Maximilian, but he had served some years before in the same regiment as the General, he had been present in the United States Club when the General had made a brilliant speech, which he (Graham) had profited by many times since. To make a long story short, by the mention of persons and things, Colonel Graham managed to convince the General that he was a genuine individual who had served in the same regiment; he was invited to Government House, and being a well informed, agreeable, man who had seen much of the world, he became a welcome guest, in the circles of the New Brunswick capital—Governor Dundas of Prince Edward Island, came to Fredericton on a visit, and was so charmed with Colonel Graham, that he invited him to pay a visit to Charlottetown. The Colonel consented, but a serious difficulty presented itself. The English mail had not arrived, the Colonel had been previously disappointed in not receiving remittances, and expected all deficiencies to be made good in the next mail. In the meantime, he could not accompany Governor Dundas; he told General Doyle's aide-de-camp because he was afraid that, as a stranger, no banker would cash his draft, and General Doyle consulted and at once, with the generosity of a soldier towards an old comrade, told his aide-de-camp to introduce Col. Graham to a banker; and the Colonel, nothing loth, made a draft on his agent in England for £150 sterling, and so was enabled to make his projected trip to Prince Edward Island and visit to Governor Dundas. But in Charlottetown, he became impetuous again, and playing the same game skillfully he paid another hand of nearly the same amount. He left Prince Edward Island for Canada, bearing a letter of introduction from Mr. Dundas to Mr. Cartier, who was very polite, as befitted his station and his disposition. He in turn gave Col. Graham a letter of introduction to His Excellency, Governor Beavan, at Quebec, and there again Col. Graham felt the necessity of making a draft on his London agents for £150 sterling which was cashed through the intervention of the urbane Lieutenant-Governor. From Quebec Col. Graham came to Toronto, but we have not heard that he obtained any money here. We are afraid that Toronto is not so hospitable to new Brunswick, Prince Edward and Quebec. The hero of our tale went from Toronto to no one knows whither, and all that remains to be told is, that the drafts on the London agent have been returned, and that no one has yet been able to find a trace of Col. Graham of Maximilian's army.—Globe.

Mr. Gough's Recovery.

On a certain Sabbath evening, some twenty years ago, a reckless, ill-dressed young man was lying lounging under the elm trees in the public square of Worcester. He had become a wretched waif on the current of sin. His days were spent in the waking remorse of the drunkard; his nights were passed in the buffooneries of the ale-house.

As he staggered along—out of humor with himself and the rest of mankind—a kind voice saluted him. A stranger laid his hand upon his shoulder, and said, in cordial tones, "Mr. G—, go down to our meeting at the town hall to-night." A brief conversation followed, so winning in its character that the youth consented to go. He went—he heard the appeals against the pledge of total abstinence. By God's help he kept it, and keeps it yet. The poor boot-crimper who tapped him on the shoulder (good God! Stratton) has lately gone to heaven. But the youth he saved is to-day the foremost of reform on the face of the earth. Methinks when I listen to the thunders of applause that greet John B. Gough, on the platform at Exeter Hall or the Academy of Music, I am hearing the echo of that tap on the shoulder, and of that kind invitation under the ancient elms at Worcester! He that winneth souls is wise.—Quayle.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, OCT. 26.

THE BANK DIRECTOR'S MEETING.—In another column will be found an official statement of what occurred at the meeting held in Montreal by the Bank officers, of which we may have something to say in our next.

JUVENILE SMOKERS.—The law prohibiting minors from smoking on the streets is rigidly enforced in Halifax, N. S., several youths having recently been arrested and fined, for so doing. It is a pity that some such law is not in existence here for the benefit of our infantine smokers.

NEW DIRECTORY.—Our Town is now being canvassed for a new Business Directory, to be called the Grand Trunk Railway Gazetteer, which we are assured will be superior to any work heretofore published. It will, compiled, such a work is valuable, and should be well supported.

BURGULAR'S TOOLS.—The Madoc Mercury informs us that on Saturday, 19th inst., a bunch of skeleton keys, carefully wrapped up in an india-rubber pouch, were found in an opening in the sidewalk alongside Mr. E. D. O'Flynn's store, Malcom, and upon further search a centre bit, several drills, and a number of steel model safe keys were found. It is well that these keys have been found, as it will put the people on their guard.

WOLVERINES.—The Mercury says: Several of these wild animals have recently been trapped in the neighborhood of Wadsworth's Lake, and in the Story Settlement, Tudor. One of these "platers," trapped by Mr. F. Gunter, was so large, that when placed on its hind legs, the fore paws rested on a man's shoulders. Two or three others have been seen and heard in unpleasant vicinity to travellers after dark in Tudor.

GOLD DISCOVERIES.—The Madoc Mercury of the 26th inst. says: "During the last week another rich discovery has been made near the surface, a short distance from the original Richardson mine, yielding, we are informed, as much as six ounces to the pan." It also says that the shows of gold have been taken from Lot No. 34 in the 6th concession of Madoc, where the "gold was to be seen in the rock."

Run on Banks.

The suspension of the Commercial Bank has led to a general distrust in all Banks, and a run was made upon the Royal Canadian, Gore, and other Banks, in Toronto and other places. And to add to the excitement, the Bank of Montreal refused to take Royal Canadian bills, and it was generally rumored this morning that it had refused all Upper Canada bank bills. This, however, was not correct. It has put its foot, for the present, upon the Royal Canadian only, once they are not current here to-day, though we learn by the Toronto Leader, Globe and Telegraph, that the run upon the Bank in Toronto had abated, and that the bills were taken freely at par. The Bank has not suspended.

The Difference.

When the Fenian raid took place in Canada in 1866, and in Ireland at a later period, the English Press spoke of the affair lightly, and in many cases contemptuously, as the act of a number of lawless men. Sympathy was expressed in many quarters, and leniency recommended. How different the tone when the same outrages are committed at their own doors. That crime which by many is looked upon and palmed as treason when committed in Canada or Ireland, is vehemently denounced as murder in England, and the Press clamor for the full penalty of the law being carried out. Every one must regret and lament the murders which have been committed in connection with Fenianism, but it is well that the people of England have had the plague fully developed at their own doors, and let it effect. So long as it was confined to Ireland and Canada, these people could look on complacently, and attribute outbreaks to political disquietude, and excuse them on the principle of the restlessness of the Irish character. No such excuses are found for them, however, when committed in England. Oh, no, it then becomes a heinous murder, and punishment must follow. As a sample we give an extract from the Liverpool Courier of the 10th inst. It says,

"In the case of the Manchester outrage we are fortunate to be liberated from all the cant and cantillies which baffled justice so long in Ireland. The case is for murder, but for murder, a more execrable, daring, atrocious murder never was committed. That all admit, the only question is, 'who are guilty?' The verdict of the jury is given and sentence pronounced, swift execution should follow. This remedy against Fenianism will be found far more effective than disputes of local addresses."

The reader will naturally ask why such an outrage is any the less edition in England than in Ireland? Do not the same laws govern all parts of the Empire? A few more Fenian outrages committed in England will teach the people there a lesson they will not soon forget.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

SIR.—I would have written you ere this, in reference to the gold news of this locality, were it not that I was from home, and consequently not in a position to furnish you with any facts respecting the position of affairs in this, the "Golden City of the North." I must say that El Dorado has not much improved during the past three or four months, as matters for a while looked rather gloomy, and consequently there were no great inducements for parties to expend their capital in the way of erecting buildings or in the purchase of property. However, I am happy now to say that affairs are decidedly improving, and, as a matter of course, the drooping spirits of the good citizens of El Dorado are becoming somewhat revived.

Gold discoveries still continue to be made in various parts of the county, which, together with many other facts, must prove to the satisfaction of the most incredulous in existence of gold here in paying quantities, and that all that is now required is to have crushing mills erected to extract the precious metal from the quartz.

In reference to the celebrated Richardson gold mine, I may say that the excavation thereof is being carried on with energy, and up to this date I am sure there have been several thousand tons of quartz rock taken out of this mine, most of which is pronounced by parties capable of forming opinions upon such subjects, to be rich and valuable. That the very poorest of the quartz will pay well for crushing. The quartz is stored away in suitable buildings for that purpose, awaiting the completion of the crushing mill. The mine is now about forty-five feet deep, and, as was generally expected, is becoming richer the further down they proceed. Mr. Hardin is still here, superintending the working of the mine, and through his kindness access to the same is permitted to almost every person desirous of having a peep at this world renowned mine. The Company are now busily engaged in the construction of various buildings, such as offices, sheds, &c. They are also building a crushing mill, which is expected to be completed by the middle of November.

Messrs Scott & Taylor deserve great credit for their energy and enterprise in getting their crusher ready so soon, notwithstanding the many obstacles with which they have had to contend.

We also hear of several other mills being in the course of construction further back in the country, and especially in the vicinity of the village of Quenebago, where excellent indications of the presence of the precious metal exist. No doubt it will be necessary to have crushing mills established in various parts of the district to accommodate the wants of the numerous miners scattered over the locality. Several very important gold discoveries have been made in the vicinity of El Dorado. A few days ago Mr. Unwin discovered a very nice show of gold on a lot about three miles North East from El Dorado, and so confident is he that he has a "good thing" there, that he has at once entered into an agreement for the purchase of the property for some seven or eight thousand dollars. Mr. Editor, I am very happy to be able to report good news respecting the different mining companies established here. There are now some twelve or thirteen mining companies engaged in the development of the mineral treasures of this district. It is important that these companies are working with all the vigor and energy of the Royal Canadian Mining Company are succeeding admirably with their mining operations, having opened some very rich shows of gold on different occasions. Very recently several pieces of quartz were obtained, in which the gold was visible to the naked eye, which is a very great extent corroborates the results of the various assays made of the stock books of the company are now open, and last but not for some time, for the sale of stock, which is offered for a very reasonable sum, namely, ten dollars per share, in spirit of the mine, I would certainly recommend the stock of this company as quick as any I know of, excepting the celebrated Richardson Mine stocks.

In reference to the El Dorado Mining Company, I am also happy to state that they are prosecuting their labors with no small amount of energy, and up to the present are meeting with very favorable success. I was to-day shown by Mr. Mitchell Scott, of this company, a very good specimen of quartz taken from the Company's mine, which, indeed, presented a fine show of gold visible to the naked eye. The depth of this mine is about forty feet. The Excelsior Mining Company possess property on the Moore open, and also deservingly of special notice, as well as the Kootenay and Brantford and Gravelly Mining Companies. All these companies are prosecuting their mining operations with diligence and with every prospect of success. The average depth of these companies being about twenty feet deep, and judging from the results of the various assays made by some of the very best chemists of the quartz taken from the mines of these companies, I think their chances of success are good.

However, we must be patient and await the results of the crushing mills, which will now be in operation in a few days, as all depend on them at the present. I am informed that the proprietors, Messrs. Davis & Crawford, of the Eureka Mine, situate on Lot No. 3, in the 6th concession of El Dorado, are about resuming the working of their mine as it would be a pity that this mine should be idle, its quartz having been tested by experienced chemists, and found to be very rich, both in gold and silver.

There are several mines adjacent to the village of Madoc that present excellent indications, for instance, I may mention the shafts being sunk on the El Dorado property by former operators, who report the discovery of gold at two feet below the surface of the earth—continue to work, and will have presently a wealth of this property, and no doubt will succeed as the indications are really very satisfactory.

The excavating of the mine on the Seymour property is stopped for the present in consequence of the large quantity of water flowing into the mine, but I believe it is the intention of the parties to resume operations as soon as possible.

Since the erection of the crushing mills affairs are becoming better in these parts, and I am certain that if the crushing mills continue to work, we will have presently twenty times yet this fall, in this quiet and really interesting locality.

I am yours, &c., A. C. GIBSON, OF EL DORADO.

Statement of Facts Concerning the Recent Negotiations Between the Commercial and Other Banks.

(From the Montreal Herald.)

1. In the latter part of September the Commercial Bank obtained assistance from the Bank of Montreal to the extent of $300,000, at the request of the Government and upon the security of Government paper, repayable in November and December, with interest at the rate of six per cent per annum.

2. Upon the 16th October, the Commercial Bank again applied to the Bank of Montreal for assistance to the extent of $300,000, in consequence of the former loan not having proved sufficient to meet the withdrawal of deposits.

3. This advance was declined, for the reason that the Commercial Bank had considerably increased, instead of diminished its discounts during September, when it was in need of assistance; and the Commercial Bank of Montreal having learned that some of the largest depositors had already been secured by banks respectively.

4. The Commercial Bank then applied to the Government for assistance, and failed to obtain it.

5. The Commercial Bank renewed its application to the Bank of Montreal, which was again declined, for the reason, however, that the other Banks in Upper Canada should be applied to, and that if they were disposed to assist, and could not conveniently do so from their own resources, the Bank of Montreal would aid them in the latter.

6. The Bank of Montreal proposed to the Bank of British North America, and it was agreed that such advances were required, they should be made by the two Banks to the others in the proportion of two-thirds and one-third.

7. A meeting was held on the 29th October, when the representative of the Ontario Bank being the only one that had arrived, after a full discussion, agreed to his part, provided the others, who were expected from Upper Canada, would do so.

8. On Monday morning, 31st October, the following banks were represented at a meeting held at the Bank of British North America, of which Mr. Paton was appointed Chairman.

The Bank of Montreal,
The Bank of British North America,
The Ontario Bank,
The Bank of Toronto,
The City Bank of Montreal,
The Royal Canadian Bank,

and the Directors of the Commercial Bank. The Commercial Bank explained its position, and asked for a loan of $750,000, one half at four and the other at six months upon the security of one million five hundred thousand dollars of Government paper, and their current business.

The meeting was informed that the Bank of Montreal and the Bank of British North America were ready to advance the other Banks if they were inclined to assist, and that the Commercial Bank did not find it convenient to render such assistance from their cash resources.

10. The last proposal was at once rejected by the Upper Canadian Banks, who declared themselves quite able to furnish any assistance they thought proper to give from their own resources.

11. A desultory discussion ensued, in which it was contended by the banks from Upper Canada, and the City Bank, that the measure of assistance to be rendered should be in proportion to capital and not in proportion to liabilities, and that the Banks of Deposits and Note-circulation, which it was urged by the Bank of Montreal and the Bank of British North America, formed the criterion of danger in case the suspension of the Commercial led to a general withdrawal of confidence in the Banks.

12. It was then suggested by the Bank of Toronto that the Bank of Montreal should surrender the securities obtained for the loan made in September, and accept of the Bank of Montreal and the City Bank, and that each contribution should be in proportion to capital.

13. The Bank of Montreal rejected this proposal, and stated that having already assisted the Commercial, and its offer to advance to other banks in connection with the Commercial having been declined, it withdrew from the meeting, for the purpose of allowing the other banks to decide amongst themselves how far they would go in advancing to the Commercial before the Bank of Montreal would take any further part in the discussion.

14. The Bank of Montreal was requested and agreed not to discredit the Commercial in the meantime upon condition that the result of the meeting should be communicated without delay.

15. It was then suggested by Mr. Galt, who had been requested to attend the meeting of the Banks, when no prospect of agreement seemed probable, proceeded to the Bank of Montreal with the President of the Commercial Bank, after the close of the meeting, to announce that the banks had agreed to contribute as follows, to support the Commercial, subject, however, so far as the Upper Canada banks were concerned, to confirmation by telegram from their head offices, viz:

British,	$100,000
Bank of Toronto,	60,000
City Bank,	72,000
Royal Canadian,	90,000
Ontario Bank,	120,000
Total,	$442,000

And it was expected by the meeting that the following Banks would not refuse to contribute when the circumstances were explained, viz:

Gore Bank,	$50,000
Merchants' Bank,	72,000
Quebec Bank,	60,000
Total,	$182,000

Making $624,000 in all.

16. The Bank of Montreal, on hearing of this result, agreed to await the confirmation expected from Upper Canada, and also, if the proposition advanced by the Banks would extend the time for repayment of its loan of $300,000 to the same period as the loans from the other Banks.

17. The Bank of British North America advanced $100,000 to the Commercial for the day, on Commercial paper, to enable settlement with other banks to be made.

18. After considerable delay, telegrams were received from the head offices of the Banks in Upper Canada, in which sanction the advances that had been agreed upon by their representatives in Montreal.

19. The Commercial Bank, at a late hour in the evening, made a final application, desiring to know if there was any term upon which it could be sustained by the Bank of Montreal, the reply being that it was hopeless to expect that the latter could undertake such a serious responsibility at that time.

20. All efforts to obtain assistance having failed, the Directors of the Commercial Bank, resolved to suspend specie payments, as already announced.

Telegraphic News.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 25, noon.—The barque Home from Quebec, spoken at sea, had lost her deck load and sustained other damage.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Garibaldi has again been heard from. Without regarding the prohibition of the Italian authorities he left Foligno and pushed on toward the South. At last accounts he had arrived at Rieti, a town in the southern district of Umbria, not far from the Papal frontier, and within forty-two miles of Rome.

Gen. Bixio has accepted a position in the new Cabinet, as Minister of the Marine.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Additional advice from Rome acknowledges that the Garibaldians have not all retired from the territory of the church, but represent that the Pontifical troops have recently encountered with the remnant of the insurgents in which they have been uniformly successful.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—The reception of the Emperor of Austria in Paris has been most cordial and gratifying. His visit is popular with the Parisians, and wherever he appears in public he meets with enthusiastic manifestations of sympathy for the people. A professed feeling of sympathy for the brother of the unfortunate Maximilian heightens the respect and esteem with which the Emperor is received by all classes.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—About two weeks ago a Mr. O'Donnell, was shot in this city under circumstances which led to the belief that the outrage was perpetrated by the Fenians. The police succeeded in tracing the crime to a person named Murgidie, who, when examined, acknowledged his guilt, and was found to have no connection with any Fenian organization.

Intelligence from China states that a great battle had been fought between the rebel army of invasion and the troops of the Emperor. The battle took place within 30 miles of Peking, and that city was in great danger of falling into the hands of the victorious rebels.

—Rowley is rampant again in Ottawa—a most audacious highway robbery being most effected.

American Despatches.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—The United States steamer "Osage," with Gen. Rousseau and the Russian Commission on board, left Fort Simpson on the 14th.

It is understood that arrangements have been completed by the Pacific Railroad Company for the junction of the Lincoln and Marysville and Western Pacific Railroads.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The Herald's Vera Cruz special says the re-election of President Juarez is now undoubted. Out of the 245 electoral votes Gen. Porfirio Diaz only drew 7.

Admiral Togo is still at Vera Cruz, and there is as yet no certainty of his getting the late Emperor's body soon.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The Herald says:—A large party of financial and military celebrities started for Mexico on the steamer "Wilamette" yesterday afternoon. Senator Romero, Mexican Minister to the United States, will be taken aboard at Charleston. Among the passengers are General Sturm, chief of ordinance; Col. Mejia, of the Mexican army; Gen. Babcock, of Grant's staff; and other military, financial and commercial characters. The objects of the party are various.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The Times Washington telegram says:—The public will recollect, at the Burratt trial, the panel of jurors in the Criminal Court here was qualified, because the law had not been complied with. To-day a new panel was ordered, and 36 names drawn. They are all white, as the law yet includes the word white in its phraseology. Congress tried to change it at its last session, but the President rejected the Bill.

—Some poor idiot, the other day, thought it a clever practical joke to send a bottle of acid to a certain lady, and in a volume of poems published by an Ohio poet:

"I am an American maiden,
My eyes are blue and mild;
My lips are lovely and rosy,
My heart is undivided."
Guppy suggests an equally poetical and probably much more truthful, the following:

"I am an Ohio poet,
Kiss with half a dozen souls;
My lips are lovely and rosy,
And my stockings are full of holes."

—The late gales have been awfully disastrous all along the coast of Cape Breton, Magdalen Islands, and Prince Edward Island. A new schooner named the Julia Dash, belonging to Cadillac, Maine, with a crew of twenty-five men, struck on a reef about a mile and a half from the shore of the Magdalen Islands, and all were lost. Evidently the men attempted to swim ashore, as two bodies were driven in perfectly naked. The loss of life has been fearful among the fishermen.

The World Beyond.

How fair the earth, and Life how sweet,
When Pleasure leads our dancing feet;
When birds attune the rosy morn;
And sunshine crowns the golden corn;
When friends are true, and Love is fond,
But—there's a Better World beyond!

How dark the earth, and Life how sore,
When Pleasure leads the dance no more;
When sorrow mops, and pain consumes,
And sunlight brights the twilight gloom;
When our joy's the willow's weep,
When Love and Friendship break the bond,
But—there's a Happier World beyond!

How sad the earth, when Hate and Grief
When Falseness wears the mask of Truth,
And roses wrap the serpent's tooth;
And jealous lightnings blight the plain;
And every trail our ways with death,
Till Faith departs, and hope departs,
But—there's a Truer World beyond!

Blessed be God! No fading dross
Of earth I count as gain or loss,
My joy I prize, my life I share—
My voice, when I am called to pray,
But, looking up my soul to Thee,
I read, in starlight's pure expanse,
The lesson sweet, that aine have con'd:
There is a Better World beyond!

Put a Good Face Upon It.
If you wish to succeed in life; if you wish to find friends, if you wish your relatives and associates to enjoy your company, wear a cheerful face; everybody dislikes and shuns a sad one, if it is habitually sad. Everybody who God grows weary of being reminded of sorrow, and the heart that is always full of bitter waters will be left alone. Pretend to be happy, if you can do so, to your life. Speak to your eyes, smile to your face, and get the name of being cheerful, and it will be as impossible to you to keep from crying. Never but, looking up my soul to Thee, I read, in starlight's pure expanse, the lesson sweet, that aine have con'd: There is a Better World beyond!

INSURANCE COMPANY

CAPITAL, $10,000,000.

FIRE AND LIFE.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

THE principles on which this Company is founded contain all the elements required to develop the benefits of Life Assurance, and afford every facility to intending assureds.

One of the advantages secured by those who insure their lives with this Company is that the outside expenditure for Management is absolutely restricted by the Deed of Settlement to TEN PER CENT of the Net Life Income. This most important restriction shows that the interests of participating policy holders are closely watched and carefully attended to by the Company. Attention is especially called to this point, as the proportion of premiums expended for Management

Must Largely Influence Profits and Bonuses.

The next division of profits takes place in 1898, and all those who wish to participate in the profits should insure at once.

The Nova Scotia Legislative Council.

The following appointments made, on the 28th June were only gazetted on the 17th October.

To be President of the Legislative Council in place of the Hon. E. Kenny, resigned:

The Hon. Alexander Keith.
To be members of the Legislative Council:
Hons. John McKinnon, Peter Smith,
Samuel Creelman,
W. O. Hallerman,
D. McN. Parker,
James Fraser.

In place of:
The Hon. Edward Kenny.
" Jonathan McCully,
" John A. Henderson,
" John W. Ritchie,
" John Holmes,
" R. B. Dickey.

Appointed by the Ministry as Members of the Senate of the Dominion of Canada.

These appointments must have been made by the Upper Government two days before Nova Scotia became a province of the Dominion. We take it for granted that the Council is composed of a majority of the supporters of that Government. The opposite party has since carried the country unanimously; and as things stand there must be a fine prospect of a dead lock, unless, indeed, the new Legislative Council are prepared to sacrifice their views and feelings for the sake of securing harmony between the two branches. In Ontario, as well as in the Province of Quebec, the people have lively recollections of the unpleasant traditions of the evils that arise from a nominated second Chambers being set up in opposition to the popular branch. The prevention of this evil in Nova Scotia, is very desirable. It may be thought useful, for the moment, to hold a check over an Assembly that may possibly prove an antagonist to the system of government under which it has been called into existence. But this is a policy that may easily be stretched too far, if it is not dangerous to experiment on, ever so little.

The Wheat Crops of 1867.

The wheat crop in Canada for the year 1867, is quite a full average, if not more. That of the United States is generally good, and probably bears the same proportion to that of average years as the Canadian product. In Southern Russia, one of the finest grain-producing countries in the world, the crop is excellent. It was thence that Great Britain drew her largest supplies last year. An abundant crop of wheat in Southern Russia has more effect upon the English markets than an extra crop in the United States. In Austria the harvest was very fine, the grain good quality, and gave an average in quantity. In Hungary, the crop was well harvested, abundant and good. In Galicia, the crops suffered severely from heavy rains and floods, but with that exception, the wheat was good and an abundant yield. From Prussia the most favourable results are reported. There had been heavy rains and immense floods, but these did little damage except in localities unfavourably situated. Taking all these facts into consideration, and admitting that, in England, there is, after all, an average crop, we think that we may calculate with certainty on a very great reduction in the price of breadstuffs in the British market during the present year ending next July.

HINT FOR A DRAMATIST.—"I have noticed with regret that the Vindicator has lately been severe upon the gentler sex," said Milwarden. "I assume that you mean women. Not severe, but full of kindly advice," said Mangle. "Hang it," said Milwarden, "kindly advisers are all very well, but I should be inclined to say with King David, let not your precious balms break my head, a course your fellows have been taking." "But utterly deny it! Give an instance," "What did you say about the Merry Wives of Windsor?" "I said nothing; but I remember that the play has been lately alluded to." "Yes, pleasingly. I forget the exact words, and I dare say that I shall substitute better ones, but you are something to the effect that if Shakespeare had to write the play now, there would be no merry wives, but a couple of diabolical matrons, that Sir John Falstaff would be smited on by each, and that the intrigue would arise out of their quarrel for his good graces, and finally, to heal scandal, it would be proposed that Anne Page should be Lady Falstaff, but the knight, with a touch of Lord Ogilvy, would transfer her to Fenton, who should be secretly known to Sir John's illegitimate son. Then, you said, the play would be acceptable to the British nation, who now call it coarse." "I am sure you would use the wrong adjective," said Mr. Mangle. "But there is a good deal of truth in it, for all that. Expand the subject into an article, and I will see whether I can use it."—Sonnet or Lullaby by Shirley Brooks.

"It is undeniable," says Prentice, "that in America it takes three to make a pair, he, she, and a hired girl. Had Adam been a modern, there would have been a hired girl in Paradise to look after little Abel and 'raise Cain.'"

A manly little fellow of five years fell and cut his upper lip so badly that a surgeon had to be summoned to sew the wound. He sat in his mother's lap during the painful operation, pale but very quiet, resolutely keeping back his tears and moans. In her distress, the young mother could not refrain from saying: "O doctor! I fear it will leave a disfiguring scar!" Charles looked up into her tearful face, and said, in a comforting tone: "Never mind, mamma, my moustache will cover it!"

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, OCT. 29.

PERSONAL.—Dr. T. S. Hunt of the Geological Department of Canada, and Mr. A. Michel left Belleville this morning on a visit to the gold regions in North Hastings.

TOWN COUNCIL.—A special meeting of the Council was called for seven o'clock last evening, to take up the question of the Street Surveyor's Pay List, but there being no quorum at half-past seven o'clock, the members who were present left.

THE INDIAN WAR.—A Treaty has been concluded with the Kiowas and Comanches by which those tribes agreed to go upon a reservation, in consideration of receiving $2,500 annually and clothing and provisions. It was thought a similar treaty would soon be perfected with all the Southern Indians. Official despatches received at Washington state that there is very little doubt of a general peace.

BANK STOCKS.—Bank stocks in some cases have taken a tumble since the suspension of the Commercial. The last quotations are: Montreal Bank, 133½; Bank British North America, 105 to 106; City Bank, Montreal, 103½ to 104½; Banque du Peuple, 107½; Molson's Bank, 109; Ontario Bank, 102; Bank of Toronto, 117; Quebec Bank, 103½; Gore Bank, 91 to 92; Bank Jacques Cartier, 109 to 110; Eastern Townships Bank, 98 to 100; Union Bank, 103 to 104; Royal Canadian Bank, 89½ to 93; Canadian Bank of Commerce, 103 to 104.

Death of Mr. Thomas Sellar.

We regret to learn from the Montreal Gazette the death of an old and esteemed friend and confidant, Mr. Thomas Sellar, publisher of the Echo, Montreal. Mr. Sellar was one of the foremost in organizing the Canadian Press Association, and his death will be greatly lamented by those whose privilege it was to enjoy his intimate relationship. His family have our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement. The following brief obituary we copy from the Montreal Gazette of yesterday: It is with much regret that we find ourselves called upon this morning to record the death of the late Mr. Thomas Sellar proprietor of the Echo and Protestant Episcopal Recorder. Mr. Sellar has, for many years, been connected with the Press in Canada, and was much esteemed for his genial good nature as well as for many sterling qualities by all who knew him, and especially by his more intimate friends of the profession. He received marks of their respect in 1866, by being elected to the office of President of the Press Association of Canada, at the last annual meeting he attended, accompanying the Association on the excursion to Goderich, Detroit, &c. Mr. Sellar who has been removed at the early age of 59 years, was a native of Elgin, Scotland. He resided for a time in Glasgow, and at the age of twenty-four came to Canada, where he engaged in business in the West. Subsequently he occupied the office of sub-editor of the Globe, a paper with which he continued in after years to maintain a connection. He next became proprietor of the Echo, the office of publication of which was removed to Montreal about 1862. From that time the deceased has continued to reside in this city, where, as in an early day, he made many warm friends. The Echo has been distinguished as the organ of the Evangelical party, amongst whom, as well as with Churchmen generally, it has occupied a high position. Early in the past summer Mr. Sellar was troubled with what at first appeared to be only a slight cold, and though suffering somewhat from weakness, he attended the Press Association at Goderich, and was afterwards present at the meeting of the Diocesan Synod of Ontario Kingston. He returned to Montreal early in August, the first symptoms of disease having developed themselves into inflammation of the lungs. Ever since he has been confined to the house, the case assuming a very complicated character, and resulting in death on Sunday morning. Mr. Sellar was married in the summer of 1866.

In TESTES and on the Rio Grande the storm on the 21st inst. was very destructive. Thousands of houses were blown down, and a large number of persons were killed.

General Debility which makes a person a bore to society and a bore to himself, is cured by Perry Davis' Pain Killer. A trial proves it.

Important from Italy.

The news from Italy this morning is highly important. Garibaldi has not only succeeded in making good his escape and placing himself at the head of his army, but he is already pounding away at the very gates of the Holy City. Hundreds and thousands of the young men of Italy are swarming to the frontier and filling up his depleted ranks; the troops of the King are inspired with the old hero's enthusiasm and refuse to fire a shot at his brave volunteers; the Papal troops are flying before the victorious Garibaldians, and if he is not interfered with by the troops of Napoleon, Garibaldi will have accomplished ere many hours, the one darling object of his life—the liberation of Rome. For this he has struggled as no other man has struggled. For this he has sacrificed what no other man has sacrificed; and now, when apparently upon the very eve of its accomplishment, every friend of civil and religious liberty throughout the world will earnestly hope that the designs of Napoleon will be frustrated, and that Garibaldi may succeed in giving to Italy its rightful Capital, the City of Rome itself.

The Government and Montreal Bank.

The failure of the Commercial Bank has brought to the surface a few facts, which it is well the public should know, and it is well that these facts are brought to light by the leader of all agitations in Ontario. The readers of the Globe cannot but remember the oft-repeated assertions which have been made, that it was Mr. Galt who sold the country in its entirety to Mr. King; that it was Mr. Galt who was bound in fetters to the Montreal Bank, which rules the country with a rod of iron. Such, however, according to the Globe's statement of the 28th September, is not the case. The blame rests upon the shoulders of a gentleman, who, until he joined the present government, had been the model Minister and astute Financier, and who received, not only the support, but the highest encomiums of the Globe. After reciting the different applications for aid by the Commercial Bank to the Government, and then to the Bank of Montreal, it says: "Ministers were willing to furnish what was needed, but they discovered that Mr. Howland, when Finance Minister, had made a bargain with Mr. King, the manager of the Montreal Bank, in arranging for the issue of Government notes, that the Government should grant no assistance to any bank 'without his (Mr. King's) permission.' It is right that this fact has been disclosed, because many of the Grit party, who, anxious to have a grievance upon which to harp, have been industriously and insiduously attributing the whole difficulty to Mr. Galt, and more particularly to the rule of a Tory Government. Now it appears to have been the act of one, who but a few months since was extolled as the paragon of statesmen. While every one must regret the position in which Mr. Howland has placed the country, in rendering it necessary to apply to a bank manager for his permission, before it dare render assistance to an important institution, in which many widows and orphans have their all invested, still we must reflect upon the peculiar position in which he was placed. Mr. Brown and his party had done all that talent and energy could possibly do to frustrate every scheme propounded by the Government to provide ways and means; and succeeded, so far as to convince a shrewd business man like Mr. King that the difficulty of the Ministry was his opportunity, and consequently succeeded in inducing Mr. Howland to concede more than he should have done, the result of which has been to bring the whole Cabinet at his feet—a position, now that the facts are known, from which they must relieve themselves, and that, too, at an early day. That the Cabinet had no knowledge of this arrangement is evident from the remarks of the Globe, for it has the candor, in this instance, to acknowledge 'that some members of the Government were much chagrined to find themselves entirely at the mercy of their bankers,' but contends that they humiliated themselves by carrying out that agreement. It is no humiliation for a Government to carry out a promise which it had made. It was in honor bound to carry out that arrangement to the letter, but it will be extremely humiliating if the Ministry do not take immediate steps to relieve themselves from any such restriction. Why was this stipulation demanded by Mr. King? He saw that it would be long ere the banks would be drained of their bullion through his management, that by an insidious policy he could create a distrust in the minds of the people, and that once accomplished, bill holders and depositors would become alarmed, a run follow, and his object accomplished. The mode of operation was "by instructions given at the request of the Montreal agencies in the west" to send all Commercial bills to the place of issue at once. By this means he would be in a position to demand gold at any moment. Is not the same course being pursued now towards the Royal Canadian Bank? For while professing to honor the bills of this Bank by receiving them in small numbers, they are dishonoring them when brought to the Bank in large quantities. The intention is transparent to the most casual observer, and that is to monopolize the business of the whole country, which he thinks "legitimately belongs to him," and which he is aiming to secure.

The Globe could not discuss a question of this kind without endeavoring to fasten the whole blame upon the Government. It says: "Be it observed, that the Government, in issuing legal tenders through the Bank of Montreal, has separated that institution from the rest of the Banks." Not exactly correct, Mr. Globe. The other Banks separated themselves from the Montreal Bank, by refusing to accept Mr. Galt's scheme, and no Bank took more decided stand in opposition than the Commercial Bank, which was its last great effort. Had the Banks entered into the scheme, as did the Bank of Montreal, they nor the unfortunate stockholders would now be losing their all, and the country would not now be passing through this monetary crisis. It was necessary for the Ministry to raise money; the Banks would not advance nor loan, and it became a necessity to adopt some scheme by which the necessary funds could be realized most beneficially to the country, and if the Banks would not comply, it was no good reason why the whole scheme should be abandoned, nor why an arrangement should not have been made to carry it out to as great an extent as possible. The time is not far distant when we hope to see but one paper currency in the whole Dominion, and that issued upon the authority of Canada, so that we shall have no more Bank failures, by which bill holders or depositors can be ruined. Or in other words, let the present scheme of Provincial notes be extended so as to cover the whole paper circulation of the country.

French Fleet Sailed.—The King's Troops won't fight against Garibaldi.—National Unity gaining Ground.—The Pope's Letter.—Fighting near Rome.—A second Uprising.—Great Battles.—Garibaldi Victorious.—Italian Ministry not Formed.—Garibaldi before Rome.—Young Men swarming to join him.—Important Rumors.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

LONDON, October 30, midnight.—The following important despatches have been received here:

PARIS, October 30, night.—The fleet of war steamers left Toulon this morning, under orders to proceed direct to Civita Vecchia. The embarkation of troops in transports at Toulon has been completed, and a despatch announcing their departure for Italy is momentarily expected.

FLORENCE, October 28.—The soldiers of King Victor Emmanuel refused to fight against Garibaldi. The cause of National Unity in the councils of the King's Government is gaining ground. It is now considered probable that a thoroughly Radical Ministry will be formed, whose policy will be devoted to making Rome the capital of Italy.

PARIS, October 30, eve.—Bourse better and prices stronger.

Rome, October 30.—The Pope in a letter to the Roman Catholic Bishops throughout the world, says that the patrimony of the church has been assailed by revolutionists, and asks them to offer prayers in all the churches for the Holy See.

The Police on Friday, in searching a house, met with resistance. They attacked the house with bayonets, killed fifteen Garibaldians, and took thirty-six prisoners and a quantity of arms and bombs. There has been fighting to-day half a mile from the city. Great excitement prevails within the walls. The revolutionists are making preparations for a second uprising. A proclamation has been issued to prohibit assemblages of over four persons together at the same time. All persons are requested to remain within their houses, and shops are to be closed when the signal of alarm is given.

It is reported that 1,500 Garibaldians attacked Viterbo yesterday, and were repulsed with heavy loss. The citizens of Rome have been armed and patrol the streets nightly.

FLORENCE, Oct. 28.—It is reported that a desperate battle was fought near Monte Rotondo on Friday. Garibaldi won the victory. With five battalions he set out to fight the Papal forces, taking one hundred prisoners and three guns. Many were killed and wounded on both sides.

General Cialdini has been unable to complete the formation of a new Ministry, and has abandoned the attempt. Both Signor Ricasoli and General Durando are trying to reconstruct the Cabinet.

TURIN, Oct. 28.—There was a great popular demonstration in this city yesterday in favor of making Rome the capital of the nation, and an address to the King of Italy to that effect was adopted.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Garibaldi's force is said to be from 10,000 to 12,000 strong. All the Papal troops have been concentrated before Rome, with orders to act upon the defensive. The troops have sailed from Toulon, and it is expected they will reach Civita Vecchia this afternoon.

FLORENCE, Oct. 27.—Two battles have been fought between the Papal troops and the Garibaldians. The first was at Monte Rotondo, the second further south, at Torretto. In both of these desperate engagements the invaders were victorious, and Garibaldi has now arrived before Rome with 10,000 men under his command.

FLORENCE, Oct. 27.—The young men of Italy are swarming over the Papal frontier to join Garibaldi. There is a report that Garibaldi received a check at Monte Rotondo from the Papal troops, who were indifferently reinforced.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—The Moniteur to-day says the fleet at Toulon had been kept back at the request of the King of Italy, but it has now sailed for the Italian coast because no Cabinet has been formed at Florence, and because Garibaldi is menacing the city of Rome. This action of France is declared not aggressive.

Both Italy and France are interested in the preservation of order and the vindication of the law. The Moniteur hopes that the entente cordiale between the two countries will not be disturbed.

A banquet was given yesterday by the foreign members of the Imperial Commission of the Exposition Universelle to the French members. Many speeches were made, and a very cordial state of feeling was manifested. Mr. Rouher, Minister of Foreign Affairs, made an important and significant speech, in which he alluded directly to the present crisis in Italy, the Peninsula, and said he hoped Italy would not, under the influence of bad passions, be led to engage in war with France, but that she would emerge from this great national trial purified and a friend of order.

It is expected that the first division of the naval expedition for the relief of Rome, which left Toulon on Saturday morning, will reach Civita Vecchia to-night.

The wildest rumors in regard to Italy are in circulation here. It is reported that the Italian Crown Prince has put himself at the head of an army to resist the French. Another rumor says that Victor Emmanuel will abandon his crown.

BREMEN, Oct. 27.—The King of Prussia has returned from his tour through the South German States.

The second session of the Parliament of the North German Confederation was closed yesterday by the King of Prussia in person, who,

In a speech, congratulated the members on the success of their labors, and the complete progress which had been made towards the complete unity of Fatherland.

QUEENSTOWN, October 28.—The steamships "Weaver," "Nobuaka," and "Celia," from New York, have arrived.

QUEEN
INSURANCE COMPANY

CAPITAL, $10,000,000.

FIRE AND LIFE.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.

THE principles on which this Company is founded contain all the elements required
to develop the benefits of Life Assurance, and afford every facility to intending assureds--
One of the advantages secured by those who insure their lives with this Company is that the outside expenditure for Management is absolutely restricted by the Deed of Settlement to Ten per Cent. of the Net Life Income. This most important restriction shows that the interests of participating policyholders are closely watched and carefully attended to by the Company. Attention is especially called to this point, as the proportion of premiums expended for Management
Must Largely Influence Profits
and Bonuses.

The next division of profits takes place in 1888, and all those who wish to participate in the profits should insure at once.

Sir Thomas Troubridge.

The London Telegraph finishes up a very excellent article on military glory and reputation in this manner.

"This truth—not a word and one I looked at rightly—is brought strangely home by the fact that, in recording the death of Sir Thomas Troubridge, which occurred the other day, it should be thought necessary to dwell upon the act of prowess which rendered him famous. To those who can recall the Crimean years, it seems as if still with the glory of his general. Amongst the men who fell at Inkerman fighting in that unequal contest, where the infantry held its own the living November day, against the armies which the Russians kept hurrying against our position, and hurrying in vain, there were scores as brave as gallant, and as well born as the baronet who had just died. Of that proud day it may be said, as Scott's knight, 'knight fought like noble, squire like knight.' But yet, in all the long sad record of the killed and wounded at Inkerman, the deepest impression on the public was made by the fate of Sir Thomas. A man can only die once, and it is not England's custom to pine in unavailing regrets over the graves of her sons who have fallen in front of the enemy. But for Sir Thomas Troubridge there seemed to have been reserved a fate worse than death itself. In the very prime of life, in the possession of wealth, rank and honor; on the eve of his wedding, of a marriage on which his heart was set, he was stricken down, and left to drag out his remaining years, a maimed, helpless cripple. All England read how the wounded man was laid by the gun, where the fire was hottest, and how for hours he endured his untended agony without complaint or groan. When, at last, by some strange miracle his life was saved, and he was brought home, no pains were saved to do him honor. He was the hero of the day; and when the Queen placed with her own hands the badge of honor on the breast of the soldier, who had to be wheeled like a helpless infant into her Royal presence, it was felt that her Majesty had interred faithfully the sentiments of her people. Such consolation as public honor and national respect, and, above all, the love of the wife of his choice, could give the crippled hero was accorded to him; and it is no unending ending to a career not devoid of romance that Sir Thomas Troubridge should have only survived by a few weeks the lady who was to be his solace and stay of his latter years. The Crimean war produced far braver soldiers, many heroes as brave and fearless, many men of greater note; but the generation which fought at Inkerman, and which identified no personage more with its glorification than the dead baronet, the cripple whom the Queen honored and a nation loved.

A New Electric Light—Gas and
with.

An exhibition of the working of a new method for procuring light by means of electricity, the invention of Professor Nollet, of Paris, was made at the Battery, New York, a few nights ago. The illuminating apparatus having been placed on the roof of the Battery office, the clear and penetrating light a great distance. So strong was the light that the captain of one of the revenue cutters informed the company that he had read his newspaper by it at the distance of nearly six miles, and at the Narrows the ordinary gas light displayed from the tower of the Battery was entirely lost sight of in the brilliancy of its new rival. The apparatus for producing electricity is quite simple, consisting of several series of horse-shoe magnets—58 magnets in all—arranged in a cylindrical form in a frame within which is a revolving cylinder thickly studded with bollocks of soft wire which, by the motion of the cylinder, are made to pass very rapidly between the poles of the magnets. The action of the magnets on these revolving points generates a large amount of electricity, which is carried through a conducting wire to the point where the illuminating apparatus is placed; and thence back to the generator. At the illuminating point the circuit is broken, and the two ends of the wire are tipped with pencils formed of the resilient substance which collects in the retorta of gas works. These pencils become intensely heated by the passage of the current, and give out an intense white light. As the points burn, oil of the carbon pencils are fed up by the clockwork so as to preserve a uniform distance between them.

The expense of producing the light, exclusive of the cost of the power required to drive the generating machine, is said to be about two cents per hour. In this case the generator was driven by a small Andrews oscillating engine of about two horse power, which was ample for the purpose. The same generating apparatus may be used to supply several light-houses at the same time, if in the same neighborhood, as the electricity can be conducted through wire several miles, as in the electric telegraph.

"Doubtless," I do not say that, man will steal," said a witness on a trial, "as I was a chicken, I'd roost high while was around."

Daily Intelligence.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, OCT. 31.

CLOSING SHOPS.—We are requested to state that after the 1st of November, the stores will close at six o'clock for the winter months.

PENNY READINGS.—The Penny Readings, under the auspices of the Good Templars, will be held this evening in the Ontario Hall, Bridge Street.

DEATH OF BISHOP STRACIAN.—A special telegram from Toronto this afternoon announces the death of the venerable Bishop STRACIAN, which took place in Toronto at twelve o'clock to-day. He died at the good old age of 91 years and 7 months.

LA CROSSE MATCH.—A match between the volunteers and civilians in the Belleville Club will take place on the race course to-morrow afternoon, at 4 o'clock. As it is the first match of La Crosse that has been played in Belleville, we have no doubt there will be a large number of spectators.

CROPS IN GREAT BRITAIN.—Several British Commercial papers, by last mail, assert that the crop, when threshed, fell far below general anticipations, and that as supplies are still short higher prices may even yet be looked for. This feeling has given a slightly firmer tone to freights in Montreal.

APPLYING FOR TROOPS.—Trenton is making application for 400 or 500 troops. The Courier says they have as fine a barracks as any in the Dominion, which can be had for a moderate rent. The authorities have written to headquarters and ask that an inspector be sent to examine the buildings.

ROYAL CANADIAN BANK.—The Treasurer of the Government of Ontario, Hon. E. B. Wood, has given public notice that "all payments to be made on account of the Ontario Government may be made to the Royal Canadian Bank and its agencies," thus making the Royal Canadian the financial agent of the Ontario Government.—This will settle all doubts as to the safety of the Royal Canadian Bank.

NEW DOMINION MONTHLY.—The November number of this monthly is an improvement upon the first. It contains an excellent variety of both selected and original matter, and bids fair to occupy an important position in the field of literature. The typographical appearance of the magazine is highly creditable to the publishers, and as it is a Canadian undertaking, and possesses real merit, we trust it may receive a large circulation. It is published by John Douglas & Son, Montreal, at $1.00 a year in advance.

KINGSTON ASSIZES.—The trial of Ethan Allen for the murder of Cornelius Driscoll at the Kingston Brewery, commenced yesterday. Mr. Wm. Ferguson and A. Tibbode defended the prisoner. The evidence adduced was in substance the same as given before the Coroner's inquest, excepting that Jones swore that Gemmell told him that Allen gave the fatal blow, while Gemmell gave the signal by clapping his hands. The trial occupied the whole day.

The McMahon Petition.

The Canadian Champion, referring to the petition for pardon of Father McMahon, the Fenian prisoner, makes the following just remarks. We are glad to see that the Press is beginning to speak out upon this subject:

"The coolest and most impudent thing that has ever occurred in the presentation of a petition to his Excellency Lord Monck, for the release of Father McMahon, a Fenian prisoner in the Penitentiary. With all these loud threats of war, while his fellow prisoners are making common and bloodied at home murdering the officers of the law, and rescuing prisoners, while they even go so far as to threaten the life of our beloved sovereign, a petition to set at liberty this man, who if strict justice had been administered would have died a felon's death, McMahon, in particular, above all the other prisoners, is the most guilty. Notwithstanding the instructions of the head of his church, and the example of their superior dignitaries—this priest joined himself to the murdering gang, and gave them the benefit of his superior education and intelligence. He is just as responsible for the blood of those gallant volunteers who fell at Ridgeway as if his hand had fired the shot, and yet the Governor is asked to pardon him! We hope that the prayer of this petition will be refused. We must not forget the gallant dead who fell, and what is due to their memory. Let Father McMahon serve out his time in penitentiary, and thank his fate that he has escaped as easily as he did, the just vengeance of a wronged people. Leniency with the prisoners has been tried and found to have no effect, the wrong constructions have been put upon the Fenian policy of our executive. The Fenian leaders have ascribed the mitigation of the sentence of the prisoners to fear, rather than to an unwillingness on the part of our government to shed the blood of these misguided creatures. The lenient policy has been a failure, and has made them more bold and impudent than before. A strict interpretation of the law, not in a spirit of vengeance, but as a warning, should be enforced on any future raiders."

The Commercial Bank.

The following are the resolutions passed at a meeting of the Stockholders of the Commercial Bank, held in Montreal, on Tuesday, the 29th inst.

It was moved by Hugh Allan, Esq., seconded by the Hon. Mr. Holton.

That Thomas Paton, Esq., of the Bank of British North America, be requested to take the Chair, and Mr. Cross to act as Secretary—Carried.

It was moved by W. Workman, Esq., seconded by George Moffatt, Esq.,

That the meeting is of the opinion that efforts should be made, with the view either to reconstitute the bank, either by retreating the present stock and obtaining additional capital, or by amalgamating with another bank, or by taking any other steps that will enable the bank to resume specie payments, the whole subject to be referred to the committee of the shareholders present in person or by proxy at a meeting specially called for the purpose, and further, that application be made to the Legislature for such legislation as may be found to be necessary—Carried.

It was moved by J. G. Mackenzie, Esq., seconded by Robert Anderson, Esq.,

That the meeting request the Special Directors to look further into the position of the bank as it may be affected by the recent suspension, and to be prepared to submit a statement of the position of the bank to the shareholders at the 6th of November to the shareholders, or previously to any other persons or institutions from whom a loan may be possibly obtained, with a view to resume specie payments—Carried.

It was moved by W. Workman, Esq., seconded by the Rev. Mr. Cordner,

That the thanks of the meeting be tendered to the Hon. Mr. Holton, Hugh Allan, and Alex. Morris, Special Directors, for the very great care and attention bestowed by them in investigating the affairs of the Commercial Bank—Carried.

The meeting was largely attended by those interested as stockholders, as well as representatives from other banking institutions in that city. It seemed to be the impression that the Bank would be reconstituted in some shape.

Our Gold Fields.

Though there has not been that rush to the gold fields of Hastings which enthusiasts anticipated early this spring, and though disappointment has to some extent settled down upon those who expected to make their fortunes in a day, there is enough in the developments made this summer, to satisfy us that the Hastings region bids fair to take its place amongst the richest gold-producing countries in the world.

First, we have the discovery of the Richardson gold mine, which has been the basis of all subsequent operations; and here the precious metal was found in quality and quantity which placed it ahead of any similar discovery in the Dominion, and which made it rank equal to anything found in California, British Columbia or Australia. Next we had discoveries made in the townships of Madoc, Marmora, Tudor, Elzevir and other townships adjoining; and assays made of ore obtained from these various points showed conclusively that gold was widely distributed over the whole Hastings district. The opinions of practical miners who have had large experience in other gold fields have been nearly unanimous in pronouncing it a rich gold region; the opinions of mineralogists who have made a careful survey of the whole district confirm the opinion of working miners; and the operations of the season which is now nearly concluded, prove that we have a rich gold country in the Hastings District.

In conversation recently with Dr. Girdwood, of Montreal, a gentleman whose opinion upon this question is highly valued—he stated that as a result of a short visit to the Richardson Mine and the country surrounding, not long since, he was very favorably impressed with what he saw, and he had no doubt that gold was widely distributed throughout those Townships, and that it would be found in paying quantities. He said, moreover, that parties made a great mistake in stopping work when they found gold to the depth of from ten to fifteen feet; having found it, there was evidence of its existence, but the next thing to do was to find and follow the lead, and the deeper they went, the greater the probability of getting gold in paying quantities. Dr. Hall, of the same city, who has been some time in the Nova Scotia gold fields, and who has also visited the Madoc region, spoke in the most favorable terms of the gold-bearing quartz of this section, and expressed himself confident that it would be a rich gold-producing country. The evidence, therefore, of geologists, mineralogists and practical miners, and the developments made this summer, put the question of the existence of gold in paying quantities beyond doubt.

Within the past week a new discovery has been made at the Richardson Mine, which has given renewed confidence in the gold region. About three feet south from the original shaft, and very near the surface, a pocket or strave of the black sand has been discovered, and from which already six potok barrels of the rich stuff has been taken. An idea of the richness of this material may be imagined when one man of it washed yielded $40 in gold.—The pocket is not yet exhausted, and on the sides of the wall of the crevice the rock is full of the precious metal. In the original shaft the miners are down to the depth of 50 feet, and at this depth they have again come to gold visible in the rock. A second shaft has been sunk about 40 feet west from the original shaft, at which a number of men are now at work. The machinery of the crushing mill for the Richardson mine is now all on the ground, and it is expected the mill will be in operation about the first of December. In the meantime work is being continued in both places, and the ore piled up in a secure place.

The Belleville Richardson Mining Company, who own a plot adjoining the property of the Richardson Mining Company, have been operating for some time past, and we are informed found gold the other day at a depth of ten feet. Canals have been dug for a distance of 200 feet at three different points, for the purpose of striking the lode of the Richardson mine, which connects with the Richardson mine, a shaft has been sunk, and at the depth of about ten feet, gold has been found visible in the rock.

In Elzevir, it will be seen by our Bridge-water letter, gold has been found in several localities, and mining prospects are again looking up. Indeed, whichever way we turn, the news from the gold district is of the most cheering character, and the large investments made by capitalists in the purchase of lands, in the formation of companies, in sinking shafts, in building crushing mills, and in other ways, show that those most deeply interested have full confidence in the existence of gold in paying quantities.

Hon. Billa Flint, who came in from Bridgewater to-day, showed us two pieces of quartz, in which there is a fair show of gold. The quartz was obtained four feet from the surface in a new shaft which has just been opened a short distance north of the saw mill, at Bridgewater. Old miners speak flatteringly of the location.

FROM BRIDGEWATER.

From our own Correspondent.

BRIDGEWATER, Oct. 29, 1867.

The gold excitement somewhat revived here yesterday when it became known that at the Barry mine they had struck a rich vein of quartz, a fine specimen of which was shown here, containing several pieces of pure gold visible to the naked eye, and being considered by judges to be likely to lead to a rich deposit. It was taken out about four feet from the surface.

Mr. Carleton commenced another mine in the saw mill yard. At the depth of three feet he found quartz similar to the above, with gold plainly visible. He improved upon this to-day, showing one piece of quartz with a small nugget of gold in it, which was reckoned to be worth $1.00.

There was again surrounded by small specks. These specks combined have tended to increase the excitement, and people are looking forward to large developments of the precious metal in both these places, and are exceedingly sanguine on the subject.

Mr. Walton is finding gold in paying quantities in the mine he last commenced, each pan of dirt that is washed yielding a good show of gold.

In the 5th concession a discovery of a peculiar nature has been made. A substance was found which can, and indeed has been, worked up and used as paint, being of a non-descript, but agreeable color, and seems likely to prove a durable one. It has been pronounced to be quacksilver or of great value. It is in large quantities. A sample of about two hundred pounds was taken out one day just in the bed of a creek, and there seems to be large quantities of it. It was on show here in the village, and excited a great deal of curiosity.

A gentleman owning a lot in this township was in the village yesterday, assuring everybody that he had found gold in good paying quantities, but as the individual had been partaking rather extensively of "the cup that cheers," I prefer waiting till I get better information before I say any more about it.

Speaking of cups that cheer reminds me that we had a meeting a little while back in the vestry of the church, when the Hon. Billa Flint gave an address upon temperance, with a view to starting a literary and scientific institution in this place in connection with total abstinence. The meeting was well attended, and the address was very much appreciated, as it deserved to be. After the speaker sat down, a large number came forward and signed the pledge. Since then there have been several meetings for the formation of rules, &c., and the first regular meeting of "The Bridgewater Temperance Association" will be held on Thursday, 6th November, and continue to be held on the first and third Thursdays in each month. This is decidedly a step in the right direction, for in addition to the main object, I think it is proposed to establish a library, and in course of time, a reading room, which will be a great boon here, and is, indeed, what every village needs, would possess. Thus it will tend to keep the rising generation from seeking pleasure and pastime in taverns, and tend them, by improving their minds, to become better members of society. It is rather a surprising thing that these sort of institutions are not more general than they are, considering the number of philanthropic persons there are in the country, and also how cheaply a thing of this sort can be done, and what an inexpensive and wholesome pastime it would prove. Charles Knight, the able English writer, some twenty years ago threw out some very excellent hints upon this subject, which, since then, have been very largely acted upon in that country, with the very best results.

Telegraphic News.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

FLORENCE, October 28.—The new Cabinet formed by General Menabrea is organized as follows: Marquis Fagnola, President; General Menabrea, Home; Signor Quatiero, Finance; Signor Canbay, Commerce; Signor Digny, Works; Signor Contelli, War; Gen. Viale, Justice; Signor Mart.

PARIS, Oct. 28, evening.—More ships have left Toulon for Civita Vecchia. The entire press had issued a proclamation, justifying the French expedition. Italy having failed to protect the Pope, the honor and opinion of mankind impel the Government to this course. When the rebellion is crushed, France will retire and ask a conference.

PARIS, October 29, noon.—Menabrea is pleased to accompany the French. M. de Moustier has issued a circular, justifying the French expedition. Italy having failed to protect the Pope, the honor and opinion of mankind impel the Government to this course. When the rebellion is crushed, France will retire and ask a conference.

FLORENCE, October 28, evening.—The deputies Nicotera and Mosto are reported to have been badly wounded during the recent engagements.

The sales of the church lands have commenced, and promise to add largely to the revenues of the Italian Government.

Gen. La Marmora has been sent on a mission to Genoa.

PARIS, October 29, evening.—The municipality of Paris gave a grand banquet to their Imperial Highnesses the Emperor Napoleon and the Empress Eugenie and their guests the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria. The banquet took place in the Hotel de Ville, which was splendidly decorated for the occasion. The Emperor of Austria, in the course of the evening, made an eloquent and feeling speech. He returned thanks to the Emperor and Empress, to the municipality of Paris, and to the people of France, for the noble hospitality with which he had been received, and he warmly expressed a cordial amity between the Empires of France and Austria. In this grand spectacle of international hospitality and friendship he beheld a new pledge of peace, Europe and a fresh guarantee for the progress and prosperity of nations.

BERLIN, October 29.—Prussia declines to receive Bavaria into the Zollverein on the terms proposed by the Bavarian Government.

EDINBURGH, October 30.—A public dinner was given to the Hon. Benjamin Disraeli, Chancellor of the Exchequer, yesterday, at Edinburgh. Mr. Disraeli, in answer to a complimentary toast, rose and made a characteristic speech. He gave a history of the Reform question, reviewing the action of the different political parties in England in relation to the subject, and closed with a strong argument in justification of the Tory party for their course in advocating and triumphantly carrying through Parliament the Representation of the People's Bill. The remarks of the hon. gentleman were frequently interrupted by expressions of attention and approval, and when he took his seat he was loudly cheered.

LIVERPOOL, October 29, noon.—This city is now the centre of Fennian panic. Reports of mysterious proceedings among the Irish inhabitants have caused the authorities to take extraordinary precautions among the armories of the volunteers and the gun shops in the city are guarded and the police patrols have been doubled.

DUBLIN, Oct. 30.—The trial of the prisoners indicted yesterday, will commence before the special commission on Thursday, when the challenging of the jury will commence.

MANCHESTER, Oct. 30, noon.—The trial of Allen is now in progress. The case against him and the other is very strong. There is much excitement in the city, and the court building is guarded by the national troops. Twenty-six of the prisoners have been indicted for murder.

LATER.—The Fenian trials have been adjourned for the day. The city is quiet.

PARIS, Oct. 30, evening.—The Emperor Francis Joseph, on his return to Vienna, will pay King William of Prussia a visit at Berlin.

LONDON, October 30.—The London Globe of this evening says that although Prussia is engaged to a neutral course of policy in the Italian-Roman question, Bismarck has given assurance to the Cabinet in Florence, that he will not allow France to make any use of Italy on account of the Papal complications.

FLORENCE, October 30.—The Italian Press is engaged in an anxious discussion of the National crisis and the policy of the government. The more moderate liberal journals express their approval of the action of the Cabinet towards the Garibaldians, and in the observance of the September Convention. The Democratic papers are firm in their oppositions of the course of the executive, and send in their condemnation of the idea of foreign intervention. There is much popular dissatisfaction produced, mainly by the weakness of the King's proclamation, a subject of Roman concern, and from a report that the Royal manifesto contained an allusion or makes no reference to the matter of French intervention, and how it would be met. The army contingent, as claimed in the year 1861, of the Royal troops, has been called out.

PARIS, Oct. 30, eve.—La Presse of this afternoon says Garibaldi's army is being reinforced by thousands of men who have deserted from the royal army of Italy. Garibaldi carried Monte Rotondo after a severe fight and marched direct for Rome, and it is now believed he is at the very gates of the city.

La Patrie says that the Premier and members of the new Italian Cabinet accepted office under two positive official conditions, which were Emmanuel. The conditions are: First, that the King shall publicly disavow all connection with or support of the Garibaldian bands who have crossed and are crossing the frontier into the Papal territory. Secondly, that by a military movement on the frontier the Italian army will co-operate with the French expeditionary force.

The Paris Epique publishes news from Florence announcing that the Italian troops of the King's army crossed the frontier and entered the Papal territory to-day.

PARIS, Oct. 30, a.m.—The news of Garibaldi's victory at Monte Rotondo has been confirmed. Garibaldi displayed great personal daring during the engagement. His soldiers captured all the Pontifical force, consisting of Zouaves and gen des armées from Rome, but the Italian Government authorities at once released them. La Liberte of this city says Napoleon refused to permit the Italian army to co-operate with the French expeditionary force in the operations which may be undertaken in the Roman territory. In reply to the proposal of King Victor Emmanuel in that direction, Napoleon said that Italian co-operation was unnecessary as he at present intended to limit the sphere of French action to Civita Vecchia.

TOLUON, Oct. 28, eve.—The second French fleet, which had just arrived from the North and was detained here by adverse weather, has departed in the wake of the first, and left port for the Roman waters. A force of artillery has also sailed. Troops are still pouring in from different stations of the military department.

The Imperial conscription of sailors for the French navy has been resumed here, and in all the other quarters and maritime districts of France. The railroad is still engaged in bringing in troops from all parts to augment the Italian-Roman expeditionary force.

ROME, Oct. 28, eve.—The revolutionary junta is exceedingly active in its efforts to promote the advancement of the national cause by a popular movement inside the city, and a rising against the temporal authority of the Pope is regarded as imminent. Great alarm exists, as a number of Orsini bands have been exploded in the streets during last night and to-day.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 29, a.m.—Advices from Paris state that the Pope informed the French Minister in Rome that if the Italian troops should under any circumstances come to the capital, he would leave the Eternal City.

American Despatches.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The yellow fever is reported on board the British steamer Corica, lately arrived from Nassau. Two deaths occurred.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—At the auction sale of Scranton coal to day, some fifty thousand tons of coal were disposed of, at an average advance in prices as compared with last month.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 30.—The Phoenix Paper Mills, at Cuyahoga Falls, were destroyed by fire to-day. Loss $30,000.

HAVANA, Oct. 30.—Intelligence has been received that Don Domingo has declared war against Hayti, on account of the sympathy and assistance given by the Haytians to ex-President Bazeze.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The Herald's Mexico special says that Juarez has not yet sent the 2,000 men, which were urgently demanded, to stop the Indian atrocities. The hands have been nullified.

The Herald's special says that the British steamer Albatross, from Malaga, loaded with fruit, which went ashore last week at Montauk point, was broken to pieces by the storm yesterday.
